Sniper fire rakes beach; 3 boys held

Associated Press

Three 13-year-old boys tried to shoot up everything from sunbathers to jetliners in unleashing almost 300 rounds of sniper fire on a beach, Los Angeles police said Friday night.

No one was injured, however, as the boys fired from a long range with pistols they said they had stolen in house burglaries, said Officer Willie Glenn of Venice Division.

"People didn't know they were being shot at because of the distance," said the officer, with one exception: a surfer who ran for his life when sand kicked up around him.

The location was the Playa Del Rey beach adjacent to busy Los Angeles International Airport. Huge aircraft including jumbo jets take off every few minutes and fly past at low altitude out over the ocean.

Glenn gave this report in part: "They said they shot at a lady in a car at the Westchester High School area; they continued down to the beach and shot at a couple — a man and a woman. Then they shot at a couple of girls and an airplane. That was Thursday night. In the morning they got up and started shooting at other things" — which included a lifeguard station lock, dogs and a duck.

Officers said they found one duck had been killed and that the station lock showed obvious gunfire damage.

"They could have hit a plane with their weapons," added Glenn. "They were close enough."

The officer said he and two other uniformed policemen took the trio into custody with no resistance Friday. He said two loaded revolvers were found, and the boys told of throwing two other guns into the ocean.

The three, all from South Los Angeles homes, were termed "runaways" by their parents. Two had previous juvenile records, police said. All three were booked at Juvenile Hall for investigation of burglary. Officers said shooting charges may follow later.

Police arrived Friday after a neighbor saw the three break into a house. Officers said the boys said they had stolen, burglarized and shoplifted the guns and ammunition, and on their crosstown trip to the beach had till-tapped a hamburger stand for expense money.

Ford program for America

By PHILIP SHABECOFF
New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — President Ford will propose broad new programs to produce more jobs and more housing and to develop wider energy sources in his State of the Union message to Congress on Jan. 19, a high White House official said Friday.

The President will also call for sharp slashes in foreign aid, a significant reduction of federal employment and the closing of military bases among other means of trying to hold down the growth of federal spending, the aide said.

The official, who is close to the President, said that the State of the Union address would be a major effort by the President to expound his own "vision" of where the nation should be heading and to establish that he has a "positive program for America."

This and several other White House officials indicated that Ford is also counting on his speech and his budget message two days later, to touch off a revival of his currently sagging political fortunes.

Recent public opinion polls indicate that most Americans do not approve of the way Ford is handling his job. But White House aides express confidence that his standing in the polls will rise after he unveils his new programs.

Two of them, jobs and housing, are aimed at problems that could be serious political problems for Ford. The high unemployment rate could be a particularly heavy liability in an election year.

Administration officials have said publicly that the high jobless rate will not be a major political factor because it is tending to go down rather than up and so those Americans now employed are not worrying about losing their jobs. But privately, some of the officials agree that unemployment could be expoloited by the President's political opponents.

The President, according to the aide, will propose to bring down the jobless rate through a program of expanded public service employment. The aide would provide no details on the plan nor on the other proposals the President will make in his message to Congress.

Ford has announced that he will call for federal spending of less than $395 billion in fiscal year 1977. Holding the budget to this level would require sharp curtailment of anticipated spending for programs already in existence.

Brown gambles on budget

Asks $622 million more with no new taxes

By BOB SCHMIDT
From Our State Bureau

SACRAMENTO — Gov. Brown, gambling on cooperation from the Legislature and California's continued economic recovery, Friday proposed a $12.6 billion 1976-77 budget which requires no new taxes.

Increased tax revenues resulting from the economic upturn will more than offset inflation and enable the state to finance a spending plan $622 million larger than the current fiscal year's without additional tax sources, the governor said.

There will even be a $519.3 million surplus on June 30, 1977, he said.

But for the budget to work, not only will California individuals and business have to earn more money to be taxed and spend more money to be taxed, but the Legislature will have to go along with a large number of controversial proposals.

These include limiting pay increases for all state employes, "from judges to janitors," to a flat $65 a month regardless of present income, continued tight rein on education funds, highway spending emphasizing expanded use of existing facilities rather than construction of new roads and freeways, and several state-agency reorganization proposals.

For instance, Brown proposed taking the Department of Alcholic Beverage Control, which regulates the manner in which liquor is sold, out of the Business and Transportation Agency and combining it with a newly established Office of Alcoholism in the Health and Welfare Agency.

The emphasis would shift from checking up on the apparel of girls dancing in bars to combatting the harmful effects of alcohol, he suggested.

The Air Resources Board was given a whopping $17.7 million budget increase, primarily to finance the construction of 23 auto emission control test stations in the South Coast Air Basin.

But ARB Chairman Tom Quinn said Friday he was not at all sure California would go ahead with the testing program, even though not to do so would invite certain financial penalties — by way of withheld road-construction funds — from the Federal Government.

"We'll probably make a decision in March," Quinn said.

Kindergarten through high-school funding went up a total of $153 million, but $111.7 million of that is because of existing formula apportionments which educators insist are inadequate, and another $34.5 million is for the controversial Early Childhood Education program championed by State Superintendent of Public Instruction Wilson Riles.

Cal. may stop L.B. oil port

From Our State Bureau

SACRAMENTO — The Air Resources Board's chairman and executive officer agreed Friday that Long Beach may not be allowed to receive Alaskan oil at its planned deep-water port.

William Lewis, executive offier, said "we think bringing it (oil from Alaska) into the South Coast Air Basin is intolerable."

Standard Oil Co. of Ohio recently gave Long Beach the nod over Los Angeles Harbor for the oil terminal.

The decision to locate the port in Long Beach is not final, Lewis said, and suggested that the powerful state agency "would like to find some other place for it."

Tom Quinn, chairman of the Air Resources Board, denied that any judgment had yet been made on the proposed port's Long Beach location.

"There is a real possibility that operation of the facilities proposed would be in violation of the Federal Clean Air Act, based on our observation of similar facilities," Quinn said.

"But I believe the technology exists to operate such a facility in accord with federal law. It will require the spending of some money, but in comparison with the value of the oil to be moved it is infinitesimal.

"We recognize that a lot of the Alaskan oil must come into California to be shipped elsewhere in the country, and we only want to insure that there is no adverse impact on air quality."

It is not true, Quinn said, that a decision had already been made to oppose the Long Beach project.

So this is Dixie!

Workers brave 9-degree temperature Friday in Atlanta, Ga., as they head for work during the near-record cold snap. Meanwhile, in the Southwest, freezing temperatures closed schools and forced a major natural gas firm to conserve its dwindling gas supply. (Story on Page A-2).

Slowdown in 10th day

MDs charged with endangering lives

By KRIS SHERMAN
Staff Writer

Southland doctors—whose slowdown in protest of skyrocketing malpractice insurance premiums enters its 10th day today—were charged Friday with "endangering lives and the stability of hospitals."

Stuart J. Marylander, president of the Hospital Council of Southern California, made the statement after urging protesting doctors to get back to work.

His plea came amid announcements that hospitals across Los Angeles County were losing money, that more employe layoffs are looming and that county hospitals are nearing capacity.

Dr. William Hyman, president of the Long Beach Medical Association, countered the charge by saying that physicians were "fighting for our professional lives."

HE SAID the slowdown—protesting insurance premium increases of up to 327 per cent—was gathering momentum. Meetings are scheduled next week to recruit doctors in Orange County, San Diego and San Jose, he added.

Hyman's appraisal that the slowdown was gaining effectiveness was underscored by Marion Diamond of the Los Angeles County Health Services Department.

Though Marylander did not amplify his remarks, Mrs. Diamond said she believed he was referring to the "difficulty of possible delays in emergency rooms" at community hospitals where they are only prepared to stabilize and transfer patients.

"Their emergency physicians are on call, but they are not always available," she said.

ANOTHER official, however, admitted that the increased patient load at the county's eight hospitals "has taken its toll" on the system.

Though he pointed out that "county hospitals are traditionally busy and employes are accustomed to working under stress," public information officer Anthony Tripi added that staff members have lately "been put in a position of continuous stress rather than the normal series of peaks and valleys.

"They don't really have time to rest," he said. "I think this slowdown has taken its toll on the system."

He said the patient census at the eight county hospitals rose by 60 admissions to 3,531 Friday. Capacity in the county system is listed at 3,761, though that figure can be stretched in emergencies, he said.

HOSPITAL Council officials, meanwhile, said 97 of 234 member facilities in Los Angeles, Orange, San Bernardino, Ventura and Santa Barbara counties have curtailed services either minimally or severely since the slowdown began Jan. 1.

In Los Angeles County, where the protest is rooted, 82 of 160 hospitals have been affected. A census in other portions of the Southland shows that the action has hit three hospitals in San Bernardino County, 11 of 14 hospitals in Santa Barbara and Ventura counties and one hospital in Orange County.

Hospital Council officials added that, to date, about 3,100 of the organization's 136,000 workers have been laid off. Another 12,175 are working shortened hours, salaries have been reduced for 1,600 and 350 have taken early vacations.

CEDARS-Sinai Medical Center has laid off 1,500, while up to 500 workers have taken enforced "vacations" in Ventura and Santa Barbara counties.

And officials at Bauer Hospital-St. Mary Medical Center in Long Beach announced a new wave of layoffs next week.

Stephanie James, acting director of public relations for the facility, said new layoffs would be announced Monday. Nineteen surgical department employes have already been laid off as a result of the slowdown, she said.

"Bauer Hospital-St. Mary Medical Center continues to experience a worsening effect from the physicians' slowdown," she said. "Surgeries are significantly below normal. Thursday, they were off 56 per cent, and Friday's projections indicated a 72 per cent reduction from schedules one year ago.

"HOSPITAL admissions Thursday were down 71 per cent from last year," she added. "As a result of this week's activity, additional employe layoffs are being effected beginning Monday."

Ms. James said she did not know how many employes would be laid off Monday.

At Memorial Hospital Medical Center, officials said the patient census was down about 60 persons. The drop in revenue based on the average $225 per person daily charge in Southern California hospitals could mean a reduced income of $13,500 a day. A hospital spokesman said, however, that the figure did not represent a financial loss but rather a drop in income.

Officials at Long Beach Community Hospital, meanwhile, said the slowdown was costing the facility an estimated $20,000 per week. Officials at Pacific Hospital said a declining patient load there—occupancy was down to 54 per cent—forced the layoffs of three employes.

HOSPITAL Council officials expressed concern that continuance of the slowdown could be the death knell for several of the smaller, community hospitals while severely

Wholesale costs dip, jobless rate level

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON—Inflationary pressures eased a bit in December as wholesale prices dropped for the first time in six months. However, unemployment clung stubbornly at the 8.3 per cent level.

The government said Friday wholesale prices fell four-tenths of 1 per cent because of a decline in agriculture prices.

A quarter-million more Americans found jobs last month, the first monthly increase since last summer. But the nation's jobless rate was unchanged from its November level of 8.3 per cent because the increase in the number of jobs was only enough to absorb an increase in the number of persons hunting for work, the government said.

The reports prompted President Ford's press secretary to say: "Overall, the White House believes the economy continues to recover."

Ron Nessen said wholesale prices "are an indication that inflation is moderating and there is no evidence of acceleration." He also said the rise in the number of people with jobs is encouraging.

AFL-CIO President George Meany said the job picture has not improved because of "President Ford's repeated vetoes of any job-creating legislation." He said the figures show "millions of Americans have been condemned by his administration to the misery of unemployment."

Administration economists forecast only a gradual decline in unemployment, with the rate expected to still be above 7 per cent next November. This is expected to provide Democratic presidential candidates with a major campaign issue to use against Ford.

Although total employment rose by 233,000 to 85,511,000, an estimated 7.8 million Americans were unemployed in December.

Unemployment averaged 8.5 per cent of the labor force in 1975, up from 5.6 per cent in 1974 and the highest annual average in 34 years. In 1941, with the country still shaking off the effects of the Depression, joblessness averaged 9.9 per cent in a work force of 55.9 million.

Economic analysts disagree on whether there will be further progress in reducing inflation. Some economists outside the administration have warned of a new surge late this year or in 1977.

With December's four-tenths per cent decline, wholesale prices in 1975 rose 4.2 per cent, a sharp reduction from the 20.9 per cent jump in 1974 and the smallest year-to-year rise in four years. The price figures are seasonally adjusted.

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California had 890,800 unemployed in December, the lowest level since last March. The 9.6 unemployment rate dropped from the 10 per cent rate in November as the number of jobless declined from 910,400. Services, finance, insurance and the real estate industries also showed small gains.

Commuter trains collide; 400 hurt

Combined News Services

CHICAGO — A packed commuter train crashed into the rear of another train Friday at the height of the morning rush hour, injuring more than 400 of the 600 passengers. The motorman of the train said he was blinded by sunlight reflected off snow shortly before the collision. No one was killed in the crash, but the Chicago Transit Authority, which operated the two electric rapid transit trains, said the crash was one of the worst in recent years. Four persons had to be cut free from the mangled metal with acetylene torches. Both trains carried safety equipment designed to avoid such rear-end collisions, but an automatic signal in a "fail-safe" system on the lead train apparently malfunctioned, a transit spokesman said.

Schools close in 5 states

Many schools in five states closed Friday and industry was asked to curb production as freezing temperatures forced a major natural gas firm to conserve its dwindling supply of gas. The Arkansas-Louisiana Gas Co. (Arkla) of Shreveport, La., told school districts and industries in its service area that frigid weather had lowered its natural gas supply and asked the schools to close so that residential customers and hospitals would have enough gas for heat and also urged industries to curb production. The company serves most of Arkansas, northwestern Louisiana, northwestern Texas, and parts of Oklahoma and Kansas. The Federal Energy Administration said most of the gas cutbacks in the Southwest have been to interruptible customers, pretty much as expected. In most cases, interrupted customers have alternative fuel available, the FEA said.

Union merger studied

DETROIT — The United Auto Workers' 26-member international executive board meets here next week to consider rejoining the giant AFL-CIO, with which it split in 1968. The meeting next Tuesday will come one week after 10 presidents of major AFL-CIO unions visited UAW leaders in Detroit in hopes of convincing the UAW to rejoin the labor federation. Leonard Woodcock, president of the 1.5-million-member UAW, said last year during the group's international convention that he favored re-establishing formal ties with the AFL-CIO. The UAW severed its affiliation with the AFL-CIO after the late Walter P. Reuther, then president of the UAW, clashed with George Meany over social issues and the Vietnam war.

Discrimination settlement

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — A federal judge awarded $120,000 in back wages Friday to 43 black railroad employes in a civil rights case that lasted nearly a decade. The ruling by U.S. District Judge Seybourn Lynn also means the plaintiffs, most with 20 to 30 years experience, will have the opportunity to move beyond entry-level switchman jobs to supervisory positions. The black workers, who were employed by the Birmingham Southern Railroad and covered by the United Transportation Union, had charged they lost income because of racial discrimination.

15 die as boiler on ship explodes

HAMBURG, West Germany — The boiler of a container ship under construction in Hamburg harbor exploded Friday during an engine test, killing at least 15 workmen with the force of the blast and scalding steam. Officials said reported dozens of persons were injured and many remained in hospitals, some in critical condition. Twelve victims were killed at the scene and three died later in hospitals. Witnesses who saw the dead and injured being lowered from the hulk of the unfinished vessel, the Anders Maersk, said some of the bodies were scalded bright red by the 900-degree steam. One dock official reported there were many casualties because scores of workers for subcontractors were swarming over the ship, trying to complete last-minute jobs for its scheduled Jan. 17 sea trial.

Ecuador shakeup

QUITO, Ecuador — One general was taken into custody Friday and another was ordered out of the army as rumors of a coup against President Guillermo Rodriguez Lara's military government spread through Ecuador. Both generals were also ministers of the 11-man cabinet, all of whom offered their resignations Wednesday. There were reports that the armed forces commanders were demanding that a four-man military junta replace Rodriguez Lara, a general who seized power in a coup four years ago. Combat troops ringed the palace, where Rodriguez Lara worked throughout the day trying to restructure his cabinet.

Subway strike settled

MADRID — All 3,800 workers of Madrid's subway system have accepted an offer by the company and will return to work today, ending a five-day strike. The subway employes agreed to return to work by unanimous vote held in a suburban Madrid church late Friday. The company promised not to take action against the workers and agreed to a pay increase of $500 a year. The workers had demanded a wage hike of 20 per cent over the current level of about $260 a month as their share of a 20 per cent increase in fares that took effect last August.

Expropriation turnaround

LISBON — Portugal's Socialist Minister of Agriculture Antonio Cardoso presented new guidelines for the controversial agrarian reform program Friday in an apparent move to appease hostile small and medium farmers. Cardoso declared that land illegally occupied would be restored to its owners, farms up to 75 acres would be exempt from expropriation, and that expropriations would be limited to southern Portugal's districts of large estates. Admitting "injustices," the minister told a news conference that some 2.5 million acres of land have been occupied in the name of agrarian reform — about 70 per cent illegally.

Rebels free kidnaped U.S. servicemen

Combined News Services

Two American servicemen kidnaped four months ago by Eritrean rebels in Ethiopia were released in good condition Friday in Sudan, the State Department announced.

They were identified as Thomas Bowidowicz of Jersey City, N. J., a Navy electronics technician, and David Strickland of Longwood, Fla., an Army enlisted man.

In Hollywood, Fla., Strickland's father said the State Department told him his son would be flown to the U.S. next week and examined in Texas by tropical-disease experts.

The father, Leonard Strickland, said his son, who is 24 years old, had written that he had lost 20 to 30 pounds from dysentery and heat exhaustion.

The younger Strickland wrote of his illness in a letter to his wife, Leonard Strickland said. He said he received a letter from his son about three weeks ago, dated two weeks after the capture, and that the Bowidowicz family got a letter from young Bowidowicz at the same time.

The two young men were working at the Kagnew Naval Communications Facility in Asmara when they were abducted last Sept. 13 by members of the Eritrean Liberation Front.

Among its functions, the Kagnew base serves as a satellite tracking station and as a link in the Washington-Moscow hotline.

Two days after Strickland and Bowidowicz were captured, the rebels threatened to kill them at the mountain cave where they were being held unless the U.S. halted arms supplies to Ethiopia's military regime.

A White House spokesman said at the time that it had received "some demands" from the rebels, but that American officials had been unable to make contact with them.

In addition to the arms ban, the rebels demanded:

— Dismantling the Kagnew base and an Ethiopian naval base under construction at Massawa, Ethiopia's chief port on the Red Sea.

— Compensation for areas of Eritrea that suffered heavy damage in attacks by U.S. equipped Ethiopian air force planes during fighting between the rebels and Ethiopian government forces last February. Eritrea, a former Italian colony, was annexed by Ethiopia in 1962, touching off a 13-year-old independence rebellion.

— U.S. government pressure on Ethiopia's military government to free all Eritrean rebels it holds in prisons.

No name

U.S. District Court Judge Ralph Maxwell has denied the request of a Fargo, N.D., teacher who wanted to change his name to a number.

Michael Dengler had petitioned to legally change his name to "1069."

But Maxwell said Friday in Fargo that under the law a name consists of words, not symbols. The judge noted that the petitioner did not seek to adopt the word name of the number, but only asked to use the symbol.

Dengler had said his idea developed from readings in mathematics and philosophy. He explained that the 1 represented his concept of nature which manifests itself as one individual; the 0 showed his relationship with time and movement through life; the 6 was equal to the relationship he has with the universe, and the 9 indicates the relationship he has to essence.

"If the court indulges the present request...to use numerical symbols as a legal name, it could hardly deny the use of other symbols to subsequent petitioners," Maxwell said. He cited as examples a musician who might want to seek eighth notes as a name or a financier who might want a dollar sign.

Hassle

Actor-comedian Godfrey Cambridge has settled a skirmish with town fathers of Ridgefield, Conn., over a fence around his property.

Cambridge, who accused Ridgefield officials of hassling him about the fence because he's black, has moved the chain-link fence back onto his property, officials said. In return, the town has withdrawn a court action against the entertainer, and the case is considered closed.

First Selectman Louis Fossi, who denied that Cambridge was being harassed because of his race, said the fence originally was from 12 to 20 feet within the town right of way.

Separated

Auto magnate Henry Ford II and his jet-setter second wife, Cristina, have separated and are living apart, a spokesman for Ford says.

Ending almost a year of rumor, Alan Schwartz, a Detroit attorney representing Ford in the separation, said: "In response to the inquiry I can tell you this: I do represent Mr. Henry Ford II in this connection and the parties have separated and are now living apart."

Schwartz would say nothing further. There was no announcement of any financial settlement.

Neither Ford, board chairman of the Ford Motor Co., nor Mrs. Ford could be reached for comment.

There have been rumors that the Ford marriage was in difficulty since last February.

Thurmond

Mrs. Nancy Thurmond, wife of U.S. Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., gave birth late Friday night to an eight-pound baby boy at Self Memorial Hospital in Greenwood, S.C.

"That completes the family," said the 73-year-old Thurmond.

The Thurmonds have three other children, two girls and a boy. The eldest, Nancy Moore Thurmond, will be five in March.

Mrs. Thurmond, 30, is a former Miss South Carolina.

Peace Prize

Dr. Addeke Boerma, outgoing director of the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, has been awarded the Wateler Peace Prize by the Carnegie Foundation.

The foundation is owner and administrator of the Peace Palace in The Hague, which houses the International Court of Justice.

Boerma, a Dutchman, joined the Food and Agriculture Organization in 1948 and became director in 1967. His efforts to find a solution to the world food shortage are said by the foundation to have contributed to a better basis for world peace.

He receives 30,000 guilders or about $12,000. Previous recipients include U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

Austerity

Rhode Island's Gov. Philip Noel says he believes in austerity but doesn't plan to make quite the personal sacrifice that Gov. Ella Grasso has in neighboring Connecticut.

In light of her state's budget problems, Mrs. Grasso has said she will renounce use of the limousine that normally comes with her office.

Noel said he wouldn't go that far...but added he has sold his Cadillac in favor of leasing a Lincoln. The change has saved Rhode Island about $5,000 a year, Noel said.

Candidate

Bill Murray, son of atheist Madalyn Murray O'Hair, has filed as a congressional candidate in the Republican primary in Austin, Tex.

Murray, 29, was the named plaintiff in Mrs. O'Hair's successful suit in 1963 to outlaw required religious exercises in public schools — a decision she says is being flouted openly today.

Murray is trying to win the 10th Congressional District seat now held by Democrat Jake Pickle.

His campaign literature calls him "a conservative, responsible businessman who is aware of the problems and the needs of those in Travis County." It says he opposes government "give-aways" and "busing small children from town to town."

Mrs. O'Hair said she was trying to stay out of the campaign, citing local headlines, "O'Hair son to oppose Rep. Pickle" as an example of why she should.

Allergic

Betty Bond, head of a nationwide nudist organization, admits she has a problem. She's somewhat allergic to the sun.

"I usually have to put a little light top on when I've been out too long," confessed Mrs. Bond, the 43-year-old president of the 16,000-member American Sunbathing Association. She was in Florida to help organize the club's Orlando office.

The mother of two said she didn't shed her inhibitions — or her clothes — until she was an adult. It took her husband nearly seven years to convince her to go to a nudist park near their Oregon home.

"A healthy mind and a healthy body is what nudism is all about," she said. "The beautiful thing about it is that you learn appearance has nothing to do with it. It's what the inner person is."

What happens when it's cold, wet and nasty outside?

"We keep our clothes on," Mrs. Bond says. "We're not crazy."

Sextuplets

The world's only surviving sextuplets will celebrate their second birthday Sunday.

According to their mother, Susan Rosenkowitz of Cape Town, South Africa, "the kids are in good health and will have a very happy second birthday."

One of the youngsters, when asked how she enjoyed being one of the famous six, said "Mommy."

Hahn wires Coleman

U.S. aid sought in transit stalemate

By NOEL SWANN
From Our L.A. Bureau

U.S. Transportation Secretary William Coleman Friday was urged to intervene personally in the dispute over routing for the county's proposed rapid transit starter line.

Supervisor Kenneth Hahn sent a telegram to Coleman saying, "Transportation is at a standstill. The people of Los Angeles County need direction from you to clear the tracks so rapid transit can get moving."

Hahn also indicated that he might consider reversing his vote pledging the county's share of $52 million to the starter line project if the federal government insists on still another study.

"For the past 25 years, there have been $6 million worth of studies (for rapid transit)," Hahn told Coleman. "We've had studies on top of studies all these years when what has been needed was action."

He said delays, postponements of decisions due to federal requirements and bureaucratic red tape "have made the citizens frustrated and local officials completely baffled by changing demands."

Hahn's appeal to Coleman came in the wake of a decision this week by Southern California Rapid Transit directors to seek a federal grant for preliminary studies of the proposed route between Long Beach and Union Station in Los Angeles.

The RTD vote flew in the face of a request from the Los Angeles City Council to apply for funds for a study covering the entire proposed corridor from Canoga Park to Long Beach.

Shortly after the RTD action, transit officials were told by representatives of the federal Urban Mass Transportation Administration that the application for $4.4 million in study funds probably would not be given favorable treatment unless the analysis covered the entire corridor.

As a result, RTD officials have called a special meeting Monday to consider the demands made by officials of the mass transportation administration.

Many local officials have questioned the sense of the administration's demand because the total amount of potential funding available is only $820 million—barely enough to cover the Long Beach-Los Angeles link.

Hahn noted that the $52 million in county funds committed for the project comes at a time when the county road department may have to lay off 300 design employes because of a lack of funds for highway construction.

He said there are many road projects in his district needing completion and hesistated to put money into a starter line which may never be built.

If supervisors decided not to commit the county's share of gasoline tax diversion monies to a starter line project, the whole concept would fall to pieces. Similarly, if the city of Long Beach withdraws its monetary support of the program, no line could be built.

Vallerga's trial reset

Jack P. Vallerga, 53, who was deposed as Orange County assessor after conviction Sept. 18 on a multiple-count indictment, Friday moved to quash another indictment on which he was to go to trial Monday.

The Santa Ana Superior Court set Jan. 23 as the date for hearing arguments on the dismissal plea, and reset his trial for Jan 26.

The indictment he faces, along with Rep. Andrew J. Hinshaw, R-Santa Ana, who preceded him as county assessor, was returned by the Orange County Grand Jury last May.

Murder suspect pleads insanity

A 31-year-old Long Beach woman Friday entered a plea of innocent by reason of insanity to a charge she murdered an apartment house manager in a dispute over unpaid rent.

Willie Nell Williams, of 324 Dayman Ave., entered the plea before Superior Court Judge Elsworth M. Beam, who appointed of psychiatrists to examine the woman.

The judge ordered the defendant returned to court Feb. 20, allowing the psychiatrists time to prepare reports mandated by law in cases involving insanity pleas.

The Williams woman was arrested at her apartment last Oct. 17, about a half-hour after the slaying of Mrs. Vivian Elder, 51, also of the Dayman Avenue address.

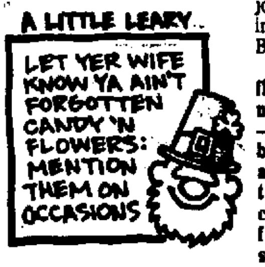
Stewardess jobs

I'm currently a college student and would like to become a stewardess. Can Action Line find out what the qualifications are for this job and how one breaks into the field? C.J., Long Beach.



A LITTLE LEARY...
LET YER WIFE KNOW YA AIN'T FORGOTTEN CANDY 'N FLOWERS: MENTION THEM ON OCCASIONS

The job market for flight attendants — the new term for stewardesses — is improving slightly, but it's still difficult to get a job in any capacity in the airline industry. Because of the high cost of fuel and the economic slump, the airline companies have suffered business cutbacks and have reduced their work forces. When openings become available, flight attendants who have been laid off will be called for jobs first. "The fact that flight attendants are now staying on the job longer because the age and marital status restrictions have been removed has also affected the job market," said a spokesman for one major carrier. "In the 1960s, a flight attendant usually held her job about two years; now many of them remain 10 years or longer." Spokesmen for the airlines agreed that the only way for you to break into the field is to file job applications with as many airlines as possible and then simply wait to be called. With most of the airlines, flight attendants — male or female — must be at least 20 years old and meet certain height and weight requirements. A college background generally is not required, but some of the international carriers, such as Pan American World Airways, require that their flight attendants speak a second language. Spokesmen also said that virtually all of the major airlines have their own flight attendant training programs and don't go to private airline trade schools to hire employees. Job applicants who have attended these schools usually don't get priority treatment.

Theft loss

My car was stolen by a juvenile and the police recovered it two weeks later. I had to pay $30 in towing charges and other expenses which I think the boy's parents should have paid. When the juvenile was tried in court, shouldn't the matter of my losses have been settled at that time? How can I recover this money? M.L., Long Beach.

In a criminal cases involving a juvenile, a judge usually will not require the defendant to reimburse his victim because a juvenile generally does not have the means to do so and the parents' liability does not enter into a criminal matter, according to a county district attorney who specializes in juvenile cases. "The question of the parents' liability is covered under civil, not criminal, law," he added. The only way for you to try to recoup your losses is to file a small claims court action against the juvenile's parents, but even in civil cases, a judge won't necessarily hold parents responsible for all the debts or acts of their minor children.

In the dark

Some friends and I went to El Dorado Park to play volleyball on the courts near the recreation center on a Sunday evening in early December and found the courts dark. We asked an employe there about turning on the lights and were told that the woman who runs the center in the evening refuses to go out after dark and turn on the lights. We were also told there used to be 40 to 50 people playing out there on Sunday nights before this woman started running the center. Would you look into this for us? G.M., Long Beach.

The courts there are not, and have not been, lighted on Sunday evenings, except on special occasions, said Henry Zimmerman, senior recreation leader with the Long Beach Recreation Department. He said the woman working there on Sunday nights supervises the senior citizen dances and isn't in charge of the other recreational facilities. "We only have a program on the courts when supervision is available," he said. Supervision is available — as well as volleyball equipment — on Tuesday nights from 6:30 to 9:30 during the school year, and on Tuesday through Thursday nights at the same hours during the summer. The department also sponsors [illegible] volleyball play at the Milliken High School gym, 2800 Snowden Ave., on Thursdays from 7 to 9:30.

County cash reserve urged

From Our L.A. Bureau

County Auditor-Controller Mark Bloodgood Friday urged supervisors to set up a $200 million reserve fund over the next several years to help avoid serious cash flow problems at the end of each fiscal year.

Supervisor Kenneth Hahn, however, said he could not support the move because it would "just open the floodgates to extra spending by department heads."

Hahn said, though, that Bl[illegible]'s report pr[illegible] to call for a 197[illegible]et needing no ta[illegible] increase. The current property tax rate is ab[illegible] per $100 of assessed valuation.

Bloodgood warned that it may be necessay to issue revenue anticipation notes to get through the fiscal year ending June 30.

He said that in the past two years there was enough money in the revenue sharing fund to cover the cash shortage problem at the end of the year. But he said the revenue sharing money available this year will be "substantially below" the level needed to meet county expenditures.

Bloodgood said one of the main problems has been that expected state and federal revenues relied on to finance county spending have not materialized.

Because of this, he urged supervisors to be more conservative in their revenue estimates in future budgets.

An increasing problem, he said, has been the amount of money the county has to divert to redevelopment agencies.

When a redevelopment agency is formed, the existing tax rate on the property earmarked for renewal is frozen. As the value of the property rises in subsequent years, the resulting tax increase goes to the redevelopment agency—instead of the County General Fund—to enable the ageny to pay off bonded indebtedness over the life of the renewal project.

Bloodgood noted that in 1975-76, about $20 million that would normally have gone into the General Fund has had to be diverted to redevelopment agencies.

He said at present the County General Fund maintains a reserve of $3 million to meet cash requirements and emergency expenses, but recent year-end cash needs indicate that this reserve should be at least $200 million.

Noting, however, that an increase of $197 million in the reserve fund would cause a property tax rate hike of about $1 per $100 of assessed valuation, Bloodgood said a one-shot boost of the fund would be "impratical." He urged the board to consider a long-range program to eventually build the reserve up to $200 million.

State OKs Riles' high school plan

SACRAMENTO (AP) — State schools chief Wilson Riles' high school reform plan, which stresses "personalized" learning and skills testing, was approved by the State Board of Education Friday.

The board told Riles' staff to draft a bill that would ask the Legislature for $4 million to start planning the program in some schools this year.

RILES wants to implement the plan in all junior and senior high schools within five years at an eventual cost of $120 million a year.

The product of a statewide panel on the Reform of Intermediate and Secondary Education, the proposal could drastically change secondary education in California.

It would let each student draw up a learning plan with a counselor which could include work in the community, independent study, or even a year's "furlough" from school in addition to classroom study.

Course credit would be based on demonstrated skills, not "seat time."

Riles has hailed the plan, but some critics contend the RISE panel watered it down by removing some proposals it had earlier approved.

They included an end to teacher tenure and a lowering of the dropout age from 18 to 14.

THE BOARD also received Riles' enthusiastic evaluation of the Early Childhood Education program's second year.

The report said the program not only produced steady gains in test scores for grades kindergarten through three, but also attracted 181,000 parent volunteers to help with teaching and planning.

For the second straight year, the program got a more skeptical evaluation from the office of A. Alan Post, the Legislature's nonpartisan fiscal adviser, who said there was no proof ECE was better than other programs.

Judges rule against ban on glasses ads

Associated Press

State laws which prohibit advertising the price of prescription eyeglasses have been declared unconstitutional by a panel of three federal judges in Los Angeles.

However, ads for eyeglasses and contact lenses may not appear immediately since the judges issued only a preliminary injunction against the enforcement of the laws and said a full trial would have to be held on the issue.

Tempest-tossed Viets get new start at special camp

By GREGORY A. GROSS

CHULA VISTA (AP) — The Vietnamese studying English at the Agapi Foundation Resettlement Center are a special breed of refugee. They are the betrayed.

The 34 now living at the Brown Field center are victims of what officials call "sponsorship breakdowns," promises not kept, sponsors who either ran out of money or ran out on the refugees.

Agapi, a local charity, agreed last winter to take refugees from the volunteer agencies who arranged the ill-fated sponsorships last year when thousands of Vietnamese, Cambodians and Laotians were rushed into the United States via Camp Pendleton.

The center is located on the Mexican border in five buildings once used by Pacific Southwest Airlines to train foreign pilots. They have a capacity of 320. But the refugees are not pouring in, despite the number of sponsorships collapsing throughout the state.

Stranded in a strange place, with no usable skills and little or no English, many are still afraid to leave the area, said Agapi volunteer Kelly DeSare.

"It's a frightening thing, relocating a second or third time in a foreign country," she said. "You tend to hang on to whatever security you have."

Many were fearful and distrustful when they arrived at Agapi. They feared it would be another Camp Pendleton. And there were ugly rumors floating around. One rumor said that anyone going to Agapi would be sold. But after meeting the American and Vietnamese volunteers at the center, attitudes change.

"We don't even call them refugees anymore," said Minh Cong Ton Nu Dieu, herself a refugee.

"We call them residents. That makes them happy."

Unlike Pendleton, there are no rows of tents or guards to prevent the Vietnamese from coming or going as they please. There is a gymnasium and a swimming pool.

But there are also nine hours of classes daily which all adults are required to attend.

"We demand that people participate," said Agapi director Michael Hanson. "This isn't a babysitting service."

Formal classes began this week in driver training, with more classes scheduled in citizenship and independent living. There's also a demanding three-hour English class.

"Everything is forced language, English, English, English," said Hanson. "We have interpreters, but we don't use them unless we have to."

Teachers from Chula Vista's Sweetwater Union High School District handle the English classes and the teachers and volunteers alike are delighted with the response they're getting.

"Nobody gripes," said Mrs. DeSare. "Morale is incredible when you consider that these people have already been burned once or twice. They all call me Mommy."

The training program, which eventually will include specific job skills, is scheduled to last six weeks, but the center swears it won't place any Vietnamese in a job until he's ready, even if it means more training.

"We want to make sure that everyone has a good grounding," said Hanson. "They don't need anymore failures."

State accuses Navy of smog violations

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The state filed a suit Friday in U.S. District Court contending the Navy is violating state, local and federal air-pollution laws by testing jet engines at four military installations.

The complaint was filed on behalf of the California Air Resources Board and the San Francisco Bay Area Pollution Control district by the state attorney general.

IT ALLEGED that the Navy is violating air-pollution laws by permitting excessive smokestack emissions from stationary jet-engine test cells at El Toro Marine Corps Air Station in Orange County and at naval air stations in Alameda County and at Miramar and North Island in San Diego County.

The suit contended that despite efforts by local pollution-control districts to get compliance, violations are continuing.

The court was asked to impose civil penalties of $500 for each day in which such violations occurred.

Legality of gas-oil pacts questioned

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The California attorney general said Friday that advance payments agreements between utilities and major oil firms and circumstances surrounding proposed development and distribution of Alaskan natural gas "raise serious antitrust questions."

"There is a strong probability based on facts as now known that the funding agreements and the activities of the major gas producers on the North Slope may well constitute violations of federal and state antitrust laws," said the attorney general's office.

"We accordingly have recommended that further facts be ascertained," it added.

The state Public Utilities Commission, which requested an opinion, was told that the attorney general's office may initiate its own antitrust investigation of these agreements and suggested the PUC might want to conduct its own probe.

The PUC last Tuesday voted to consider rescinding, altering or amending two advance payment plans it had approved earlier. One provided for Southern California Gas Co. to pay $640 million interest on a loan arranged by ARCO to develop production of its gas reserve at Prudhoe Bay. In return, the utility would get the right to negotiate for purchase of 60 per cent of that reserve.

Pacific Gas & Electric Co. signed a similar agreement with Exxon calling for payment of $161 million in interest costs and giving PG&E the right to negotiate for 30 per cent of the oil firm's reserves.

The PUC had approved a rate increase for Southern California Gas but had delayed any rate decision for PG&E.

In Sacramento, a resolution was introduced in the Legislature that would ask the PUC to order PG&E and the Southern California Gas Co. to halt collecting a special $1 billion surcharge from ratepayers.

Assemblyman Charles Warren, D-Los Angeles, proposed the legislation and said California utilities used the federal policy as a "convenient loophole to bypass federal regulation of the wellhead price of natural gas."

The resolution asks that the utilities stop collecting for the surcharge pending the outcome of new PUC hearings.

The PUC reopened the matter following a Dec. 31 Federal Power Commission decision to terminate a federal advance payment policy for interstate pipelines.

The attorney general had been asked if a "most favored nation" clause such as contained in the advanced payment agreements would violate antitrust laws. This clause calls for a contract gas sales price at the highest price provided by any other long-term Prudhoe Bay contract for delivering substantial volumes of gas to the lower 48 states.

The PUC had noted this meant the oil companies would not only get the price negotiated for but any higher price received by other producers.

The opinion prepared by Deputy Atty. Gen. Linda Tedeschi said that antitrust laws prohibit any combination, conspiracy, agreement or tacit understanding between competitors to fix, increase, stablize or affect prices in any manner.

Cleaver's bail set at double pre-flight sum

OAKLAND (AP) — Eldridge Cleaver's bail was set at $100,000 Friday, and his attorney claimed the onetime Black Panther party leader lacks funds to fight charges resulting from a 1968 shootout with police here.

Temporary counsel Robert Baxley of San Diego asked for $50,000 bail, the amount forfeited when Cleaver fled the country seven years ago. He argued that the 39-year-old black activist's voluntary return to the country last November "washed out or negated" his original flight.

Replying that "his record indicates that $50,000 was not enough," Alameda County Superior Court Judge Lionel Wilson doubled the original bail, but left open the possibility of a later reduction.

THE JUDGE also continued the arraignment on assault and attempted murder charges until Feb. 10. Baxley had asked the delay, saying Cleaver hasn't decided on an attorney nor raised money to hire one.

Cleaver, known for his fiery oratory in the late 1960s, spoke only once during the half-hour hearing in a tightly secured courtroom. Wearing a moustache and a navy blue leisure suit, he stood and in a low voice waived his right to a speedy trial.

There was little visible support for the former Panther information minister who started the party's international section after fleeing to Algeria and was expelled in 1971. His wife Kathleen and a small group of supporters sat in the front rows of the crowded courtroom.

After the hearing, Mrs. Cleaver told reporters the bail "is not reasonable. It is a major problem."

Noting that money earned from his writings is being held by the Internal Revenue Service, she said she hopes to raise enough money to hire a private attorney.

Mrs. Cleaver said her husband will not resume his relationship with the Panthers and added, "He has no fear he will be harmed by former associates. He has no intention of telling anything about former associates, which is showing them more respect than they have shown him."

THE Panthers have labeled Cleaver a possible "turncoat" and have demanded that he state publicly whether he will become a government informant.

Asked how much support she has found upon return to this country, Mrs.Cleaver ventured that she has found "no hostility towards Eldridge" here or in Southern California.

"He wants to come home and re-establish himself as an American citizen," she added. "He feels he can be completely exonerated."

Cleaver is charged in connection with an April 1968 police-Panthers gunbattle in which a policeman was injured and Panther officer Bobby Hutton was killed. Facing possible revocation of parole from a 1958 assault conviction, Cleaver fled the country in 1968.

Despite court ruling

Early parole hearings to stay

SACRAMENTO (AP) — An official of the state Adult Authority said Friday it would continue setting parole dates as soon as possible after people enter prisons, despite a court ruling that it violates the state's indeterminate sentence law.

"We're going to continue to hear cases as we have in the past," said Wilmer Leon, administrative officer of the authority.

He said the decision announced Thursday by the 3rd District Court of Appeal did not order a return to the old system, when paroles were set after a prisoner had completed most of his minimum term. He said it applied only to the two prisoners who petitioned the court.

The new rules were instituted last March by Adult Authority Chairman Raymond Procunier, who said it was better for prisoners to know as soon as possible when they could expect to get out.

The court said that while there might be good reason for quicker setting of parole dates, state law simply doesn't permit it.

In the decision written by Justice Leonard Friedman, the court said that an inmate's conduct in prison must be considered in fixing his term, and that the new system recognizes it "only as a negative determinant, directing extensions of confinement for post-conviction breaches."

Leon said the decision might be appealed. He said if the state Supreme Court upheld it, the authority might have to reconsider 7,000 parole cases.

One of them involves Sirhan Sirhan, convicted assassin of Sen. Robert Kennedy, who was given a parole date of Feb. 23, 1986.

Gov. Brown last year vetoed a bill which would have revised the law in line with Procunier's new rules, saying it was unnecessary because its provisions were already in effect.

Fine 'lived quiet life, with his cat'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — David Sylvan Fine spent his last months as a fugitive living quietly in a pleasant one-room apartment with a half-dozen plants and a Siamese cat, according to his landlord.

David Cudhea said Friday that the 23-year-old Fine's only apparent interests were the plants and the cat, which he named Camilla, apparently after Camilla Hall—the Symbionese Liberation Army member who died in 1974 in a shootout with Los Angeles police.

FINE, arrested Wednesday in San Rafael, was being held at the San Francisco County jail in lieu of $1 million bail and awaiting his return to Madison, Wisc. He waived a removal hearing Thursday.

He faces federal and state charges that include murder, conspiracy, sabotage, and destruction of government property stemming from the Aug. 24, 1970, bombing of an Army mathematics research center at the University of Wisconsin. One man was killed in the blast.

Cudhea said he rented the book-lined basement apartment five months ago to a man calling himself Will Lewes. Authorities say dental charts identified Lewes as Fine.

"I KEEP trying to square in my mind that that quiet kid we knew as Will, who only seemed to be interested in sports and plants and cats, is the same person who was accused of such a thing," Cudhea told reporters. "He seemed like so many youngsters these days who keep fading in and out of college and in and out of jobs."

Cudhea said he met Fine when the youth answered a notice his wife, Jean, had posted in a Marin County supermarket advertising the $150-a-month apartment.

He told the Cudheas that he was living on unemployment compensation and savings and enrolled briefly at the College of Marin. He liked rock music but played it at a low decibel and occasionally had friends visit.

FINE frequently borrowed books on philosophy and sociology from the home library and never discussed politics, said Cudhea, a free-lance editor.

The arrest of the 5-foot-5 Fine on an anonymous tip prompted FBI agents to search the area for two other fugitives linked to the 1970 bombing, Dwight Armstrong, 24, and Leo F. Burt, 27.

Sandra Good charges judge biased, fears her

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Cultist Sandra Good declared Friday that a federal judge sentenced her innocent roommate and should disqualify himself from her trial because he is biased and fears her.

The 31-year-old follower of convicted mass-murderer Charles Manson told U.S. District Court Judge Thomas MacBride, "You fear for your life from me."

MacBride, who last month sentenced Miss Good's roommate, Lynette Fromme, to life imprisonment for attempting to kill President Ford, said in a firm voice: "I am not biased or prejudiced."

BUT HE delayed a decision on Miss Good's request until she submits it in writing.

Miss Good made her opinions known as she stood at the podium during her arraignment on an expanded federal grand-jury indictment charging that she threatened business leaders in four phone calls.

Susan Murphy, one of Miss Good's roommates before their arrest, is charged along with Miss Good with mailing threatening letters to businessmen.

Over and over again, Miss Good lectured MacBride, telling him he had already castigated her roommate for her ties to Manson and the "X" on her forehead. She said she also had an "X" and was tied to Manson.

"LESS THAN one month ago you sent my sister, Lynette Fromme to life in prison when in fact I know she was not guilty," Miss Good declared.

In November a jury convicted Miss Fromme, 27, of trying to assassinate President Ford in Capitol Park last Sept. 5.

Greeted in Boston by busing foes

Wallace opens campaign

By REMER TYSON
Knight News Service

BOSTON—Alabama Gov. George Wallace Friday came to this city, torn over the emotional school-busing issue, to kick off his third straight campaign for president.

The first event of his 1976 campaign was a presenation to him of a red T-shirt with white lettering that proclaimed: "South Boston is Wallace Country."

The symbolic shirt was presented to Wallace as he got off his airplane, at Logan Airport, by Robert McGrail, a member of the Boston antibusing organization named Restore Our Alienated Rights.

Wallace was greeted by about 50 Bostonians, mostly ROAR members.

At an airport press conference, however, Wallace tried to dispel the notion that he was a single-issue candidate basing his 1976 campaign on antibusing sentiment.

"Im not a one-issue candidate," Wallace told newsmen. "Of course, I'm against busing."

Wallace said that his 1972 presidential campaign was primarily concerned with economic reform and a better tax break for "the great middle class."

Economics and big government will be the key issues in his campaign this year, he said.

"The federal government, in taking over all the phases and aspects of peoples' lives, eventually gets to controlling everything," Wallace said, "from their unions to their businesses, to their farms and also their school children and their pocketbooks. I think that is the main and overriding issue of 1976."

Wallace said, if elected president, he would uphold federal court orders including those concerning busing.

"But if I was the president of the United States," Wallace said, "I certainly wouldn't have the Justice Department on one hand asking for certain type orders in the courts and on the other hand saying I was against a part or a particular phase of programs, say busing."

Because of the controversy centered in busing, Wallace picked the only state that Democrat George McGovern carried in 1972 to crank up Wallace's latest campaign for president.

Wallace was reserved about predicting how well he might do in Massachusetts' presidential primary March 2.

He said he would have difficulty overcoming the adverse "propaganda" that has been spread by the liberal media about him in Massachusetts.

But his staff is expecting him to run among the top candidates.

Pollster Pat Caddell, who did public opinion surveys for McGovern four years ago, disclosed a poll this week that shows Wallace running second to Sargent Shriver, the 1972 Democratic vice presidential candidate and the late President John F. Kennedy's brother-in-law.

The poll showed that Shriver had 18 per cent, Wallace 11 per cent and other candidates with lesser percentages. The poll showed that 41 per cent of Massachusetts voters are undecided.

Byrd runs to give his state 'impact'

New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — Sen. Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia became the 11th announced candidate Friday for the Democratic presidential nomination in an effort, he said, to give his state "greater impact" at the party's nominating convention in July.

The 58-year-old Byrd, who is the Senate's assistant majority leader, announced as expected that he would enter the West Virginia presidential primary on May 11 as well as seek reelection to a fourth term in the Senate.

Byrd's aim, it appeared, is to hold West Virginia's 33 delegates, plus any others he might pick up, for brokerage purposes at the nominating convention in New York City.

When a reporter expressed puzzlement over whether Byrd was running as a favorite son or as a national candidate, the senator replied with a tight smile: "Well, I'm a one-state candidate for the United States Senate. I'm a national candidate for the national ticket."

Reagan listed 1st on Mass. ballot

BOSTON (AP) — Ronald W. Reagan drew top billing on Republican presidential primary ballots in Massachusetts, and a political unknown—Robert L. Kelleher of Montana—drew first place among 12 Democratic hopefuls.

State Secretary Paul Guzzi selected by lot the ballot order for Massachusetts' March 2 primary immediately after the 5 p.m. Friday deadline for withdrawals.

The Republicans will have two candidates—Reagan and President Ford. Five other suggested candidates, including Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, withdrew.

Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace won second place on the Democratic ballot, followed by Ellen McCormack of New York, an antiabortion candidate.

They will be followed, in this order, by former North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, former Sen. Fred R. Harris of Oklahoma, Pennsylvania Gov. Milton J. Shapp, Indiana Sen. Birch Bayh, former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter, former ambassador to France R. Sargent Shriver, Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington and U.S. Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona.

Mrs. McCormack qualified for the ballot on a signature petition and also was added to the list by Rep. Charles F. Flaherty Jr. of Cambridge, chairman of the Democratic State Committee.

Kelleher, a lawyer from Billings, Mont., also was added to the list by Flaherty. Kelleher is an advocate of the British parliamentary form of government as alternative to the United States' congressional system.

Successful candidates in the state primary are entitled to a proportional number of committed delegates to the Republican and Democratic National Conventions.

Earlier, Guzzi and state political leaders had proposed that 23 candidates be placed on the ballot.

Withdrawals were received on the Republican side from Rockefeller, former Texas Gov. John Connally, Commerce Secretary-designate Elliot L. Richardson and Maryland Sen. Charles Mathias.

Democratic withdrawals were from Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, Sen. Frank Church of Idaho, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine and Ralph Nader, consumer specialist.

Primary wins by Ford predicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's campaign director Friday predicted outright victory for Ford in the nation's first five presidential primaries while claiming they are some of challenger Ronald Reagan's strongest states.

Howard H. (Bo) Callaway told a meeting of more than 60 top Ford campaign officials from around the country that the President would beat the former California governor in New Hampshire, "Reagan's best northern state;" Florida, "his best southern state;" Illinois, "his home state;" Massachusetts and North Carolina.

Those primaries occur once a week from Feb. 24 through March 23.

After winning those, said Callaway, "we will have once and for all established that this President has a national constituency, and no longer can people say his only constituency is Grand Rapids."

Callaway avoided any criticism of Reagan in his public comments to the regional and state Ford chairmen and chairwomen. The group met later in closed sessions for more specific briefings on campaign strategy, tactics and the new federal election law.

Callaway told the campaign workers that in case his victory predictions are wrong, the Ford forces are "dug in for the long haul" and the later trail of primaries through states like Ohio and Michigan, "our natural states."

In a meeting with newsmen, Callaway denied he had tried to influence the Justice Department to delay a retrial of former Florida Sen. Edward Gurney until after the Florida primary.

He said he told the White House the trial of Republican Gurney could have a political impact and asked: "Is it appropriate to do anything about it?"

"They said it was not, and I said fine," Callaway said. "It was the proper decision."

African unity meeting

Amin neutral on Angola

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — President Idi Amin of Uganda said Friday the Africans' first priority is to stop bloodshed in Angola and oppose any outside intervention there.

Amin, arriving on the eve of a summit conference of the Organization of African Unity, told reporters it was not up to the organization to endorse any of three factions in Angola.

"It is not for Africa to dictate to Angolans what is to be done by Angolans," he said.

Amin is the current chairman of the OAU and will preside at the emergency meeting of chief executives.

COMMENTING on intervention, Amin said:

"We have not come here to discuss Russia, Cuba or anybody. Any force in Angola — South Africa, Europe, Russia — they are killing Angolans. We condemn everybody, even black Africans, if they are involved."

Amin, wearing a blue air-force uniform with a pistol on his hip, also said he was "very, very happy" with American policy on Angola after he received a letter from President Ford asserting that Washington would not interfere in the former Portuguese colony's internal affairs.

Among dignitaries arriving was Osmany Cienfuegos, secretary of the Cuban cabinet, who led a five-man delegation from Havana. He said he was in Addis Ababa only for bilateral discussions with Ethiopian officials, but the Cubans wore badges entitling them to visit the OAU conference center.

SEVERAL thousand Cuban soldiers are reported in Angola fighting with the Soviet-backed faction.

The OAU has before it two applications for recognition as the legitimate government of Angola, the oil- and mineral-rich west African territory set free by Portugal two months ago.

One is from the Popular Movement (MPLA), whose People's Republic of Angola is supported by the Soviet Union and Cuba. The other is from the National Union (UNITA) and National Front (FNLA), who have formed a battlefield alliance as the Democratic Republic of Angola and have received American and South African aid.

More than 20 African states have recognized the MPLA, and many diplomats predict the OAU will seat MPLA delegates at its conference. Some, however, said the question is so divisive that the three-day summit might not even bring it up.

A NUMBER of African nations have called for coalition government in Angola, but the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug reported Friday that MPLA leader Agostinho Neto has rejected the idea.

Tanjug said Neto told Yugoslav Ambassador Nikola Sosic, who presented his credentials in the MPLA capitol of Luanda, that the coalition idea was a propaganda move aimed at causing "permanent disputes and upheavals among the Angolan people."

UNITA and FNLA spokesmen said they were ready to heed Amin's call for a cease-fire today if the MPLA agrees. A half-dozen other cease-fires have been ignored or have lasted only a few weeks since heavy fighting began last year.

Jews cancel visits to Brazil

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — Some 1,000 American Jews protesting Brazil's United Nations vote to brand Zionism racist have canceled hotel reservations here, two large hotels say. Jewish groups recently launched a similar tourist boycott against Mexico.

Spokesmen for the hotels, the Sheraton and the Intercontinental, said they each had notices of 500 cancellations.

The head of the government tourism agency Embratur, Said Farhat, said the cancellations by American Jews was a passing phenomenon.

"We've heard of about 2,000 cancellations at the most," he said. "This is a limited phenomenon for a country with 140,000 hotel rooms."

Embratur has launched a $1 million campaign to attract tourists to Brazil in 1976.

Jewish groups in the United States are boycotting Mexico because of its vote on the Zionism issue. The Mexican Travel Agents Association in Mexico City says 68,000 individual cancellations have been made in the Pacific resort of Acapulco and another 60,000 in Mexico City. One industry source in Mexico estimated the loss at $4 million to $5 million. Mexico earns about $2 billion a year from tourism.

Tomas Mendelsohn, sales manager for the Sheraton Hotel in Rio de Janeiro, estimated the financial loss for 500 cancellations at about $52,000.

In New York, the Jewish organization B'nai B'rith said it has dropped tours that included stops in Rio de Janeiro. The series of trips began a year ago and was to have run until March 31.

A B'nai B'rith spokesman said 10 to 12 departures were affected and these would have involved 600 persons. He added that the tourists would have stayed at the Sheraton and Intercontinental hotels.

B'nai B'rith said a series of direct flights to Rio de Janeiro was being planned for this year for 1,000 persons but was scrapped when Brazil voted for the Zionism resolution.

B'nai Zion, a Jewish fraternal organization based in New York, said it canceled three tours to Rio for February, March and April. A spokesman said about 150 persons would have gone on each flight.

According to Embratur, 580,000 tourists came to Brazil last year and spent about $400,000.

Farhat expressed the view there would be no widespread boycott of Brazil by Jewish tourists.

Dunlop aides deny he quit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Labor Secretary John Dunlop was reported Friday to be still considering quitting his Cabinet post but aides said he had reached no firm decision.

Dunlop spokesmen denied published reports that the secretary had decided to quit. They said he still was discussing his future with management and labor leaders.

The walkout of labor leaders from the President's construction advisory committee, however, prompted some observers to say that Dunlop has been left with little choice except to resign.

President Ford was described Friday as regretting the action by the nine labor leaders, who were angered over Ford's veto of a bill expanding the picketing rights of construction unions.

White House press secretary Ron Nessen also stated that Ford had received no indication that Dunlop would be leaving the Cabinet.

W. J. Usery, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service and the man whom Ford reportedly would nominate for the Cabinet post if Dunlop quit, said, "to my knowledge he has not advised the President he will resign."

"There's been a lot of discussion about it," Usery said of reports that he would succeed Dunlop, "and until he does resign, certainly I will not comment."

The walkout by the nine labor leaders from the President's Collective Bargaining Committee occurred because they felt Ford double-crossed them by saying he would sign the picketing rights bill and then reversing his position and vetoing the measure.

"I fear that the shrill and emotional pressures of the past few months have now destroyed for a period the possibility of continued labor-management cooperation at the national level on a construction industry-wide basis," Dunlop said in a statement.

December retail sales show 3% gain

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sales by the nation's retail stores climbed 3 per cent in December, the Commerce Department reported Friday.

Commerce said the push came primarily from an 11-per cent advance in sales by automotive dealers. Department store sales for the month rose 6 per cent.

The December advance left the monthly volume of retail sales at $52.1 billion, or about 15 per cent above sales for the same month last year.

Commerce estimated total retail sales for the year amounted to $584.8 billion, a 9-per cent advance over 1974.

The biggest increases in sales over the year were among grocery stores and service stations, 10 per cent each; restaurants, 14 per cent; and automobile dealers and department stores, 9 per cent each.

Prime rate dips to 7% over U.S.

NEW YORK (AP) — More than a dozen banks across the country lowered their prime lending rate a quarter point to 7 per cent Friday.

Taking on the unaccustomed role of industry trend-setter a day earlier, Chase Manhattan Bank had already lowered the rate charged on loans to top-rated business borrowers to 7 per cent.

Early Friday, First National City Bank, the nation's second largest and usually the bank that leads the way for the industry in prime rate changes, dropped its rate to 7 per cent and was promptly followed by banks of varying sizes across the nation.

Eight banks on the West Coast lowered their primes to 7 per cent, among them San Francisco's Bank of America, the nation's largest bank.

In New York, Chemical Bank and Manufacturers Hanover followed Citibank and Chase's example.

Several Midwestern banks in St. Louis, Pittsburgh and other cities also joined in the reduction.

The prime rate does not directly influence consumer or mortgage lending rates, but often provides a clue to where those rates are headed.

Banking analysts expect the new 7 per cent rate to spread further throughout the industry.

Some believe the rate will drop to 6¾ per cent and lower in the coming weeks since the Federal Reserve seems to have taken steps in the money market lately aimed at easing up on credit conditions.

Audit ordered in food stamp crisis

By MICHAEL SATCHELL
Washington Star

WASHINGTON — Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, reacting to disclosure of the misuse of millions of dollars in the food-stamp program, has ordered an immediate audit of the nation's 6,700 vendors that sell food stamps to the public.

This swift official reaction was matched by an immediate response from several middle-level employes of the program. They charged that "lapping" by vendors — the free use of government money — has been going on for years.

Program administrators knew of the abuses, the employes said, but the rule was: "Keep it quiet; don't rock the boat."

THE HARSH assessment of the division's leaders by rank-and-file employes was echoed by a high official of the Agriculture Department. "They just don't have good people in key positions," the official said.

The department's unprecedented investigation will occupy some 200 auditors and investigators and will take about three months to complete, officials indicate.

Neighborhood credit unions, check-cashing outfits and other small businesses that sell the stamps have been targeted as the first priority, with banks and post offices to follow.

Vendors took in $2.6 billion cash during the last fiscal year, and the potential for the illegal use of government funds runs into the hundreds of millions of dollars.

Food-stamp employes will be switched from other assignments in order to complete the investigation, which will include an inventory of how many food stamps the vendors are holding and whether they have been using receipts from their sales for their own purposes instead of depositing the money in the Federal Reserve banks.

"BUTZ IS angry— he wants the mess in the food-stamp division cleaned up fast," a high Agriculture Department official said.

The Washington Star reported that a preliminary check of 18 vendors had uncovered $8.7 million in undeposited receipts from the sales of the stamps. The vendors had been holding onto the accumulated receipts for several months instead of depositing them within 24 hours as required by law.

Auditors investigating these 18 vendors are anxious to learn what the money has been used for, and how much will be recovered. In two cases, sources say, credit unions used the money to make loans, and others paid salaries and other operating expenses with the money.

A St. Louis check-cashing chain was found to have over $2 million in undeposited funds collected over 6 months, and $835,000 of that sum is still missing. The Federal Bureau of Investigation is investigating, and grand-jury action is pending.

TWELVE of the 18 offenders identified by the Agriculture Department are located in Washington. They include a church, a furniture store and credit unions. Together, they were found to have $3.6 million in undeposited receipts when auditors checked their books in November and December.

Disclosure of this latest in a series of major problems within the program also has spurred the department's Food and Nutrition Service to begin hurriedly a long-planned program to computerize the returns on stamp sales and cash deposits, a move that should improve accounting procedures considerably.

Middle-level employes in the food-stamp division insisted that it is rife with cronyism and nepotism and is a haven for incompetents, and that much of the blame for turning food stamps into the worst of the nation's welfare programs lies with poor leadership within the division.

CAUGHT in the middle of the turmoil is Richard Feltner, an assistant secretary of agriculture, whose responsibilities include overseeing the Food and Nutrition Service. Both high- and middle-level opinion on Feltner is that he is an honest and competent man who is trying extremely hard to reform the stamp program.

"The current investigation has brought to light the possible existence of (lapping), but we have intensified our efforts to see what we need to do throughout the entire system to make sure this doesn't happen again in the future," he said.

Major inner cities losing manpower training funds

By PAUL DELANEY
New York Times Service

ST. LOUIS — Fourteen of the 15 largest municipalities in the U.S., including Los Angeles, have lost manpower-training funds under the Comprehensive Education and Training Act, compared with the amounts they received for the same purpose before the enactment of the law in December 1973.

This was disclosed in a report on the act by the Department of Labor. It was the first acknowledgement by the department that there had been a significant drop in funding of job-training programs for the nation's inner cities.

According to the report, more of the funds now are going to suburban and rural areas.

The loss of funds by the inner cities has been a major complaint of mayors, other city officials and civil-rights leaders.

THE STUDY did not name the cities or the amounts they lost, but a department official said in interview that Los Angeles' funding dropped from $24.6 million in the fiscal year 1973-74 to $21.1 million in the present fiscal year.

The official, who did not want his name used, said other examples were: New York, which dropped from $70 million n fiscal 1973-74 to $66.7 in the present fiscal year; Chicago, from $41 million to $33.2 million; Philadelphia, $15.4 million to $12.5 million, and Washington, $17.2 million to $13.9 million.

The report said that "of the 15 largest cities in the United States, as identified in the 1970 census, 14 have funding levels which are significantly less than their earlier year's funding levels."

THE NINE other cities among these 14 are Detroit, Houston, Baltimore, Dallas, Cleveland, Indianapolis, Milwaukee, San Francisco and San Antonio.

Here in St. Louis, which has also lost funds and is typical of the cities suffering losses, Mary Canada, deputy director of the Office of Manpower, said the city had received $7.8 million in the fiscal year 1973-74 but only $6.5 million the next year and $6.4 million in the current fiscal year. She said she expected no change in the trend.

Only San Diego showed a gain in funds, going from $4.1 million before the law was enacted to $4.5 million, the official reported.

The report said that the relative shift away from urban areas was due, in large part, to the fact that the new law, for the first time, provided manpower funds for areas with high unemployment, as opposed to areas with high rates of poverty, which was the chief criterion under the old program. Thus, suburban and rural areas, which had not benefited much from manpower training funds, were eligible for more money because they had high unemployment.

"THE BIGGEST losers in the drop in funds have been community action programs," Mrs. Canada said. "The money is spread out more and now goes to rural and suburban areas. The money is definitely being taken from the city, where the need is, and given to areas of lesser need."

The departmental study questioned whether the new law was serving adequately the people it is supposed to aid. It said that prime sponsors — those governmental units receiving the funds — might be misdirecting training efforts by not providing the skills needed by local businesses. Further, the focus so far has been mainly on providing jobs for laid-off municipal workers.

The new law requires that the money be spent "to the maximum extent feasible" on "those most in need," but it does not designate who is in need; it leaves this up to local officials to determine.

But, the report said, the relative shift of funds to suburban counties and smaller cities and rural areas may have "resulted in broadening the target population base of manpower programs."

IN ANOTHER portion of the report, the study questioned whether the local sponsors "are too fragmented" to provide area-wide planning and coordination.

The report also said: "It is uncertain whether the training conducted by C.E.T.A. prime sponsors meets the standards expected by local business and industry. It appears that insufficient effort has been made to adapt the areas of training or the content and quality of training to the expectations of local employers and the needs of others in the client community."

THE REPORT confirmed studies made by other, independent sources, including an analysis by the National Manpower Policy Task Force, a private organization that studies manpower programs, and an investigation by the New York Times last September.

Among the findings in the department's report were the following:

—The effectiveness of the first year's operation under the act was hindered by "competing national priorities" of providing training for the disadvantaged and creating public service jobs to aid municipal workers laid off during the recession.

—Of 431 prime sponsors, only 30 had previous experience in the operation of manpower programs.

—Use of citizen advisory councils, mandated in the act, has been ineffective. The councils were to help to develop training plans in their areas as a form of citizen participation.

—Training programs to aid veterans failed because military training could not readily be used for civilian employment.

The report concluded that more time and a period of stability were needed to give the act a chance to work. Mrs. Canada agreed.

"It's a good piece of legislation, overall," she said. "It will take time to make it more efficient—that is, if they don't tamper with it too much."

U.S. releases Agnew papers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department on Friday turned over to a federal judge the first batch of papers from its secret files in the 1973 Spiro Agnew investigation.

Delivery of the papers was in response to an order by U.S. District Court Judge June Green that the papers be given to her for determination on whether they can be made public.

"The order has been complied with," said one of Judge Green's law clerks in late afternoon.

The Justice Department was sued by two George Washington University law students who demanded to see the papers under the Freedom of Information Act.

The department resisted on grounds that some of the documents might hinder current investigations in Maryland, or might prejudice the rights of innocent persons.

FTC rules on used-car sales leave pitfalls

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press

The Federal Trade Commission is trying to take some of the risk out of buying a used car, but plenty of pitfalls remain for unwary consumers.

Industry and government experts generally agree that the best way of getting your money's worth is to read all the fine print and know a fair amount about cars — or take along a friend who does.

Sales of used cars have increased as the economy suffered and franchised dealers reported that they sold 12 used cars for every 10 new cars during the first 10 months of 1975.

That doesn't count the cars sold by independent dealers. Nor does it include used cars that change hands in private transactions.

IT IS DIFFICULT TO figure out exactly how many people are buying second-hand autos, because the same used car may be sold and resold during the course of the year.

An FTC spokesman said that an estimated 12.5 million used car sales by dealers are reported every year. Estimates of used car sales on a private basis range from 12 to 38 million, the spokesman said.

Several states have their own laws to protect used car buyers, but the only federal legislation in effect, according to the FTC, is a statute requiring dealers to give an odometer statement, providing the mileage of the car if they know it and the fact that it is unavailable if they don't know it.

The commission has proposed rules, still subject to public comment and hearings, that would require dealers to disclose whatever they know about things such as actual mileage, the nature of prior use and any major repairs performed in reconditioning.

The rules also would prohibit a dealer from making unsubstantiated claims. "You can't say, 'This car just had a motor job,' if you know it didn't," the FTC spokesman explained.

VIOLATIONS OF THE proposed rules — which could take up to 18 months to implement — could bring fines of up to $10,000 a day.

But the proposed rules apply only to dealer sales, not to the millions of private transactions. And the FTC spokesman, while agreeing that "defects are a frequent problem," said the rules would not necessarily require even a dealer to disclose all defects in a car.

An FTC staff recommendation, not issued as a proposed rule, but subject to public comment and possible inclusion in the final regulations, would give buyers the right to have a used car inspected by an outside mechanic. The staff recommended that dealers have the right to send an employe with the customer for the inspection.

"Those who wanted it (information on defects) would pay for it," the FTC spokesman said.

Dealers generally said such a plan would add to used car costs and they expressed fears about the quality of inspection. "It's totally impractical from an expense viewpoint," said a dealers' spokesman.

What can a consumer do to insure he gets a fair deal?

"It's the old relationship of a reputable dealer and the guarantees he would give," said Charles Neely of the 5,000-member National Independent Auto Dealers Association. "There's an old saying in the jewelry business: 'If you don't know your jewels, know your jeweler.' The same thing is true of buying anything. If you don't know used cars, know your dealer. Check on his reputation in the community."

A SIMILAR VIEW CAME from Frank McCarthy of the National Automobile Dealers Association (NADA), which has some 20,000 members — franchised, new-car dealers who generally handle used autos as well. "You ought to deal with a reliable businessman, somebody who's been in business for a while," he said.

(Both dealers groups have voluntary codes of ethics.)

Neely also suggested that buyers check the details of any warranty, that they test drive the car and, if possible, bring along a friend who knows something about automobiles.

What do dealers think of the FTC proposals? "I think they're trying to do the best they can ... (but) I think they're to a great degree regulating American business out of business," Neely said.

He said FTC safeguards can boost costs and added: "The idea of the independent dealer selling used cars is to provide transportation for the blue collar workers ... for the young person just starting out ... or for the family who is buying a second or third car."

William E. Hancock, president of NADA, said the rules are "too imprecise for fair and equitable application by a dealer or salesman in representing the quality, performance, reliability or lack of mechanical defects of a used car..."

U.S. undecided on revising meat grades

WASHINGTON (AP) – Supreme Court Justice Harry A. Blackmun gave the Agriculture Department a green light Friday to put proposed revisions in meat-grading standards into effect.

A department spokesman said no decision had been made, however, on whether to do so or to await action by the full court.

Blackmun denied the application of the National Association of Meat Purveyors and other food-industry groups for a stay of a lower-court order approving the revisions.

ALTHOUGH the Meat Purveyors could refer the matter to one of the other justices, their attorneys said they have no plans to do so.

Still pending before the court, however, is an appeal in which the Consumer Federation of America and other consumer groups are seeking full-scale review of the lower-court decision.

The Meat Purveyors said they also plan to file for a full review of the decision, which was handed down last Nov. 14 by the U.S. Circuit Court in St. Louis.

Harold Carter, an assistant legal counsel for the Agriculture Department, said the department still had its course of action under study.

HE SAID there was nothing to prevent the department from putting the new regulations into effect immediately but that it might wait until the full court has either decided the appeals or declined to hear them.

Consumer groups and some elements of the food industry have complained that the new regulations would result in meat which is less palatable being marketed as prime and choice grade. The meat packers have also contended that the proposed rules would make grading more costly.

Harth warms to Walton work and Previn's baton

By DAVID LEVINSON

William Walton's violin concerto is a big, romantic showpiece for a great violinist — it was written in the late 1930s for Jascha Heifetz — and Sydney Harth made the most of its riches when he played it with the Los Angeles Philharmonic Thursday.

Harth is the orchestra's concertmaster, and he is an extraordinary one, whose spirit probably has as much to do with some of the orchestra's successes as the conducting of Zubin Mehta. Harth is also a soloist of sterling qualities, and in the Walton he had a vehicle that is exactly right for his virtues, which are richness of tone, precise technique and bold command of the architecture of a piece. It is rare for passion and precision to mesh so handsomely as they did in this performance.

WILLIAM WALTON'S music never really caught on in this country, and that is probably to the credit of American musicians and audiences, for his music tends to the flashy and the superficial. The British, who are inscrutable musically, find it moving, and Harth was fortunate to have a British conductor on the podium.

The British conductor was Andre Previn. He has not always been a British conductor. He was born in Berlin, became an eclectic jazz pianist in America when he was 17 and is now a conductor in London.

Previn's jazz piano technique was formidable, and in his earlier jazz days he did some pretty things with it (later, he sank into trivial flashiness). He is now a model British conductor: restrained, musicianly, firmly in command. He provided Harth with an impeccable accompaniment in a work that is orchestral in conception and that demands a virtuoso orchestra and a powerful conductor as well as a virtuoso soloist.

THE PURELY orchestral works on the program — which will be repeated at the Music Center Pavilion at 2:30 p.m. Sunday — were Haydn's Symphony No. 35, in B-flat, and Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 4.

Restraint served the former well. Previn's interpretation was on the dry side, and almost without drama, but it was sensitive.

Restraint did not serve the Tchaikovsky well. The symphony's splashy neuroticism and technical display suffered in Previn's well-mannered presentation with its moderate tempos.

Popularity of houseplants shows little sign of fading

WASHINGTON — Is man's best friend now the houseplant?

It doesn't bark, leave hair on the sofa, rip up furniture, howl in the night, rub against an unwilling leg, or want to have its ears scratched.

A houseplant can't fetch the newspaper off the front lawn or play with a ball of yarn. But if population proves popularity, houseplants have it all over dogs and cats.

That's one idea that comes from the nation's sudden obsession with leafy greenery, a craze that has turned 1975 into the Year of the Houseplant, and 1976 probably even more so, the National Geographic Society says.

IN 1974 Americans bought $111 million worth of houseplants, according to the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists. That's an increase of 64 per cent over the year before, continuing a green population explosion that started in 1970.

When all the leaves are counted, 1975 is expected to show that more houseplants than ever have won hearts and homes. Houseplant people have even greater hopes for 1976.

Dr. Henry Cathy of the Department of Agriculture sees at least three causes of this greening of America: disgust with today's plastic world; a yen to get back to nature, satisfying an inborn ruralness in almost everyone; and hanging baskets.

HE SAYS America's houseplant hiatus in the first half of the century coincided with the building of houses with windowsills too narrow for setting pots on. Then the hanging basket was rediscovered and houseplants again could have a permanent place in the sun.

Once houseplants seemed only companions to maiden aunts in Victorian parlors. There were cascades of ferns, spearthrusts of mother-in-law's tongue, and dusty rubber plants.

Now even the "biggest aspidistra in the world" would be upstaged by the profusion of plants, both exotic and ordinary, taking over offices, shops, and stores, as well as living rooms and kitchens.

"Today you can bring home New Guinea," says an amazed botanist, ticking off dozens of tropical plants sold in neighborhood supermarkets and hardware, drug, appliance, and even liquor stores.

NEW LEAFS, Green Thumbs, Gay Blades, Good Earths, and other similarly named plant boutiques — so called to differentiate them from florists also selling cut flowers — are mushrooming everywhere.

Some plant stores offer hospitalization for sick philodendrons and the like, and at least one girl with a sympathetic potside manner makes house calls.

Many believe the best way to bring a healthy flush of green to a favorite plant is to speak kindly to it, maybe sing a little, and shield it from thoughts of violence and from dogs.

You're invited if you can find it

WASHINGTON (AP) — Several thousand persons invited to attend regional hearings on President Ford's proposals to make government departments more responsive to consumers wound up being asked to the wrong meetings.

A spokesman for the Office of Consumer Affairs said Friday that the problem had "something to do with the machine" mixing up zip-code listings.

GARDENING

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

CARNATION.........a fragrant flower

A new hybrid carnation Juliet won the bronze medal award All America Selections. The old-fashioned fragrant red-flowered plant grows about a foot high and spreads to around 14 inches in diameter. It can be grown as specimen plants in pots, too.

Gardener can easily grow carnations providing he sets out the plants at the proper depth, is hard-hearted in snapping out the tops several times, and heartlessly cuts down into the leafy branch growths as he cuts the blossoms for table decoration.

PROPER planting can be handled two ways. Naturally, poor soil should be prepared by mixing it with some organic amendment plus bone meal or flower-fruit fertilizer in the hole and again with soil over it.

The top of the root ball must be a quarter of an inch above the surrounding soil level, if the plant is set out in a heavy clay soil. This is done to avoic water standing around the base of the trunk.

Carnations, Pinks, Sweet Williams of the Dianthus family all hate to have water standing around their trunks, because the plants rot off at that area.

Many good gardeners who set out carnations ffor the first time wonder why they can't grow them successfully. They can grow lovely camellias, rhododendrons, azaleas and have good results with cymbidiums, but not carnations — unless they realize why carnations rot off if water stands around the plant trunks.

Plants may be set level with the surrounding garden soil in a well-draining type of soil.

A furrow at the inside edge of the plant hole helps prevent water from standing around the base of the trunks.

NOW comes the important training to force carnations to produce many more branches. Most new carnations purchased at nurseries usually have only one branch. The six-inch branch top should be snapped off. This doesn't mean the individual leaves, but a portion of the branch itself.

Snapped off thusly, it will usually produce two new branches. Those branch tops, too, should be snapped off when they're about six inches long. Each snapping doubles the amount of growth.

The other equally important factor in forcing new growth for future flowers is to cut the branch down into the leafy growth. Such cutting forces additional growth. Most important of all, the plant stays bushy, and not gangling and sprawly.

CYCLAMEN have no fragrance but they put out lots of flowers. Christmas gift plants such as cyclamen, azaleas, poinsettias, and other indoor house plants need to be watered more carefully. First of all, the fancy wrappers around the pots tend to keep the clay pots moist longer. Also those containers must have a hole in the bottom to allow drainage.

Gift plants soon become sickly due to too much moisture and possible excessive shade. Plants should be in an area where they get lots of indirect light.

A cyclamen can be kept indoors if gardener keeps the plant in a cool room, and doesn't let it go dormant, but keeps it watered and lightly fed at monthly intervals with a flower-fruit fertilizer.

Azaleas and poinsettias should be planted in the garden. The poinsettias need protection from frost.

CLUB NOTES

The Naples Island Garden Club will meet at the Gloria Dei Lutheran Church Tuesday, at 12:30 p.m. Members and guests will leave from the church for a tour of El Dorado Park. Everyone is requested to bring a sack lunch. Liquid refreshment will be provided.

The Long Beach Parent Chapter of the American Begonia Society will meet Sunday at 1:30 p.m. in the Community Room of the Coast Federal Savings and Loan Association Building, 6241 Spring Street. The speaker will be Gil Estrada, a member of the Begonian staff. He will show slides and discuss begonias. Refreshments will be served and visitors are welcome.

Farm population still on decline

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's farm population continued to shrink between 1970 and 1974, with young people and blacks leading the decline, the government said Friday.

The farm population declined by an average of 1.2 per cent per year in the four-year period, according to the report by the Census Bureau and the Agriculture Department.

Preliminary figures also indicate a sharp drop of 8 per cent between 1974 and 1975 in the overall farm population, but officials said one year's figures were not enough to indicate a trend.

In 1970 there were 9.7 million people living or working on farms, compared with 9.3 million in 1974 and 8.9 million in 1975.

Blacks and other minorities on farms showed an annual drop of 9 per cent in the 1970-1974 period, officials said, declining in number from 938,000 to 655,000.

Vera Banks, an Agriculture Department statistician, said the reason for this decline was not clear, but she noted that automation in cotton harvesting and the recession hit poor black farmers first.

Members of farm families below the age of 14 dropped 20 per cent from 1970 to 1974, the report said, while those over 14 remained about the same.

Mrs. Banks said growing numbers of older farm workers were taking advantage of retirement benefits, for which they were not previously eligible.

She said there has been some migration from farms to urban areas, but the most significant factors are increased retirements and a decline in the birth rate among farm families.

The report said that there were 107 males for every 100 females on farms, while in the general population there were only 93 males for every 100 females.

FDA again eyes controls on DES

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration said Friday it will once again try to forbid use of the drug DES to fatten livestock because of fears that cancer-causing residues are carried in meat for the marketplace.

DES, or diethylstilbestrol, is a synthetic version of the female hormone estrogen. Doctors sometimes prescribe it for women suffering menopausal or other gynecological difficulties, while farmers and feedlot operators have used it widely for two decades to make their cattle and sheep gain weight more rapidly.

The FDA's proposed ban would not apply to human medical uses, although the drug is under considerable fire in that regard as well. The agency does intend, however, to require a cancer warning label on DES prescriptions as well as other estrogen products.

DESPITE federal rules designed to guarantee that no trace of the drug is left in livestock prior to slaughter, the FDA said that improved detection methods demonstrate that residues occasionally show up anyway in the animals' livers and kidneys.

And that, contends the FDA, is reason enough for an outright ban on the use of DES in livestock.

Laboratory studies have long established that DES can cause cancer in test animals when fed in large doses.

Those results prompted the FDA to originally ban DES in livestock three years ago, but the move was overthrown by a federal court on grounds that the agency hadn't given the manufacturers a fair chance to argue their case.

"Today's proposal," said an FDA spokesman, "gives manufacturers of DES 30 days to request a hearing. If no request is received, FDA will at the end of the 30 days finalize withdrawal of the drug. If a hearing is requested ... it will be held as soon as possible."

LEGISLATION is now before Congress that would not only ban DES for livestock but sharply reduce its medical uses to emergency purposes — and only with signed consent of the patient.

The drug is now authorized for such things as easing estrogen deficiency in menopause or after a hysterectomy, for shrinking milk glands after pregnancy, for easing internal itching, for breast cancer and cancer of the reproductive organs of both men and women.

Though not legally marketable for the purpose, it is known that some doctors prescribe DES as a "morning after" birth control drug. Both the FDA and congressional advocates say they are willing to authorize such use only in extreme circumstances, such as rape and incest cases.

The FDA argues, however, that such controls should be kept under its administrative realm — primarily through labeling requirements, while Congress is considering criminal strictures.

The FDA had served notice a month ago that it would move ahead on its own, meanwhile, to ban DES in livestock.

SINCE the prior ban was upset by the courts early in 1974, the agency said there have been "continued finds of DES residues" in butchered cattle and sheep.

That wasn't supposed to happen under the current requirement, previously regarded as adequate by Agriculture Department scientists, that producers withdraw the drug from any animal at least 14 days prior to slaughter.

But new and "highly sensitive" detection devices used by the Agriculture Department have found the illegal residues in 36 out of 4,371 animals tested, a rate of about eight-tenths of one per cent, since DES was reinstated, said the FDA.

The FDA noted that, under previous — and still official — detection methods, the residue would have been found in only one of the 36 animals that had it. The agency therefore said it would order the old system of testing revoked.

According to the Agriculture Department, no traces of DES have been found in the muscle tissue or red meat of animals, only in livers and occasionally in kidneys.

Parcel post stopped again to Turkey

WASHINGTON (AP) — Parcel post service to U.S. military bases in Turkey will be suspended again today, the Postal Service announced Friday.

Service was first suspended at Turkey's demand after Congress voted a cutoff in military aid to Turkey in February, another federal source said.

The aid embargo was partially lifted in October, and the Turkish government agreed in November to permit parcel post service for the holiday season.

That allowed Christmas packages to get through to U.S. servicemen and women stationed in Turkey. The source said the United States was not sure at the time whether the relaxation was temporary.

But Turkey demanded that the suspension be resumed, the source said, adding that the Turkish government gave no specific reason.

FDA eyes ban on Red No.2 food dye

WASHINGTON (AP) — Red Dye No. 2, the nation's most widely used food coloring, apparently causes cancer in laboratory rats that consume high dosages of the dye, according to a new study.

If the study is accepted by the Food and Drug Administration, it could result in a nationwide ban.

"It appears that feeding ... Red No. 2 (to rats) at a high dosage results in a statistically significant increase in a variety of malignant neoplasms (tumors)," Dr. David W. Gaylor said in a memo accompanying an analysis given the FDA.

Gaylor is chief biostatistician at the National Center for Toxological Research.

The dye is used in foods, drugs and cosmetics. But it generally is listed on products as food coloring rather than as Red Dye No. 2 and consumers would have no way of knowing what kind of dye they are consuming.

Fourteen of 44 rats given high dosages of the dye develped a variety of malignant tumors, according to the study. Of the group of 44 rats given low dosages, only four developed cancers.

The General Accounting Office said in October that the FDA has postponed a decision on the dye's safety 14 times since 1963 at the request of the food or cosmetic industries.

The GAO recommended that the government move quickly either to assure that the dye is safe or to take it off the market. Gaylor's analysis is one of the studies undertaken for the FDA's evaluation of the dye.

The FDA is expected to review the findings within 10 days.

If Gaylor's research is correct, said Dr. Lloyd Tepper, chairman of the FDA's toxicology committee, "then it would seem the (FDA) commissioner's course is to ban" Red No. 2.

FDA Commissioner Alexander M. Schmidt said two weeks ago that he was unaware of any evidence that the dye caused cancer in test animals. He reportedly was unaware of Gaylor's findings when he made the statement.

'The Best of Sail' a must for marine buffs

The Best of Sail. Text by Basil Lubbock. Illustrated by Jack Spurling. Introduction by Alan Villiers. Grosset and Dunlap, $35.

A panorama of the finest sailing ships from 1850 to World War I, this collection of brilliant paintings by Jack Spurling, reproduced from the covers of the famous British magazine Blue Peter, is a delight for the maritime buff. Basil Lubbock's lively text encompasses the history, lore and legend, and the drama of the sailing ship. — N.

The Fate of a Nation: The American Revolution Through Contemporary Eyes. By William P. Cumming and Hugh Rankin. Phaidon (Praeger), $25.

The excitement of a new nation being born, the passion of political controversy, the roar of battle, all are woven into a fascinating whole in this beautifully illustrated volume based on battle reports, letters and jornals of the American Revolution. — N.

Hollywood Players: The Forties. By James Robert Parish and Lennard DeCarl. Arlington House, $25.

Two film historians add a superb volume to Arlington House's parade of first-rate movie histories and biographies. The war years saw Hollywood producing some of its best escapist pictures and realistic war films, and the authors have picked out 83 of the most noted actors and actresses of the time, detailing their personalities, lives and films, and probing, warts and all, the Hollywood system. There are nearly 300 superb illustrations. — H.

John Sloan: Paintings, Prints, Drawings. By David Scott, Watson-Guptill, $29.95.

John Sloan (1871-1951) was one of America's most brilliant painters, perhaps best known for his realistic scenes of city life. He was a leader of The Eight, stigmatized as the Ashcan School because of its opposition to academism. David Scott gives us the most thoroughgoing survey of Sloan's work we have had, with 120 black and white reproductions and 48 full color plates of Sloan's work in every genre, including his powerful social protest drawings. — H.

Hollywood's Hollywood: The Movies About the Movies. By Rudy Behlmer and Tony Thomas. Citadel, $19.95.

A unique book about Hollywood — a panorama of the 200 movies that have been about the movies, the movie colony, its romances and its scandals. Long before "A Star Is Born" there were pictures like "Merton of the Movies," to name just one. Serious films and spoofs, they're all here; going back to 1908. The big volume is elaborately illustrated. — N.

Art in Vienna 1898-1918. By Peter Vergo. Phaidon (Praeger), $27.50.

At the turn of the century art in Vienna had become stagnant. Then came the Secession group, radical, brash, explosive, and art was a whole new ballgame in Vienna. Painters like Klimt, Schiele, Kokoschka, men like Adolf Loos, Otto Wagner and Josef Hoffman in architecture and the applied arts soon made Vienna a great art center again. Peter Vergo's lushly illustrated account of a score of golden art years in Vienna is a treasure for the art lover. — N.

SCIENCE FICTION OF THE 30's, Edited with historical commentary by Damon Knight. Bobbs-Merrill, $12.50.

The 1930's were truly a golden age of science fiction, and fans of the genre will find a great many pleasurable moments in the 18 stories selected by Damon Knight, tales by such sciende fiction masters as Murray Leinster, Stanley G. Weinbaum, Frank Kelly, L. Sprague de Camp, Lester del Rey and Manly W. Wellman. These writers were giving a good account of such things as moonships, space suits and lasers quite some time before scientists made them into realities.

The illustrators of the tales were depiciting these matters with amazing prophetic similarity. Original illustrations for these new forgotten stories appear with the tales in the Knight collection. Knight gives us a fascinating account of science fiction's development.

INSIDE MONTE CARLO. By Stanley Jackson. Stein and Day, $12.50.

Once there were a handful of goats and a few olive trees on a barren rock called Monaco. Then in 1862 Francois Blanc built a casino there. Today Monte Carlo the playground of the famous and infamous. Somerset Maugham called it "a sunny place for shady people." Stanley Jackson's "Inside Monte Carlo" is an entertaining social history of the gambling principality where Kaiser Wilhelm II lost 100,000 francs with his "infallible" system and never came back, and Sarah Bernhardt lost a fortune in three hours.

CREATIVE EMBROIDERY: A Complete Guide. By Anne Spence. Viking Studio Books, $14.95.

As is the case with all Viking Studio books, "Creative Embroidery" is a work of art in itself. It is immensely practical as well; Anne Spence discusses every step connected with creative embroidery, from color design to fabric preparation; techniques, stitchery, mounting and lining. As a bonus there's a section on allied crafts.

THE MODERN FIREPLACE. By Jacques Dehaigts. Van Nostrand Reinhold, $30.

This bounteously illustrated handsome book will benefit architects and homeowners alike, with its innumerable examples of different shapes and of integrating the fireplace into modern interiors. There are 98 color illustrations and 69 in black-and-white, besides 76 plans and 14 figures. Jacques Debaigts is a noted French interior architect and interior decorator.

No funds for L.B. building

From Our State Bureau

SACRAMENTO — No construction funds are included in Gov. Brown's 1976-77 budget for the state building waiting to be built in Long Beach, but the spending plan does offer criteria to guide the building's planners.

"The design of new state office buildings must be responsive to at least five concerns: human, environmental, cost, social and community," the budget states.

"TO BE humanly responsive, facilities will be smaller-scale, less institutional, using softer and warmer materials and integrated with usable and inviting open spaces.

"To be environmentally responsive, architects must recognize that the era of cheap energy is over and use common-sense designs for local conditions and climate which would minimize the need for energy-intensive, polluting systems. For example, designs should use recessed, shaped and operable windows, sheltered arcades and breezeways, shaped courtyards and extensive landscaping.

"To be cost-responsive, careful architectural design can realize up to 80 per cent reduction in energy-operating costs by using less monolithic materials and avoiding glass and steel towers.

"To be socially responsive, smaller increments of construction mean more adpatability to future uses, greater participation by smaller contractors through unit bidding, and more state encouragement of affirmative action in the building process.

"TO BE community-responsive, state offices in downtown locations would intermix state and private uses in single buildings and promote diversity of use through time.

"Design can be kept direct, personal, and small-scale so it is responsive to change and correction, because now, both humanity and nature have become victims of institutionalized bigness. Many systems are best designed around the most coherent, smallest and most independent components possible."

The language is from the new state architect, Sim Van der Ryn.

In the current fiscal year, $354,000 was appropriated for preliminary working drawings for the Long Beach state office building. Finance Director Roy Bell said it was not expected that construction could be begun before the 1977-78 fiscal year in view of the state's financial situation.

$25 million for parks proposed

From Our State Bureau

SACRAMENTO — Gov. Brown has proposed that $25 million in state funds be used to trigger development of urban parks.

"It is planned," Brown said, "that legislation will require that local government provide minimum matching amounts for all acquisition and development projects, and require them to assume operational responsibilities for all projects."

He did not elaborate on how much was meant by "minimum matching funds."

The program, he said, "is designed to meet the demand for more outdoor recreation opportunities in the more populated areas of our state, where 85 per cent of the people live and where a 30 per cent deficiency in open space and recreation areas exist."

He proposed that the state allocate another $50 million to the project during the next two fiscal years.

Also in his 1976-77 budget proposal, Brown suggested that the state provide $2 million to Los Angeles County and $2.2 million to Orange County to help finance county park operations.

No new funds were proposed for acquisition, construction, or other development of Los Angeles or Orange County beaches, but the budget did include an increase of $173,960 over the current fiscal year for increased staffing at Bolsa Chica State Beach.

BUDGET

The University of California received $57 million less than the $701 million it asked for, and the California State University and Colleges received $49 million less than the $675 million it said it needed.

But the item certain to be the most controversial when the Assembly and Senate budget committees start hearings on the proposal next week is the $65 pay-increase proposal for all state employes except highway patrolmen.

The powerful California State Employes Assn. was expected to firmly oppose the proposal, and Brown indicated, during a press briefing, he was ready to battle vigorously in its behalf.

"If inflation is the reason — apart from merit and step increases — to give a pay increase, then it seems logical to help the most those hurt by inflation the most," he said.

Lower-income state employes must spend most of their salaries for food and other necessities, he said.

But high-income employes, including university teachers and administrators, doctors, attorneys and judges, are not expected to be pleased at a salary increase of 4 percent or less, which is what the $65 a month or $780 a year would amount to.

Highway patrolmen last year succeeded in persuading the Legislature and the governor that their salaries should be tied in with other law-enforcement salaries, so their increase will average about $125 a month.

Along with his salary proposal benefitting the lowest-paid state employes, the governor also suggested that the incomes of all Californians earning $5,000 or less, or $10,000 in the case of a joint return, be free from taxation.

Presently, salaries under $4,000 and $8,000, respectively, are exempt. The proposal would cost about $50 million but would be offset by the tax revenues from the many Californians expected to move into higher tax brackets as a result of the economic upturn.

"The 1973-75 recession is over," the budget document stated.

"We are coming out of the deepest recession since the thirties," Finance director Roy Bell said. "Such recoveries usually last at least two years.

"We anticipate that for the first time in several years a wage earner's increased income will exceed the cost-of-living increase."

Despite the optimistic outlook, the budget for the Department of Benefit Payments — it used to be called "welfare" — is up by $369.4 million. The actual case load of needy families is down, an aide to Bell explained, but cost-of-living increases and large increases in aid to the aged, blind, and disabled account for the large budget hike.

The Legislature has about five months to act on the budget.

DOCTORS' SLOWDOWN

pinching larger, metropolitan facilities.

But if community hospitals were faltering, Tripi said heavy caseloads were putting a strain on the county system.

He said officials at County-USC Medical Center and Harbor General Hospital—two of the county facilities most swamped with admissions of patients who otherwise might have gone to private hospitals—were sending some patients to Rancho Los Amigos Hospital in Downey and Long Beach General Hospital in an effort to ease the load.

The eight county hospitals together have a "budgeted bed capacity" of 3,761, Tripi said. He said that number can be stretched by about "1,000 licensed beds" if needed.

IF THAT happens, he said, the county will temporarily hire trained medical personnel to augment the already weary county hospital staffs.

He said medical workers who have been laid off could qualify for the temporary jobs and urged interested persons to call officials at a special 24-hour "hotline" set up to screen prospective temporary employes. The number is (213) 974-7951.

Tripi warned, however, that the "hotline" has been set up to screen qualified applicants and that calling officials does not mean an automatic job. He said when additional employes are needed, applicants will be referred to various county hospitals for further processing.

He said persons likely to be hired include doctors, dentists, registered nurses, X-ray and lab techncians, ambulance attendants, orthopedic and surgical technicians, nurse anesthetists, pharmacists, occupational and physical therapists, critical care nurses and surgical nurses.

Ford calls summit on intelligence

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford has called his top foreign policy, national security and White House advisers to a meeting today to discuss recommendations he will propose to Congress for changing the nation's intelligence operations.

Ford has been working on the reorganization for more than a year in the wake of disclosure of irregularities in intelligence operations of such agencies as the FBI and CIA.

Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Friday that Ford and the advisers probably will work out a timetable at the session for presenting the recommendations to Congress.

But no announcements are expected today because it is a very sensitive and highly classified area, Nessen said.

The session this afternoon is expected to last as long as two hours or more, Nessen said, and will include a discussion of foreign intelligence issues, including oversight and restrictions, organization and management, the relationship between the executive and Congress on intelligence-gathering matters and other items.

The Senate intelligence committee, meanwhile, is drafting a bill that would create a new congressional committee which would have to be informed before any U.S. intelligence agency could undertake a covert action.

The bill is expected to meet White House opposition. Administration officials who have seen the preliminary bill say it would seriously erode the president's power to conduct foreign policy.

Kissinger still target

RESTON, Va. (AP) — Retired Adm. Elmo R. Zumwalt Jr., former chief of Naval Operations, Friday continued his attack on Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger who, the admiral said, has "badly misled the public" about Soviet behavior.

In a speech to a meeting of Associated Press Virginia newspaper executives, Zumwalt said, "By failing to report accurately Soviet behavior contrary to both the concept and the specific agreements of detente, including SALT (Strategic Arms Limitation Talks), he (Kissinger) has created a euphoria concerning the state of the relationships existing between the USSR and the U.S."

Zumwalt, an undeclared candidate for the Senate from Virginia, said "by striving to deal with the symptoms of the disease in Angola instead of dealing with the disease (Soviet policy objectives) itself, in Moscow, Kissinger insures that the disease will flourish — i.e., that misbehavior will increase and proliferate to other areas and other policy interests, unchecked by realistic U.S. public opinion."

Clothing valued at $900 was taken from the automobile of Donald L. Bearor, 3060 Long Beach Blvd., while it was parked near his home, police said Friday.

Chinese leaders reported meeting

By FOX BUTTERFIELD
New York Times Service

HONG KONG — Foreign diplomats in Peking reported Friday that there was a large gathering in the Great Hall of the People following the death of Premier Chou En-lai, touching off speculation that China's leaders may have already begun discussions on filling the vacancies created by his death.

Chou, China's long-time senior administrator and the country's most skilled diplomat, died of cancer Thursday at 78.

Chou's funeral Jan. 15 will be private, according to Hsinhua, the Chinese press agency, "in accordance with China's custom and protocol reform."

Analysts here noted that China's top officials usually hold private memorial services for their dead colleagues. The practice in part may reflect a desire for simplicity, in keeping with China's revolutionary traditions.

ALTERNATIVELY, the Chinese may have felt unable to handle the flood of foreign dignitaries who would like to attend the funeral. The decision to bar foreigners, despite Chou's international stature, could also be a reflection of China's long tradition of ethnocentrism.

Chou's death, following the deaths in the last nine months of two other members of the nine-man standing committee of the politburo, has left several major posts open. Chou himself was premier, the first ranking vice-chairman of the party and a member of the politburo standing committee.

Three of the nine standing committee posts are now unfilled, while two of the six surviving members are in their 80s and two in their 70s. Moreover, Wang Hung-wen, who is now the second-ranking figure in the party hierarchy after Chairman Mao Tse-tung and the only top leader under 60 years old, has been in something of a political eclipse this year.

THERE WAS no confirmation from Peking what the meeting at the Great Hall of the People was about. Chinese practice is not to announce party or government congresses until after they are over.

But analysts earlier reported that two members of the politburo from nearby Kwangtung Province did not take part in regular New Year's day festivities in Canton and might therefore have gone to Peking knowing Chou was dying. The two were Wei Kuo-ching, the newly named first party secretary of Kwangtung, and Hsu Shih-yu, the military commander.

A meeting of the politburo would normally proceed a full meeting of the Central Committee, which in theory should approve new party appointments.

Occasions like funerals, where the top leaders gather in Peking, have often been used by China to convoke party meetings.

Chou's death led to no noticeable disruptions in China or here in Hong Kong, and Peking seemed determined to carry on with business as usual. That seemed to be a form of tribute to Chou's success in rebuilding a strong, if not fully unified, Chinese leadership following the turmoil of the Cultural Revolution.

FLAGS flew at half-staff in Peking and over British government offices and banks in the colony here. But that was one of the few outward signs of Chou's death. Chinese radio stations maintained their regular scheduled programs.

Attention now shifts to whether the interim leadership team Chou seemed to put together at the National People's Congress last January and the policies of stability and economic growth which he espoused will continue after his demise.

Foremost in this transitional group is Teng Hsiao-ping, the ranking deputy premier who has been administering China's day-to-day affairs over the past year. He now becomes the obvious, if by no means the certain, choice to succeed Chou as premier.

Teng has moved rapidly to consolidate his power over the last half year by appointing a large number of his own followers or like-minded party veterans to key provincial posts. But Teng, who was denounced during the Cultural Revolution as a "demon" and a "freak" and then purged, presumably has many enemies.

ANALYSTS here are watching the funeral arrangements and possible party meetings carefully to see if they offer up any clues to Teng's fortunes. He is now only the fourth-ranking member of the party, after Mao, Wang, the youthful Shanghai radical, and Yeh Chien-ying, the 78-year-old minister of defense.

With Mao's own health frail, Wang would, by protocol, be expected to preside over the memorial service, as he did last month for the late party leader Kang Sheng. But if Teng should preside, it would be an indication that he was showing what an analyst here termed "real muscle."

L.A. River now least-favored RTD-line route

By DON BRACKENBURY
Staff Writer

The route down the Los Angeles River, which unofficially has always been considered the one for any rapid-transit line to Long Beach, now appears the least favored of three alternatives being considered by the City Council's transportation committee.

A route down the west city limits, following the rights-of-way of the Union Pacific Railroad and Terminal Island Freeway, seems the first choice, based on preliminary city staff reports and committee discussion Friday.

Even a suggested route which would run as a subway beneath Long Beach Boulevard south from Willow Street was preferred to the river route.

The committee authorized the staff to continue working with the Southern California Rapid Transit District, which Wednesday voted to apply for $4.4 million in federal aid for preliminary studies of the "starter line" between Long Beach and downtown Los Angeles.

The three committee members present, Chairwoman Renee B. Simon and Councilmen Don Phillips and Wes Carroll Jr., voted, however, to recommend that the City Council urge the RTD to study the entire transit "corridor" from Long Beach to Canoga Park, not just the Long Beach-Los Angeles segment.

Los Angeles County Supervisor Baxter Ward expressed concern Thursday that if the RTD sticks with its decision to study only the Long Beach-Los Angeles segment, it will not get the federal funds.

The transportation committee also agreed to meet weekly for the next few weeks to keep abreast of developments.

As the proposed transit line approaches Long Beach, it would follow the old Pacific Electric right-of-way until it reached the Long Beach Freeway near Dominguez Street. From this point, the three alternate routes are:

— Southwest along the Union Pacific Railroad right-of-way and later the Terminal Island Freeway right-of-way down the west city limits to approximately Anaheim Street, then southeast along the Southern Pacific right-of-way to the Los Angeles River and then downtown either on Third or Seventh streets.

— South on either the east or west bank of Los Angeles River to approximately the Shoemaker Bridge, entering the downtown area on either Third Street or Seventh Street.

— Continuing southeast on the Pacific Electric right-of-way to Willow Street, then south on Long Beach Boulevard to downtown, but changing from surface to subway at approximately Willow Street.

The major problem with the Los Angeles route, said King Cushman, city transportation consultant, is the expense of carrying the transit line beneath the bridge overpasses, but there also is a problem of access, because the river forms a "180-degree barrier."

In addition, said Cushman, if the route were brought down the east bank of the river, the required right-of-way and sites for stations would require elimination of a large number of residences.

"Going down Long Beach Boulevard underground has got to be so expensive, it would be unreal," commented Carroll.

Cushman agreed and said construction estimates for such a subway range from $25 million to $50 million per mile. The federal Urban Mass Transportation Administration favors a "minimum of subway" construction in any project, he said.

The route down the west city limits would, for the most part, be over land now vacant, helping curb costs, and would be of value to the proposed West Long Beach Industrial Redevelopment Area, he said. In addition, it will provide easier links to the Wilmington-San Pedro areas.

Speaking for the Planning Commission, Ellis K. "Bud" Crow said it does not favor a river alignment, and called the westerly route "a low-cost alternative."

"We believe very strongly that this transportation system, if built, will have very strong impacts on Long Beach — land use, value, social and, of course, transportation impacts," Crow said. "Those impacts will be very long-lasting."

"The initial cost of the system may, in the end, turn out to be the least important to the people of Long Beach," Crow said. "The long-range impacts may be the most important."

Cushman told the committee he expects the initial analysis of the alternate routes to be completed by the RTD and returned to the city by the end of February.

$10 million for campus work eyed

From Our State Bureau

SACRAMENTO — Construction funds totaling more than $10 million have been proposed for Long Beach-area universities and colleges in Gov. Brown's 1976-77 state budget.

California State College, Dominguez Hills, is the largest single recipient, with $4.9 million allocated, including $4 million for construction of a physical education facility. Other allocations include $318,000 to equip a classroom office building, $289,000 to equip the theater arts building, and $325,000 to construct parking facilities.

Colleges in Orange County were allocated a total of $4,356,600, with Golden West College to get $1.8 million to finance working drawings and construction of a 22,322-square-foot classroom, laboratory, and office building.

Orange Coast College is to get $2.2 million for construction of a chemistry building and $369,100 for an addition to its business education building.

The University of California campus at Irvine will receive $1,061,000 if the governor's budget is approved. The funds will be used for a variety of construction projects, including $290,000 for planning and construction of surface parking facilities.

The state funded $7.4 million worth of projects at Long Beach State University during the current fiscal year, but for 1976-77 the school will receive only $629,750 for capital outlay.

The budget includes $31,900 for an addition to the auto technical laboratory at Los Angeles Harbor College.

Except for the allocations proposed for Golden West, Orange Coast, and Harbor, no new construction funds were budgeted for community colleges in the area.

LONG BEACH ANTIQUE SHOW: FUN TO LOOK EVEN IF YOU CAN'T AFFORD ANY

Inflation not stopping buyers

Antique show opens in L.B.

By JOANNE NORRIS
Staff Writer

Like every other commodity from medical malpractice insurance to marmalade, antiques and their younger sisters, the collectibles, have grown fat in the price-tag department.

But unlike other expensive items, antiques are fun to look at even if you can't afford to buy.

SOME 110 dealers from as far away as Beaver Dam, Wis., and Philadelphia currently are treating the public to the fun of looking during a four-day antique show at the Long Beach Arena. There is everything from a framed collection of Sonja Henie paper dolls to priceless cut glass and silver.

The 24th annual show and sale, which began Thursday and continues through Sunday, has more than $3 million worth of decorator and collector items for display and sale, according to Mark Sekulich, who produces the show with his son David.

Sekulich said although things cost more this year, people nevertheless are spending more.

Oak furniture has doubled in price in the past two years, Sekulich said. And dolls and jewelry may have increased even more. A 15-inch Shirley Temple doll, which probably cost about $9.95 back in 1938, is priced in the show at $130. Older dolls, which a few years back cost $250, have gone as high as $2,500, Sekulich added.

ROLLTOP desks, found four years ago for $350 or so, and two years ago for some $500, are going for from $850 to more than $1,000.

And so it goes.

More people are buying silver this year, according to dealers Penny and Bill Halladay of Palos Verdes who sell it. Cloisonne also is selling well.

Friday was a slow day for crowds, the Halladays reported. "The serious buyers come on Thursdays, the browsers on Sundays." Some buying is done on Saturday. "But if you don't make it on Thursday, you don't make it," Halladay said.

IN THE collectible department, visitors may find everything from ushers ribbons worn at a 1904 John Phillip Sousa concert to stock in defunct gold mines.

If ancient valentines are your thing, there are lots of those. And there's goodly pile of sheet music for tunes of the 20s and 30s.

As for "genuine" antiques, — items 100 years old or more — the show has very few, according to Sekulich. But it is no exception. "No show has just antiques anymore except in England where they won't let you put in anything less than that. "Besides," he added, "both Los Angeles County and city have revised their standards for antiques down to 50 years."

That new standard would hardly cover one plate gracing a display. It is from the 1972 Olympics.

IT MAY be an exception, however, as, even among collectibles, most items appear to be at least "middle-aged."

And no matter. Young or old, the varied assortment seems to be drawing the crowds.

Perhaps a sign in one of the displays is appropriate. "WARNING," it read. "ANTIQUE POX. VERY CONTAGIOUS."

Oldest policeman gets service award

Sgt. Robert N. Houghton, the oldest active police officer in the United States, was one of 74 Long Beach city employes honored Friday night at the city's annual service awards dinner, held aboard the Queen Mary.

Houghton joined the Long Beach Police Department in 1920, 12 years after it was formed.

"Chief of Police J. L. Butterfield gave me a hat and a badge and told me where to buy a gun and handcuffs," he said.

Houghton, 76, who completed 55 years service with the police department last Aug. 20, said he has no plans to retire.

City Manager John R. Mansell said Houghton has served on a major U. S. police department longer than any officer in the nation's history.

His first police assignment, in 1920, was walking a beat, without a partner, in the Pike amusement zone on the graveyard shift. His first jail-registry entry was for the arrest of a drunken man.

Houghton was responsible for installing Long Beach's first traffic signal, at the corner of Broadway and Pine Avenue, in 1927 — the year Charles Lindbergh flew the Atlantic.

He has worked in the department's patrol, traffic and detective divisions and, since 1962, has been a day booking sergeant.

SGT. ROBERT HOUGHTON

City employes honored for completing 25 years service with Long Beach included City Engineer Tom Marchese and Finance Director Warren Heistand.

Three women were among the 25-year-award recipients. They are June Willer of the department of administrative management, Harriet Abrams of the city clerk's office, and Rosemary Feldman of the recreation department.

The police department had the largest number of 25-year-award recipients, 27, including two brothers — Deputy Chief of Police Willis Platt and Sgt. Robert Platt.

Demo vacancy meeting set

The Long Beach area's 58th Assembly District Democratic County Committee will meet at 9 a.m. Sunday in Ben's Family Restaurant, 2955 Bellflower Blvd., Long Beach, to fill a committee vacancy created by the resignation of Pamela J. O'Leary.

Ron Nelson, chairman, said any registered Democrat living in the communities of Long Beach (east of Cherry Avenue), Lakewood, Hawaiian Gardens or Signal Hill who is interested in serving the remaining year in this position may phone 437-6103 or 430-1224 for further information and should attend Sunday's meeting.

The committee will also consider a proposal for electing members at next June's primary to represent designated subdistrict areas by arranging candidates on the ballot according to residence addresses.

PETER MARSHALL
Police Benefit Emcee

POLICE VARIETY SHOW JAN. 30

A $10-per-ticket variety show to benefit a Long Beach Police Officers' Memorial Fund almost drained by the recent slayings of three officers will be presented Jan. 30 in the Arena, with Peter Marshall of TV's "Hollywood Squares" serving as emcee and performing.

Marshall, who announced the benefit Friday, said he was arranging for other television and motion picture personalities to appear with him.

Killed in the line of duty recently were Officers Bob Birdsall, shot Sept. 15; Franke Lewis, Dec. 13, and Gary Elkins, Jan. 1.

Funeral and other expenses, including scholarships for eight surviving children, drained the fund, said Bryan (Whitey) Littlefield, memorial chairman.

Some 550 Long Beach businessmen already have bought tickets, which are expected officially to go on sale Thursday at all Southland ticket agencies, [illegible]

Sullivan drops off Civil Service panel

Former Long Beach City Councilman Emmet Sullivan, 68, has resigned as a county Civil Service commissioner in the wake of accusations by Supervisor Ed Edelman that Sullivan displayed bigotry.

Disclosure of Sullivan's resignation was made Friday by Supervisor Kenneth Hahn, who said he met with Sullivan last week and that Sullivan denied Edelman's charges.

By resigning, Sullivan avoided a public airing of the charges against him. Under a new state law effective Jan. 1, hearings for appointments of certain county officers, including the Civil Service commissioners, must be conducted in public instead of in executive session.

The controversy surfaced Dec. 23 when Supervisor James Hayes moved in executive session to reappoint Sullivan for a second six-year term on the three-member commission.

Edelman then charged Sullivan was bigoted against blacks, Chicanos and Jews. Also, he said, Sullivan often fell asleep at hearings, and his apparent deafness created problems.

Sullivan denied the allegations, but the matter of his reappointment was placed in limbo. Shortly after the charges surfaced, Civil Service Commissioner Ernest Sanchez defended Sullivan, saying the charges were inaccurate.

Hahn told reporters he felt Sullivan wanted to simply avoid airing of the controversy in public. "I guess he just wanted to quietly fold his tent," Hahn said.

Sullivan told newsmen he did not want to prolong the dispute and had decided to withdraw after discussing the matter with his wife and friends.

Brown predicts fall in L.B. oil revenue for 1976-77

From Our State Bureau

SACRAMENTO — Oil revenue from the Long Beach tidelands is expected to total $66 million during the 1976-77 fiscal year, according to Gov. Brown's state budget proposal.

The revenue is down more than $15 million from the $81.5 million expected for the current fiscal year. The field, California's richest, produced $98.5 million in 1974-75.

Average daily production from the field is 108,000 barrels of oil and 25 million cubic feet of natural gas.

The City of Long Beach, as steward for the state, has filed an antitrust suit against the consortium of oil companies developing the tidelands. No conclusion of the litigation is expected for years, but if the city wins the state would get substantial addition revenues.

State Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger has also filed an antitrust action against most oil companies doing business in California.

In the 1976-77 budget proposed by the governor, the Department of Justice is allocated $1.3 million for antitrust activity, an increase of about $400,000 over the 1975-76 figure.

Roving pickets

More than 50 striking Kaiser-Permanente pharmacy workers picket the company's medical center in Bellflower Friday as the first stop for what Carl Potts, business agent for Retail Clerks Union Local 324, described as a caravan that will demonstrate at all seven of Kaiser's major medical centers in the Southland. The pickets represent the 328 pharmacy employes—pharmacists, clerks and technicians—who struck Dec. 8, forcing Kaiser to close pharmacies at its 18 outlying clinics and staff those at the major medical centers with supervisory personnel.

Rental, condominium units lead as...

Long Beach '75 building hits $85 million

By DON BRACKENBURY
Staff Writer

Residential construction in Long Beach, particularly rental and condominium apartment units, boomed in 1975, according to permits issued by the city's Department of Building and Safety.

Edward M. O'Connor, director of building and safety, said Friday the city issued 191 permits for construction of 733 residential units, with a combined value of $19.5 million.

During 1974, O'Connor said, there were 142 permits issued for 662 units whose combined valuation was $12.9 million.

Of the 191 residential permits issued last year, 24 were for apartment buildings containing a total of 540 units and valued at $12.1 million. Comparable figures for 1974 were 34 permits for 336 units, valued at $6.9 million.

TOTAL CONSTRUCTION value of the 19,044 permits issued by the Department of Building and Safety in 1975 was $85.1 million.

This was a sharp decrease from the $111.7-million total for 1974, but O'Connor said the prior year's valuation received a major boost from the $42.2-million permit issued in November for construction of Pacific Terrace Convention Center.

The 1975 total included 9,298 building permits valued at $68.7 million, 4,184 electrical permits for $10.2 million, and 5,562 plumbing permits, valued at $6.1 million.

Alterations and additions to existing structures accounted for 7,150 of the permits issued and $16.4 million of the total valuation, O'Connor said.

In other general categories of construction, the city issued 14 permits for hospitals or other institutional buildings, with a combined value of $8.3 million; 13 permits for public works or utilities, valued at $9.3 million; and 41 permits for commercial structures, with total value of $5.2 million.

AMONG THE MAJOR residential developments taking out permits during the year were: 21 duplexes, valued at $1.8 million, to be built by Long Beach Construction Co. in its Los Cerritos development; a 200-unit, $4.3-million project of Baptist Gardens at 1011 Pine Ave.; and a 60-unit, $2.3-million condominium structure by C. Robert Langslet at 4835 E. Anaheim St.

Three permits were issued to the city for additions or remodeling at Memorial Hospital, 2800 Atlantic Ave., at a cost of $4.9 million, and Robert Jallier was given a permit for construction of a $1.2-million, 168-unit board and care facility at 1046 E. Fourth St.

Major industrial projects included two permits to Edison Co. for remodeling of its generating plant at 2665 W. Seaside Blvd., at a total cost of $3.4 million; a permit valued at $2.3 million for the Los Angeles Department of Water and Power to install storage tanks at 6801 Westminster Ave.; two permits to the city for construction of a coke storage building at 1301 Pier G Ave. at a cost of $3.1 million, and a $1.1-million permit for construction of water tanks by THUMS Long Beach Co.

SCal businessmen showing optimism

Western businessmen are optimistic about the economy for the first quarter of the new year, according to the latest Western Business Forecast taken by the Prudential Insurance Co.

When Prudential asked businessmen in the West to compare their anticipated economic activity for the first three months of 1976 with their fourth-quarter 1975 activity, 63 per cent said they thought the first quarter would be better, 14 per cent saw it the same, and 23 per cent saw a decline.

IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA-Arizona-Nevada region, businessmen are more optimistic than those in the West. Sixty-six per cent of those polled in this area look for an increase in their economic activity during the first three months of 1976 when compared to the past three months, while 12 per cent expect no change and 22 per cent anticipate a decrease.

When making a 1976 to 1975 comparison of first quarter business, service is the most optimistic industrial category. Eighty-six per cent of those polled look for their first quarter business to exceed last year's activity.

And the construction group showed the greatest increase in optimism. Fifty-nine per cent expect their first quarter business to be up — a 26-point jump.

America seen pacing world on uneven recovery road

International economic forecasters meeting in the Southland this week foresee in 1976 a definite end to recession, with the U.S. leading other industrialized nations up an uneven road to recovery.

There were two possible exceptions or qualifiers offered to accompany a generally positive reading as jointly prepared by a UCLA graduate school of management team and specialists from a firm of English business consultants.

— Extremely slow growth rates may be expected from Britain, plagued in recent years by inflationary and unemployment rates markedly higher than those of her trading partners.

— And there are strong differences of opinion concerning Japan's economy this year. On one hand, American observers foresee a massive increase in the gross national product (GNP), while a California-based Japanese banker says several economic difficulties at home will halve more optimistic predictions.

THESE AND other views emerged from a two-day session ending Friday at Westchester's Airport Marina Hotel in which UCLA economic forecasters moved for the first time into the international realm. Teamed with them were the managing director of London-based Economic Models Ltd., Michael Spicer, and members of his staff.

Providing an overview, UCLA project chief Dr. Robert M. Williams issued a series of separate-but-related forecasts:

"The primary thrust to the economies of the U.S. and most major countries will come from consumer spending, because at home and aboad the investment boom has cooled off... Industrial production will rise moderately in 1976 after falling sharply in 1975.. World employment will rise slowly but unemployment will remain higher than at any time since the 1930s.

"REAL GNP is expected to rise between five and six per cent in the U.S., Canada and Japan; between 4 and 5 per cent in France and West Germany; between 3 and 4 per cent in Belgium, Italy and the Netherlands; and only about one-half of 1 per cent in the United Kingdom.

"Inflation will continue, although at much lower rates than in 1974 and '75. Prices will increase 5 to 6 per cent in the U.S. and Germany, seven to 10 per cent in Japan, Belgium and France; and from 11 to 17 per cent in Italy, the Netherlands and Britain."

Williams said it is expected that volume of "U.S. exports will increase by about four per cent this year following a decline of nearly nine per cent in 1975. American imports will increase nearly 10 per cent this year compared with a decrease of 15 per cent last year."

This expected larger rise in U.S. imports is explained by a more rapid recovery rate in the U.S. as compared with its customer countries, he concluded.

SPICER, A Conservative member of the British House of Commons and chairman of that body's finance committee, said that "very broadly, and with the exception perhaps of the United Kingdom, the prospect facing the Western world is considerably brighter for 1976 than it was this time last year."

Queried by news writers, Spicer confirmed that recent economic conditions at home "have been unfavorable." And he held out little hope for immediate easing of situation given Britain's current severe inflationary trends.

Underlying the problem, he said, were the 20th Century's two world wars in which "Britain was more gravely damaged— in terms of human energy— that was imagined."

Asked about the joint British-French Concorde supersonic jet airliner, which may not be allowed to land at U.S. airfields, Spicer said such a negative action by this country "would have a very unfavorable reaction" in the plane's dual European homeland. "The money has been spent, and for better or worse, the ship is in existence."

PREDICTING a 6.1 per cent increase in Japan's 1976 GNP was Charles Stancomb, executive director for Economic Models, who said: "We

U.S.-Canada rift termed 'minimal'

By RALPH HINMAN Jr.
Staff Writer

Assurances that traditionally friendly links between Canada and this country remain unbroken— although perhaps strained by recent disputes— were voiced this week in Los Angeles by the Canadian ambassador to the U.S.

And in a comment perhaps reassuring to internationally minded businessmen here, Ambassador Jack Hamilton Warren added that he does not believe there is a trend toward nationalization or expropriation of foreign industries in his country.

J.H. WARREN
Reassuring

Warren, in the Southland on a Bicentennial goodwill mission which included reviewing Canadian entries in Pasadena's recent Rose Parade, met with reporters prior to addressing a Los Angeles World Affairs Council meeting in the Hilton Hotel.

WHILE admitting differences cropped up recently, the 54-year-old career government official insisted that a historic friendship between peoples north and south of the border was not negatively affected.

Among major sources of contention are cuts this year in the quantities of Canadian oil exported to the U.S., and government takeovers of the Saskatchewan potash industry and two aircraft firms, including a U.S. company.

Canadian energy officials said in November that crude oil exports this year would average 500,000 bbls. daily, some 50,000 bbls. below 1974 levels. An end by 1983 to all oil exports then was predicted by the officials.

Below-ground supplies are being depleted rapidly, Warren responded, and "We can't see you what we don't have."

ASKED whether his government's policy or philosophy leans toward public ownership, Warren averred that "I could not share in any such view . . . there is no policy, no trend to nationalization."

Specifically asked about a U.S.-financed crude oil pipeline to be laid across Canadian Arctic wastes, Warren said a treaty presently is being hammered out safeguard the interests of both nations.

He was less than eager to discuss a takeover by the Saskatchewan government of a newly-developing potash industry in that prairie province. "Our provinces have a great deal of authority," he commented.

Diplomat Warren diplomatically declined comment on a statement dealing with Saskatchewan reportedly made last month over Canadian TV by departing U.S. Ambassador William Porter.

The American then called for a meeting between President Ford and Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau in an attempt to ease mounting U.S. resentment of Canadian policies. The Saskatchewan takeover was cited as an example.

TRUDEAU later said Porter stepped out of bounds in criticizing Canadian policies.

Canada's economy, closely tied to the U.S., "is only slowly moving out from recession," Warren said, noting that an "unacceptable two-figure inflation" and unemployment were recorded last year.

Nationalization of two foreign-owned aircraft companies, including a north-of-the-border subsidiary of the St. Louis-based General Dynamics Corp., is a manifestation of a new spirit of nationalism in which there is a "reaction to heavy U.S. investments" in the Canadian economy. "This is a strong, positive sense of Canadianism," he said.

"I should think that U.S. citizens, with the pride they have in their own history (of economic independence), should understand and sympathize with this feeling," he argued.

Industry Week

Production clouds seen

CLEVELAND — U.S. industry looks for higher demand, increased production and relatively stable prices in 1976, Industry Week reported Friday. But labor negotiations and a deteriorating trade balance could be clouds on the Horizon.

After a drop in shipments among the various metals ranging from 15 per cent to 30 per cent during 1975, resurgence to near 1974 levels is expected. Aluminum makers, for example, look for their third best year with shipments approaching 12.8 billion pounds. Other nonferrous metals producers see similar gains with output nearing capacity levels.

While no metals shortages are forecast this year, availability of steel may grow tight in 1977. Steel executives see shipments improving from 80 million tons in 1975 to 95 million tons this year. Raw steel production should rise from 117 million tons to 140 million tons with shipments challenging record 1973-74 levels next year, the magazine for managers says.

THE RISE in the basic metals industries and in consumer markets could also lead to better years for machine tool builders— some of whom expect orders to rise as much as 40% this year — and for electric utilities looking for a 5 per cent to 11 per cent growth in demand this year. That would follow no growth through 1974 and only 1.7 per cent growth through mid-December, 1975.

But growing consumer demand could adversely affect the U.S. trade balance this year. While the U.S. had a massive trade balance last year of $10 to $12 billion, the drop in imports relative to exports reflected the U.S. recession, says Industry Week.

The story this year may be last year's in reverse. While U.S. demand for imports will rise, sluggish economies elsewhere will dampen the demand for U.S. exports.

Contrasted with an expected 6 per cent real growth in the U.S. economy this year, forecasts for real growth in other major economies are: Japan and Canada 4¼ per cent; Germany 3¼ per cent; and France 3 per cent. Others are expected to grow less than 2 per cent.

ANOTHER POSSIBLE storm cloud in clearing economic skies are labor settlements, headed by Teamsters, who opened negotiations this week. Bargaining later in the year will involve about 4.5 million workers in the rubber, electrical manufacturing, automotive, and construction industries, notes Industry Week.

Officials hope, but do not really expect, that the high unemployment rate will have a moderating effect on the money demands — at least an effect such that they don't adversely affect prices.

The Teamsters' announced demands would boost trucking labor costs by an estimated 50 per cent — plus over three years and will be watched closely because, as one spokesman tells Industry Week, "it will have a hell of an impact."

Home S & L's new office opens Jan. 19

Home Savings and Loan Association's new six-story office building at the intersection of Lakewood and Del Amo Boulevards, will open for business Monday, Jan. 19.

Vice president and manager Gilbert Peterson announced Home's plans for a grand-opening celebration scheduled for the week of Feb. 2-6. "We'll be ready to party after we make sure we've got the operational bugs out of our system," Peterson said.

The "How Sweet It Was" style grand-opening will salute the early, live-television years with personal appearances by "You Bet Your Life" star George Fenneman, Harry von Zell, long-time Home spokesman and star of the favorite "Burns and Allen" series for nine years.

Corporations misleading with 'inflated' statements

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—Sometimes when the patient is very ill he may develop a deceiving glow, a fever that to the untrained eye might be mistaken for ruddy good health.

Touche Ross & Co., the big accounting firm, suggests that corporate financial statements might be emitting that glow.

"How can U.S. corporations be reporting record sales and profits at a time when they are wracked with record problems of liquidity, debt and capital shortage?" it asks, and quickly supplies its answer:

"Because the profits they are reporting have little relationship with reality."

The dollar figures used are inflated, said Russell Palmer, managing partner, in launching a campaign this week to experiment with more meaningful accounting. Today's dollar cannot be compared with yesterday's, he said.

To illustrate: Nonfinancial corporations reported 1974 after-tax profits of $66 billion, compared with $38 billion in 1965, an apparent increase of 74 per cent.

NOW ADJUST for inflation; that is, use the same dollar to measure both years and thus obtain comparable results. Pick the 1958 dollar as a measure and you learn those earnings didn't rise — they fell, from an adjusted $37 billion in 1965 to around $21 billion in 1974.

One answer to such numerical misrepresentation may be to report a company's financial condition in current or real values rather than current prices, that is, with inflation wrung out. Palmer says we should seek to develop techniques.

"Reporting assets and liabilities at current values reflects true economic profits— not illusory profits, the kind any number of companies have reported recently, even while heading into bankrupty," he said.

Touche Ross isn't the first to make such suggestions, but it seems willing to throw more weight than the others into what it calls "Economic Reality in Financial Reporting," subtitled "A Program For Experimentation."

THE PROPOSAL, aimed initially at directors and senior corporate managements, and then at securities analysts, educators and accountants, seeks to experiment with current value accounting this year.

"The goals of accounting are to measure, record and communicate reality," the proposal begins, soon illustrating just how these goals are encumbered by persistent inflation.

Opinions divided on Japan

see the underlying strength of Japan as improving a lot this year. Data suggests the Japanese economy is much strongerthan people were saying just three weeks ago."

A contrasting position was taken by Nimei Akamatsu, a Sumitomo Bank of California senior vice president called in as a special consultant to the study principals. He said studies done by his firm in Japan indicated the percentage increase in real GNP will be closer to 3.8 per cent rather than the 6 per cent increase seen by the two Western observers.

"The main reasons for this are the huge government deficits still existing, and costs are continuing to push up the rate of inflation," Akamatsu said.

Old film back lot is state park

Associated Press

The scenic Century Ranch in the Malibu Hills, locale for some famous Hollywood movies, gained official designation as a state park Friday.

But officials are still pondering how to use two adjoining hunks of land: one ranch formerly owned by ex-movie cowhand Ronald Reagan and another ranch once belonging to comedian Bob Hope.

Actually, all of the property has belonged to the state for some time. The debate was over what to designate as a state park. Conservationists favored state park designation for all the properties but some local agencies wanted a recreational tag which would permit broader use such as constuction of public swimming pools.

Friday's decision by California Parks and Recreation commissioners represented a compromise. The central property in the area, the 2,700-acre Century Ranch, will retain its current rustic look by its state park designation. The 1,150 acres included in the ex-Hope and ex-Reagan ranches will be designated for usage at the commission's March meeting in San Francisco.

The new state park, at the same time, gained a new official name: Malibu Creek State Park. It has been the site Hollywood selected to depict such varying geographic settings as "Lost Horizon," "Planet of the Apes" and "The Left Hand of God," which starred Humphrey Bogart.

More time to get initiative OKd sought

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Supporters of a petition drive that failed to get a business-backed tax initiative on the June 8 ballot have sued to gain more time and have spending limits abolished.

The suit, filed Thursday in Sacramento County Superior Court, asks that the Committee for Two-Thirds Vote on Taxation receive an extension until May 5 to qualify the initiative for the ballot.

Attorney Vincent Thorpe, who filed the suit on behalf of the committee, also said the court was asked to invalidate the provisions of the Political Reform Act of 1974 that limit campaign advertising as a violation of constitutional freedom of speech guarantees.

The committee could spend $137,707 under the reform act regulations. It spent close to its limit but failed to gather enough valid signatures on petitions to meet the Dec. 26 deadline.

The suit is against the Fair Political Practices Commission, which was set up to enforce the reform act, Prop. 9, approved by voters in 1974.

Ford shows his interests in display of momentoes

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's politics and athletics are reflected in the collection of mementoes which crowd a private area near the Oval Office.

The President's collèction includes items which reflect his interests and most are neither expensive nor pretentious.

Ford collects stamps, carved elephants, political cartoons, pipes, statuettes of skiers and assorted plaques, trophies and signed baseballs, footballs and basketballs.

Hanging on one wall is a hand-hooked rug of the presidential seal. Shelves hold the skier figurines and models of a Russian airplane and an American tank.

The hideaway area includes two rooms connected by a hallway to the Oval Office. One of the rooms includes eight footballs, a Redskins helmet, a basketball, three soccer balls, a baseball glove, a golf trophy and baséalls signed by Stan Musial and Whitey Ford.

One wall is crowded with political cartoons, most of which poke fun at Ford.

Rape case figure cheered following release from jail

SALINAS (AP) — Inez Garcia was greeted with a shower of flowers and chants of "Viva Inez" after being freed Friday on $5,000 bail from the Monterey County jail.

The 31-year-old woman, convicted Oct. 4, 1974, of second-degree murder for gunning down 300-pound Miguel Jiminez, who she said held her down while another man raped her. She was sentenced to a five-years-to-life jail term and had been in prison for the last 14½ months.

Mrs. Garcia was bailed out only 20 minutes after appearing in Monterey County Superior Court for a bail-setting hearing. The State Court of Appeals, which overturned her conviction last month, ordered the trial court last Tuesday to set bail.

Mrs. Garcia's bail was posted by Carole Migden of Oakland, described only as "a friend."

Mrs. Garcia entered the courtroom handcuffed and shackled Friday. Her attorney asked Superior Court Judge Matt Agliano that they be removed, and he granted the request.

During the brief hearing, Mrs. Garcia's attorney, Susan Jordan, called her a "symbol of resistance across America" and asked that she be released on her own recognizance.

Prosecutor Arthur Braudrick asked that bail be $10,000, but Agliano set it at $5,000.

Braudrick said the state attorney general's office Friday petitioned for a rehearing of the the State Court of Appeals decision overturning Mrs. Garcia's conviction.

Monterey County Dist. Atty. William Curtis said he will seek a new trial in the case if necessary.

Curtis said he was disturbed with the greeting Mrs. Garcia received upon her release.

"I think it's very curious to see a murderess treated as a returning hero," he said.

The conviction was overturned on grounds that the trial judge, Stanley Lawson, erred in his supplementary jury instructions on the standard of "reasonable doubt."

The court found that Lawson's additional instructions made the criteria for proof of guilt "strikingly comparable" to a rule in the civil cases where a verdict can be based upon a preponderance of evidence. The court said burdens of proof in civil and criminal cases are "two wholly different, clearly distinguishable degrees of burdens of proof."

Mother claims Patty's ills are gynecological

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Jailed newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst is suffering from an ailment "gynecological in nature," her mother said Friday.

Asked about reports that her daughter's health is deteriorating in the San Mateo County Jail, Catherine Hearst told KPIX-TV that "Patty's problems are gynecological in nature due to the fact that she is run down by conditions in the jail.

On Thursday, Miss Hearst's attorney, Albert Johnson, said the heiress' health was deteriorating and she wasn't eating. Jail officials denied that assertion.

Mrs. Hearst said her daughter remains "cooperative with everyone in the jail, but she is depressed by her surroundings."

Miss Hearst is awaiting trial later this month on bank robbery charges. She is accused of participating in a holdup here on April 15, 1974 with members of the terrorist Symbionese Liberation Army.

People and ideas

Summer soldiers, etc.

MARK CLUTTER
RELIGION EDITOR

Summer soldiers are those who do their duty when the weather is pleasant. When the winter blizzards come they have a tendency to malinger or even desert.

Many of the "old-line" churches these days are observing the disappearance of summer soldiers — mostly without tears.

Back in the 1950s and 60s it was the "in thing" to be a Christian. Not much of a Christian, of course. One shouldn't let religion interfere with one's career — or with barbecue cookouts or cocktail parties. To make a small pledge and go to church when one couldn't think of any other Sunday morning fun was the correct and respectable thing to do.

Since about 1970 the summer soldiers have been dropping away. It is hard to understand just why. Some may be disillusioned by ecclesiastical deviations such as "God is dead" or rock guitars in the sanctuary. Some may be embittered by controversies such as that of the Lutheran Church, Missouri Synod.

But many, one suspects, found that soldiering is just too hard. A man can get hurt or even killed. A Cross is hard to carry.

A current report of the United Methodist Church in the United States shows that membership has dipped below the ten million mark. But attendance at worship services has increased and giving for all causes has shown a spectacular increase. The grand total of giving was more than $1 billion, an increase of $74 million for 1974.

Most old-line denominations report comparable figures. Fewer people are proving themselves more loyal and giving much more. Of course, inflation is eating into the financial situation.

Some churches are gaining converts. They seem to be the churches that make stern demands on their people. The Mormons are doing very well indeed.

CATHOLICS IN TROUBLE

Attendance at Mass has declined 21 per cent in a decade. The National Opinion Research Center in Chicago was asked to find out why.

The pollsters found that 48 per cent of the drop in church participation was due to the ban on birth control. Another 26 per cent was blamed on the church's refusal to allow divorce and remarriage.

The third reason might be even more significant. Twenty-six per cent attributed changing attitudes "toward the Pope as head of the Church."

The Church is also hurting for lack of recruits. Not many girls are dreaming of becoming nuns, and the seminaries are short of would-be priests, presaging greater hardships for an already overworked priesthood.

(Many non-Catholic seminaries are deluged with students, more than they can hope to find employment for.)

CHRISTMAS FOR ATHEISTS

A The Religion Editor belatedly received the December issue of the American Atheist. Most of the rather well-edited magazine is devoted to the subject of Christmas.

What do atheists think of Christmas? Mostly they like it!

There are some informative articles about the history of Christmas and its pagan antecedents. The pagans celebrated the winter solstice, the time when sun god began to return his light to a wintry world.

The atheists disapprove of the old Puritans who tried to outlaw Christmas. People, they feel, need festivals. One suggested there might be a non-Christian "Christmas" with a golden sun as its symbol.

It is doubtful that even atheists could truly enjoy a Festival of the Winter Solstice. Christmas, although related to such festivals, is a richly embroidered tradition woven of many cultural influences, sacred and profane. It is the Advent of the Light of the World, transcending mere sunlight.

Every culture needs festivals. Life in medieval times was often bleak and terrible, but the numerous holidays and Holy Days brought color and zest to people. Perhaps America could do with more festivals.

MISSIONARIES ARE GUESTS

Sen. Mark Hatfield of Oregon stirred up quite an ecclesastical storm when he revealed that the Central Intelligence Agency uses missionaries as sources of information. Many denominations have denounced this practice. Some threaten to dismiss missionaries who help the CIA.

The CIA is putting missionaries into an untenable and dangerous position. Most American missionaries are loyal Americans. As patriots they want to obey their nation. And those who have been in the field awhile know things the CIA would like to know.

But missionaries are also guests of foreign lands. They must obey the laws of the host nations. They must not engage in actions that could be considered warlike. Helping the CIA puts them under a shadow.

Missionaries are primarily soldiers of Christ. They go to other nations to win people to Christ. Any participation in foreign politics can destroy their mission. Some nations might even become angry enough to expel all missionaries.

PAGAN ALTAR IN THE HOME

"We are now at issue with a pagan culture that is surrounding us," said Cardinal Timothy Manning. "It already has its advocate, its surrogate, enthroned in every single home.

"That television is the mentor, the teacher, the giver of the values of this new paganism. These are presented to us at the touch of a hand or a knob."

Few intellectuals would disagree with the prelate. Even a "pagan" who had studied the humanities would be inclined to share the cardinal's dismay.

Hour after hour, channel after channel, the TV grinds out stuff that can only be called "cultural erosion." It provides "news" that doesn't report, comedies of manners that aren't funny, ads that tell you how to end indigestion and become a sex symbol, children's stuff that insults the intelligence of a five-year-old, ad infinitum ad nauseum. Even most of the many religious programs are a mockery.

This, of course, is not to damn television categorically. There are many excellent programs, but the intelligent viewer must be discriminating. Otherwise, he just becomes a zombie worshipping mindlessly before an electronic altar.

But, no matter what cardinals say, television is a permanent addition to civilization. Its impact is very much like that of the invention of printing. The whole pattern of society is being radically changed.

It is, among other things, a means of mass education. In spite of its obvious inadequacies, television has made people more knowing, cleaner, perhaps healthier, more aware of the world they live in.

Television is a relatively new invention. It was just beginning to get well started in 1950. Its future possibilities cannot be foreseen.

But it is sad that so many who plan the programs think of Americans as slack-jawed morons who will view anything so long as it doesn't require any thought.

In Gideon the Lord appeared to Solomon in a dream by night: and God said, Ask what I shall give thee. I Kings 3:5.

And she said, Let thine handmaid find grace in thy sight. So the woman went her way, and did eat, and her countenance was no more sad. I Samuel 1:18.

Put not your trust in princes, nor in the son of man, in whom there is no help. Psalm 146:3.

Many kinds of Christians share faith

Pastor reports on World Council in Africa

EDITOR'S NOTE: Rev. Galal Gough, pastor of the First United Methodist Church, recently returned from the Assembly of the World Council of Churches in Nairobi, Kenya. In this article he tells of his experiences in Africa and gives answers to some of the many questions church people have about the World Council and its mission.

By Rev. GALAL GOUGH

1) What was your most memorable experience at the World Council Fifth Assembly in Nairobi?

The closing worship service of the World Council was a tremendously meaningful experience — a spiritual "happening" which dramatized our unity in Christ, despite the diversity you would expect from representatives of 271 different denominations. The Russian and Eastern Orthodox participants sang the Call to Worship. Litanies, prayers and passages of scripture were read in Swahili, Portuguese, Latin, Hebrew, English, Greek, Korean and Indian sign language. But the electrifying moment came as the youth enacted a song, "Break down the walls that separate us and unite us in a single body."

As the youth moved out among the delegates, and throughout the assembly, with everyone singing, clasping hands and embracing others of every nation, many with tears flowing down their cheeks, it was truly an affirmation of the Assembly theme "Jesus Christ Frees and Unites." Then moving out into the Kenyatta Center Plaza, the worshipers formed a large cross, illuminated by the lights of the Kenyatta Tower, and the service concluded with prayers and the Christmas carol "O Come, All Ye Faithful." But I shall never forget singing "Break down the walls that separate us" and experiencing the unity we have in Christ in such a charismatic way.

2) You mentioned diversity at the World Council. How were these differences evident in Nairobi?

From the opening worship service, the many different denominations, traditions, races and national origins of the delegates were very obvious. As almost 3,000 persons from over 100 nations gathered in the Kenyatta Center Plaza, there was a spectacular array of African tribal dress, and crimson, purple, black and white ecclesiastical garb. A young Masai woman led the procession into the Assembly Halls carrying a large Bible in Swahili. A Kenyan rhythm choir followed, with African drums and their pulsating beat punctuating the songs. Worship was led by participants from six regions of the world, speaking in their mother tongues. In fact, the diversity was dramatized by the earphones and controls all of us had, which enabled delegates, theological advisors and visitors to dial the language of their choice. Never in Christian history had so many different denominations, 271 with 8 others requesting membership, met together at one time.

3) With so many different denominations and national backgrounds, were there conflicts at the World Council?

Actually, the confrontations many of the over 600 newspaper reporters expected — between black and white, the rich and poor nations, east and west — never materialized. Every lecture and report was debated, but in a Christian spirit. In fact, the atmosphere was so subdued, some reporters were openly disappointed. Probably the greatest tension was generated over the resolution to censure Russia for suppressing religious freedom. The Russian Orthodox delegates, who represent a very conservative and traditional theological stance, were openly concerned. They were afraid a harsh condemnation would mean they would be refused the right to participate in the World Council, and would thus be cut off from fellowship with Christians around the world. I sat in the visitor's section, right by the Russian delegation, and they impressed me as being representatives from a totalitarian state, who had to be very careful what they said. In the end, a milder resolution was passed, which put the Council on record against restrictions on religious liberty, but also reduced the likelihood the Russian Christians would be refused the right to participate in the World Council.

4) In coming back to the United States, and reading the newspaper coverage here, did you feel people in this country had an adequate picture of what was happening at the World Council meetings?

With only one exception, I felt the articles I read in the major Long Beach and Los Angeles newspapers were accurate. But as one reporter told me in Nairobi, as he pointed to all the reports and printed lectures, "There is no way we can give comprehensive coverage to so many lectures, study reports and services." For instance, Bible study was a major emphasis, with thousands of people meeting across national lines in small groups of 15 persons. There were study sections on six major themes of Christian faith and involvement in the world. Perhaps the most influential lecture at the World Council, given by Bishop Mortimer Arias of the Methodist Church in Bolivia, was on evangelism and entitled, "That the World May Believe." This lecture reverberated all through the Council sessions, and evangelism was also the theme of the major report, "Confessing Christ Today." So, in the end, the World Council's Fifth Assembly at Nairobi will probably be known for an emphasis on Christian basics and evangelism. But I did not find articles covering these central concerns of the World Council.

5) You traveled almost half-way around the world to attend the World Council. What was the high point for you personally?

In addition to the worship experiences, one of the most meaningful aspects of the World Council was the opportunity to meet and visit with Christians from all over the world. In one 24-hour period I had prolonged conversations with Bishop Barnabus Dmijen Mondan at the Church of Bengladesh; Mrs. Nellie Mercado, executive director of the Methodist Social Service Center in Manila; Joseph Guelly, secretary general of the Sudan Council of Churches; and Bishop Dr. Peter Sarpong, a Roman Catholic observer from Ghana. Each lunch time I specifically sought to be with some new person each day, so I met, for instance, William C. Tung, general secretary of the Hong Kong Christian Council; Rev. Doyce M. Musunsa, general secretary of the United Church of Zambia; Richard Chikosi, editor of the Christian newspaper "Nmbowo" in Rodesia; Rev. Ichiro Ono, vice moderator of the United Church of Christ in Japan; and Armando Rodriguez, bishop of the Methodist Church of Cuba, to name a few.

6) Did you take a tape recorder, and were you able to record interviews with these Christian leaders?

Except for some taped sequences of the opening worship, and African drums and songs, I used virtually all my tapes to record lectures and to interview such theologians as Jurgen Moltmann, theology of hope advocate from Germany; John Mbiti and Desmond Tutu of Africa; Emerito Nacpil of the Philippines; Choan-Seng Song of Taiwan; and Bishop Mortimer Arias of Bolivia. Also, because the World Council was meeting in Nairobi, Kenya, I was able to interview Richard Leakey, son of famed anthropologists Louis and Mary Leakey. I hope several of these tapes will be the basis for articles in the future, so these opportunities to interview famous persons were a great privilege for me.

7) How did you happen to obtain an interview with Richard Leakey, and what is your impression of his work?

Leakey is Director of the National Museum of Kenya, and I first saw him while visiting the museum rooms devoted to human pre-history and paleontology. He was leading a delegation from the Somali Republic, and explaining to them human fossils discoveries dating back two and three million years. At that time I took some 40 pictures of early human skulls and fossil exhibits. Two days later I was able to interview Richard Leakey for some 50 minutes on tape. He explained how faults along the Rift Valley had brought to the surface layers previously several hundred feet below, thus exposing fossil remains of early human beings. As the excavations are now more systematic and intensive than in the past few years, he expects many additional discoveries of human origins in the next decade. On the basis of his excavations of ancient fossil sites, Leakey believes our human ancesters survived because they lived in groups, cooperated and shared. As a member of the United Nations Environmental Programme, Leakey is also deeply concerned about the issues of ecology and human survival today. I found him to be a thorough scientist and a remarkably concerned human being.

8) Were there other persons or events that played a key role in your experience during the World Council in Nairobi?

Certainly the hospitality of Bishop Lawi Imathiu of the Methodist Church in Kenya was a high point. As you know, he was here in Long Beach last October for a New World Mission, and a ministers' meeting with him was held at my church. So, when he saw me in Nairobi, being a member of the Kenya National Assembly, he invited me over to the House of Parliament for tea. He also invited me to a reception in his home for Methodist leaders from around the world. There were Methodist bishops there from Angola, Mozambique, West Germany, Cuba and the United States, and representatives from many other nations. Bishop Imathiu also arranged for me to visit the Union St. Paul Seminary in Limuru. So in all, I am most grateful to him for his kindness and for opening so many doors for me while I was Kenya.

9) How long were you in Kenya, and where did you stay?

The World Council Assembly was in session for 17 days, and I was in Kenya 19 days. I stayed throughout in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Gary Herbertson. Gary grew up in Lakewood, and is a United Methodist minister, released through a special appointment to work with the United Nations Environmental Program, with headquarters in Nairobi. Staying in a home provided more opportunity to get out into the community. For instance, I rode a bus 6 miles to the Kenyatta Conference Center each day, and was usually the only non-African on the bus. That gave me a chance to visit with English speaking Kenyans on the way, and I did learn some Swahili words, including "Jambo" which is the universal greeting there. But the Herbertsons made my stay in Nairobi very pleasant, and economically possible, since I thus eliminated hotel expenses.

10) Back to the World Council, what do you think were the major accomplishments?

It will be a long time before I am able to read all of the documents, and sift through all my experiences. But the worship experiences, Bible study, theological lectures and discussions with Christians from around the world made an unforgettable impression. First of all, I think the study sections, which dealt with major issues the church faces, made a valuable contribution. All of the delegates were on one of six, dealing with 1) Confessing Christ Today, 2) What Unity Requires, 3) Seeking Community, 4) Education for Liberation and Community, 5) Struggles of Injustice and Struggles for Liberation, and 6) Human Development. It is important for the Churches to gather together and grapple with the major issues Christians face in the world. Also, the World Council took stands, for instance, on a number of pressing issues, calling for an end to foreign intervention in Angola, making recommendations for peaceful settlement of Middle East hostilities, protesting human rights violations in Latin America and expressing concern about nuclear collaboration with South Africa. Finally, just having Christians from all over the world get together, exchange views, debate issues and understand each other better, makes a major contribution.

11) Do you think the World Council has any right to take a stand on issues which have political or foreign policy implications?

It is hard to separate anything which happens in the world from the concern of the churches. For example, the resolution to end foreign intervention in

LETTER

Help kids!

Open Letter
To All Parents in the City of Long Beach

Dear Parents:

One of the most vital and important areas of your life is to be successful parents — to have your children grow and develop into beautiful and wholesome adults.

As you may know, this does not just happen by accident. It takes a lot of determination — a heap of loving — laughter — work — guidance. It also takes God in His power and love to grow and mature within each child, so that he may become strong mentally, morally, spiritually!

Some parents have a mistaken idea that if you just let the kids grow up without religion, that when they are old enough, they will choose their own church and then somehow "mystically" become mature Christians overnight. This simply does not happen!

It takes a long time for our bodies to become strong and the same is true of our spirits. To be morally and spiritually strong takes time, takes nurture, feeding, strengthening.

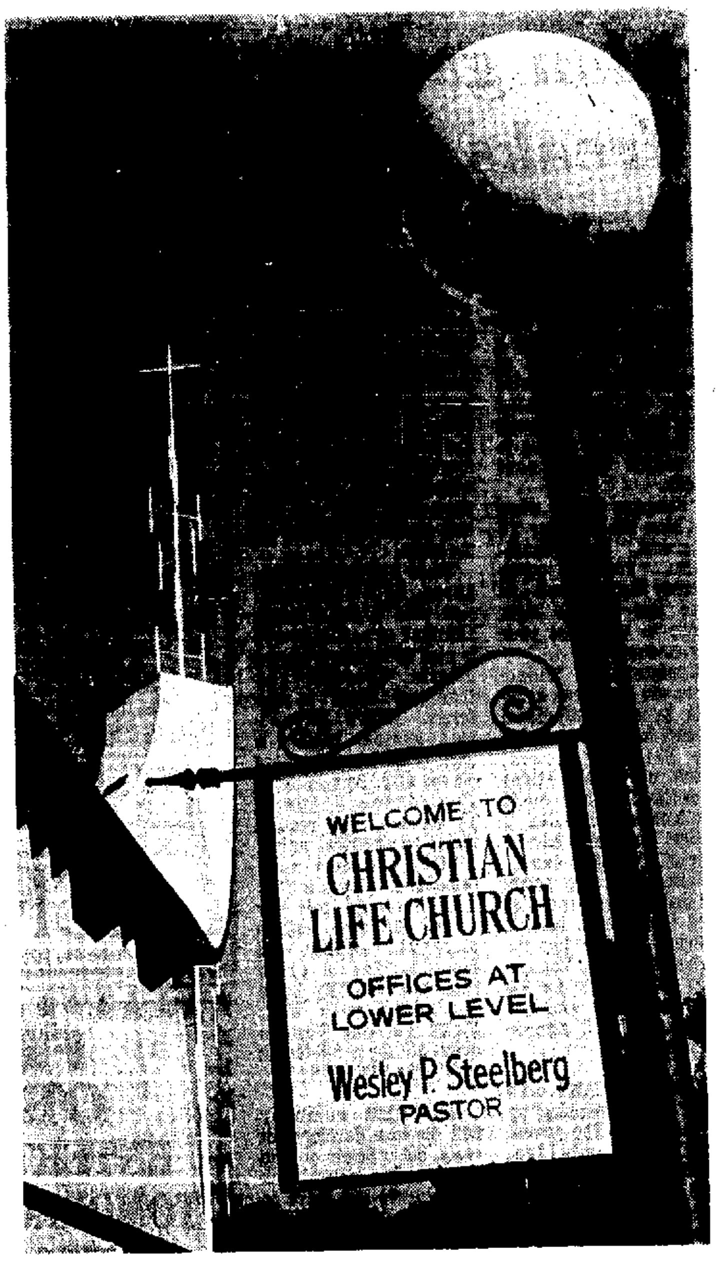
As a parent, I'm sure you don't need a sermon on all the trials and temptations your kids face. You don't need a sermon on all the sin and evil in the world. But what you do need is something on the positive that will protect and produce desired results!

Thus, as we begin this New Year 1976, please parents, feed your kids morally, spiritually that they may become strong inwardly as well as outwardly.

Find a church home — attend as a family — feed your family spiritually — and then watch them grow. Watch them grow in their faith and in their lives. You will be delighted and so will God!

God bless each of you,
Rev. Joe Nunziato
Pastor, Grace United Methodist Church

P.S. We especially invite families with teenagers to attend the viewing of the film "Time to Run" on Sunday, January 11th, at 7:00 p.m. at the Grace United Methodist Church Sanctuary at Third and Junipero. It could be a turning point in your faith and family life!



OUR BEAUTIFUL CHURCHES

The soaring tower of Christian Life Church, 3400 Pacific Ave., fascinates motorists who glimpse it from the San Diego Freeway. The tower is more than an architectural effect. It houses the church's ventilation and airconditioning machinery. The Assembly of God church was built four years ago. — Staff photo by BOB SHUMWAY

'To love —'

"To Love and to Cherish," a marriage enrichment course of 14 sessions will begin Wednesday, 7:30 p.m., at he Lutheran Church of the Holy Trinity, 1900 E. Carson St. It will be taught by Pastor J. B. Bretheim, who received training from the originator of the course, Dr. Harley Swiggum, Madison, Wis.

The purpose of the course is to help the married to enrich their marriages and to prepare the unmarried for marriage, the pastor said.

GOINGS ON

EDITOR'S NOTE: A woman was unhappy because "Goings On" did not carry an announcement of her organization's ceremonial installation of officers. Let's be realistic. There are more than 200 churches in this area plus no one knows how many organizations related to religion. If we started announcing elections, installations, membership dinners, etc., etc., we would have no news of anything else.

"Goings On" and the Religion Section generally is interested in news of community interest. If a church sponsors an event that should attract many from outside the church, "Goings On" wants it. The event should be free except for free-will offerings and nominal charges for food. Ask yourself, "Would people who have never been in this church want to attend?" If the answer is "Yes," "Goings On" wants to know.

Be sure to give full information including time and date, precise name and address of the church, including city, and exact nature of the event. The deadline for the following Saturday is Thursday noon.

The Shoremen, musical group of the First Nazarene Church, 2280 Clark Ave., will give its annual full concert Sunday, 6 p.m.

A public seminar on healing will be presented by the Rev. Richard L. Peterman and his wife Mary at Our Redeemer Lutheran Church, 12301 Magnolia Ave., 3:30 p.m., Sunday. It will be followed by supper. The Petermans will present the evangelical, Lutheran, Biblical view of healing.

Evangelist Ray Wilson, former Marine Corps combat correspondent and television executive, will conduct a series of meetings beginning Sunday, 6 p.m., and continuing Tuesday through Friday, 7:30 p.m., and then on Sunday, Jan. 18, 9:45 a.m., 11 a.m. and 6 p.m. at the Lakewood Foursquare Church, 3445 Studebaker Road.

"Hermano Pablo" — the Rev. Paul Finkenbinder — will speak Sunday, 11 a.m. and 6 p.m., at the First Assembly of God Church, 14626 S. Pioneer Blvd., Norwalk. A resident of Costa Mesa, he conducts a radio and television mission for Latin America.

"Time to Run," a film of World Wide Pictures, will be shown at 7 p.m., Sunday, at Grace United Methodist Church, Third Street and Junipero Avenue.

"Time to Run" will also be shown at First Baptist Church of Signal Hill, 1948 E. 20th St., Sunday at 7:30 p.m.

George West will give a narrated slide presentation of the trip he and his wife Carolyn made to the Holy Land Wednesday and Jan.21 during evening services at the University Baptist Church, 3434 Chatwin Ave.

Giselle MacKenzie, musician and entertainer, will be the guest speaker at the Long Beach Church of Religious Science, 505 E. 36th St., Thursday, 7:30 p.m.

Bob Eaton, evangelist, will conduct a revival at the Baptist Community Bible Church, 12226 Alondra Blvd., Norwalk Monday through the following Sunday, 7:30 p.m. (7 p.m. on Sunday.)

"In God We Trust," a film on America's Christian heritage, will be shown Sunday, 1 p.m., at Trinity Lutheran Church, Eighth Street and Linden Avenue.

Council

Angola is vital to the churches there. Bishop Carvalho of the Methodist Church in Angola was asked to speak briefly on the Angolan situation at Bishop Imathiu's reception. He was very concerned for the health and survival of the churches. With foreign arms pouring into Angola, the three separate movements could continue fighting over a long time and devastate the nation. He felt a unifying of the nation was made more difficult by the bitterness of fighting; and that congregations were being scattered and churches destroyed. Great damage has already been done, and the support of the World Church for an end to foreign involvement was welcomed. The efforts of the World Council to promote "human rights" around the globe are also greatly appreciated by churches in the developing nations. There were many youth at the World Council, coming from around the world, and they were certainly excited about the relevance of the stands being taken.

12) Do you think the World Council of Churches is really needed?

There is no doubt about it. Many of the churches in the Council are national bodies, and would have no world ties with other Christians without the WCC. They also depend on the WCC for literature, church school materials and other services. Also, the World Council is needed to bring Christians together to study the great issues of the day and to determine strategy for the mission of the Church. We tend to understand our faith in terms of our own cultural situation, and dialogue with other Christians clarifies the central issues of Christian witness in the world. Finally, we need to join together in evangelism, social concern and mission to strengthen the cause of Christ. Less than one-third of the world's population is Christian, and there are staggering problems in the world which individual denominations could not hope to respond to adequately alone. Certainly the World Council is not perfect, nor are member denominations expected to endorse every action. But the Council is definitely the most viable forum for Christian dialogue, between 279 member denominations and church bodies, as well as the Roman Catholic Church and other churches with fraternal delegates. It deserves our efforts to be adequately informed, to study the documents presented to the churches for discussion, and to be supportive through our fellowship and prayers.

Praise God in his sanctuary, praise him on his sovereign throne. Praise him for his noble acts, praise him for his surpassing greatness. Ps. 150:1

Speedily let me win thy mercy, my hope is in thee; to thee I lift up my heart, show me the path I must follow; to thee I fly for refuge. — Ps. 142:8

Costly new television gadgets to delight video freaks in '76

By STEPHEN FOX
Associated Press

It won't be part of the Bicentennial celebration, but there's a television revolution coming in 1976.

A mind-boggling array of new video equipment that promises to radically change TV viewing habits in millions of American homes will be offered to consumers nationwide during the bicentennial year.

The costly gadgets will allow you to tape a favorite show to watch when you like or order up an electronic smorgasbord of movies, lectures and concerts as easily as you now play a phonograph record.

"FOR THE first time the consumer will be given the choice of what he wants to see when he wants to see it," MCA executive Jack Findlater said in Los Angeles. "He's no longer limited by the whims of TV programming."

Already on the market are monster screens that turn your TV room into a minitheater and attachments that make sets into electronic ping-pong games. Also available in some cities are recorder-playback units that promise to solve the disruptive problem of what to do when a children's show conflicts with Monday night football.

The vast sales potential of the American market (there are 60 million color television sets in the United States) has sparked interest in foreign electronics companies, including Japan's Sony Corp. and Philips, the giant Dutch firm.

SONY'S Betamax video recorder system, now being test-marketed in San Francisco, Los Angeles, Chicago and New York, allows a viewer to tape his favorite show while he's out or watching something else. The system — about the size of two 19-inch sets — carries a $2,995 price tag but Sony spokesman Kozo Shiramatsu says well-heeled Japanese consumers are buying 5,000 a month. On the basis of what Shiramatsu calls "quite all right" sales here, Sony plans to expand its Betamax marketing to 20 major cities next month.

"Betamax is for when you have two must-see TV programs," says Shiramatsu. "You can watch Monday night football and tape the Monday night movie to watch at your convenience."

Reel-to-reel videorecorders have been available in the institutional market for some time but the Betamax system, which uses color video cassettes that cost $15.95 per hour-long cassette, is a first for the consumer market, says Shiramatsu.

Shiramatsu also points out that the system can be used to preserve historic televised events "like the man on the moon. You can keep the cassette for 100 years and your grandson can see the first man on the moon."

VIDEO FREAKS also seem to be snapping up giant screens. The Advent Corp. of Cambridge, Mass., has sold more than 4,000 of its 84-inch VideoBeams sets in the last two years, and company officials claim they have back orders amounting to $8 million. Most of the buyers have been hotels and cocktail lounges, but company officials say affluent individuals account for a good deal of their sales.

Impressive as Betamax and VideoBeam are, the systems get the back of the hand from videodisc developers, who dismiss them as updated versions of old items.

"The videodisc will mark the first new consumer electronics product since the advent of color television in 1954," says RCA executive Robert Shortal. "What you've lived with up to now is really improvements in existing products."

TWO COMPANIES have developed videodisc systems for the U.S. market: RCA and a team composed of Philips and MCA, the California entertainment conglomerate. Both have invested millions of dollar on their systems but the battle for the videodisc market is shaping up as a winner-take-all contest, since discs from one system cannot be played on the other.

There are other differences. RCA's SelectaVision uses a stylus much like that of a phonograph to pick up signals from the plastic videodisc and transmit them to the screen. MCA's Disco-Vision system utilizes a laser beam which bounces off the disc. Both systems attach directly to existing TV antennas and require their own electrical outlet.

RCA's projected retail price for its player is $400, with discs to sell for around $10 each. MCA's player will cost $500, with discs ranging in price from $2.35 for "My Little Chickadee," with W.C. Fields and Mae West, to about $10 for a full-length movie like "The Sting."

NEITHER company will disclose development costs, but officials of both concede that several million players will have to be sold before they turn a profit and both are aiming at the mass market.

"Our marketing studies show there's going to be a wide public acceptance of this product," says Findlater, who points with Shortal to this country's 60 million color television sets.

"The 60 million sets are potential customers," claims Findlater. "If, being conservative, you got 10 per cent, that's 6 million. You can do your own arithmetic ... what's wrong with 40 per cent?"

Videodisc officials agree that the sales of players, or "hardware," will depend on what the consumer can play on them, or "software."

"Color TV sales were directly dependent on the number of hours of network color programming available — and so it will be with videodisc hardware," says Findlater, who heads MCA's Disco-Vision division.

RCA SAYS it hopes to come to market with its player in the fall, and Shortal says its "titles," or subject matter offered on its discs, will be announced then. MCA already has announced an initial library of titles ranging from recent movies such as "Airport" to comedy classics such as the Marx Brothers' "Animal Crackers." Also planned are lecture series on Cubist and Impressionist art and filmed presentations of rock concerts.

"It will be possible to inexpensively build a home library of video programming," says Findlater.

Measuring up

Leslie Bruce, general manager of the Movieland Wax Museum, takes final caliper measurements of Tony Orlando. Figures of Tony, Telma Hopkins and Joyce Vincent-Wilson will be previewed on their upcoming CBS-TV Tony Orlando and Dawn Show. And, in the spring, the trio will attend ceremonies for their new set in the Buena Park Stars' Hall of Fame.

Lawsuits threaten $13 million deal

Giant squabble: S.F. to Toronto?

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The San Francisco Giants have been sold for $13.25 million and will be moved to Toronto for the 1976 season pending approval of nine of the 11 other National League teams, the Giants announced Friday.

"Directors of the National Exhibition Company have agreed in principle to sell the baseball franchise, the Giants, to Labatt's Brewery of Toronto," Charles Rupert, executive vice president and secretary-treasurer of the Giants, announced.

"The price was $13,250,000, of which $5,250,000 will be retained in a fund to meet certain possible obligations with respect to the transaction," Rupert said. Rupert said the Giants would seek approval of the sale at the major league meetings in Phoenix Wednesday.

George Moscone, in his first full day as San Francisco's mayor, had plenty to say about the deal.

"We will not, under any set of circumstances, settle for loss of the San Francisco Giants," he stated, adding that the city intends to file a lawsuit to block the sale of the club.

Moscone also announced plans to meet with separate groups of investors, headed by Robert Lurie and Robert Rossi, who are "anxious to purchase the Giants and keep them in San Francisco."

Most National League owners said Friday they felt it was too early to say whether they would vote to approve the sale, but Chicago Cubs owner Phil Wrigley predicted if the money is in Toronto, the Giants will be, too.

John McHale, president of the Montreal Expos, said the move "would be good, exciting, helpful. I hope they will be able to take the steps to get approval of the purchase. I'm sure they are well prepared to do it."

Their preparation will undoubtedly include clearing some legal hurdles.

While the announcement in San Francisco named Labatt's as the buyer, the announcement made in Toronto by Paul Godfrey, Metropolitan (Toronto) chairman, said the principles in a company to purchase the Giants are Labatt's Breweries of Canada, Ltd., Vulcan Assets Ltd. and the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce.

"I must stress, however, that bringing the team here is still subject to a number of conditions, some of which must obviously remain confidential," Godfrey said. "They are matters for discussion among the companies which are involved in the agreement.

The Giants have been in San Francisco since 1958 when they joined the Brooklyn Dodgers in moving from New York to the West Coast.

The team prospered through 10 seasons, never drawing fewer than 1,240,000 fans.

Then Charles O. Finley moved his American League A's from Kansas City to Oakland, just across the Bay Bridge from San Francisco, in 1968. The Giants have lost money ever since.

The National League lent the Giants $500,000 last summer and they were unable to meet the Dec. 1 deadline for repayment. They have not yet paid the annual $125,000 rental for Candlestick Park, their home field. The lease on Candlestick Park extends through 1984.

Valley 59-53 winner

LBCC runs out of time

By PAUL McLEOD
Staff Writer

"There must be a reason for all of this," said Long Beach City College coach Bill Fraser. "But what it is I don't know."

Valley College, trailing by one point at the half, blitzed to a 39-28 lead in the opening minutes of the second half, then held off LBCC in the final minutes to preserve a 59-53 win before only 100 people in Los Angeles Friday night.

"Just like our last game —we waited until the final minutes to play good basketball," said Fraser in reference to the Vikings' comeback win against El Camino Tuesday night.

The second-half lead changed hands five times before the Monarchs put together an 18-6 spurt that forced Fraser to use the first of several timeouts in an attempt to slow the Monarchs.

Valley increased its lead to 13, 47-34, with eight minutes remaining as the Vikings failed to hit a field goal for six minutes.

Valley's run-and-gun comeback was in direct contrast to its first half performance.

"After the first half when we came back we knew we could go out and beat them," said Monarch boss Jim Stephens, who coached at Marina High last year. "They (LBCC) weren't playing good defense, so I told the guys to go out and take it to them."

Using a zone defense, Valley kept Long Beach away from the basket most of the second half, then dominated in rebounding when Long Beach got off a shot. Valley managed 42 rebounds to 29 for Long Beach, which shot 46 per cent from the floor.

Both Fraser and Stephens agreed the 2-3 zone did its job.

"We just played it poorly," said Fraser. "It's been giving us a lot of problems lately. We couldn't get our rebounds. There's no advantage to shooting if you can't rebound."

"I intended to go man-zone-man-zone," said Stephens, "but the zone worked so well early in the game I decided to stay with it all night."

With the zone in effect Fraser called on outside shooting from sophomore forward Brian Lenzen, but he couldn't respond. The 6-3 St. Anthony grad, whose 20 points Tuesday night against the same alignment saved the Vikings from defeat, scored six points in 13 attempts from the field. Rod Dalton tried to pick up the slack, scoring 18 points. David Olliver, in his first start this season, managed 14 points.

"I think the reason they couldn't hit from the outside too well," said Stephens, "was because each time they took a shot we had a hand in their face or they had to shoot over somebody."

Led by Malvern, Ark. transfer Lonnie Buckner (18 points, 13 rebounds),

LEO TO MANAGE JAPANESE LIONS

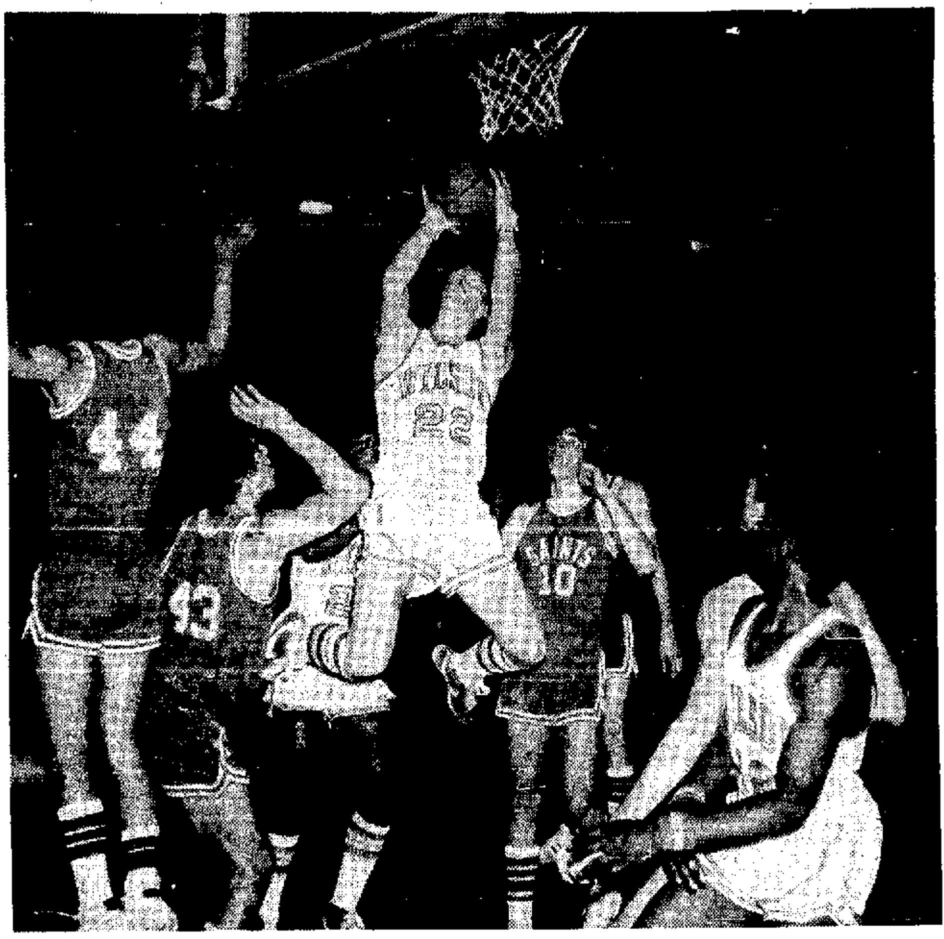
Crusty baseball strategist Leo (The Lip) Durocher will manage the Taiheiyo Lions of Japan next season, Lions owner Nagoyoashi Nakamura announced Friday night.

Terms of the contract were not disclosed, but one Lions official said Durocher, 68, received a pact in "six figures" which would make him "the highest paid baseball manager anywhere."

Nakamura said he had flown to the United States to convince Durocher to sign, and the agreement was reached late Friday at Durocher's home in Palm Springs.

Durocher managed the Brooklyn Dodgers, New York Giants, Chicago Cubs and Houston Astros in a stormy career.

Two players who formerly played in the U.S. major leagues, Matty Alou and Don Buford, are members of the Lions, who finished third in the Pacific Division last year.



Getting the jump on Saints

Wilson High's Gary Mulder (22) scores two of his 17 points as Bruins avenge earlier defeat with 63-50 win over St. Anthony Friday. Looking on are Saints Dave Ramsey (44), Ralph Esposito (43) and Lance Dietrich (10) and Bruin Jerry Anderson (12). See story page C-2.

Kareem ejection leads to another Laker loss

PHILADELPHIA (AP)— A pair of substitutes, rookie Joe Bryant and second-year pro Coniel Norman, scored 37 points between them to help the Philadelphia 76ers to a 109-106 victory over the Lakers Friday night.

The defeat, combined with Seattle's 112-100, overtime win in Phoenix moved the Sonics into second place in the NBA's Pacific Division by one-half game, the first time the Lakers have been lower than second all season.

Losers in seven of their last eight games, the Lakers continue their seven-game road trip in Milwaukee Sunday. They are 0-3 since leaving the Forum and 22-20 for the season.

The Lakers, who lost for the 18th time in their last 21 road games, were hurt in the second period when 7-foot-2 center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar was ejected for throwing the ball into the stands. He had been charged with a personal foul.

The Lakers led at the time, 35-27, and appeared to have control of the game, but the 76ers rallied to lead, 60-58, at halftime.

The Lakers regained the lead early in the third quarter and led until George McGinnis sent the 76ers in front, 97-95, with 4:21 remaining in the game.

The lead changed hands before Bryant sent Philadelphia ahead to stay with a driving layup with 34 seconds to play. The layup gave the Sixers a 105-104 edge.

McGinnis led Philadelphia with 21 points, while

49ers match records with Arizona St.

By JIM McCORMACK
Staff Writer

TEMPE, Ariz. — Four and oh, two and six...the difference is as apparent as night and day.

Or, home and away.

"We're going to have to do something about that road record," points out Dwight Jones, whose Long Beach State basketball team is batting 1.000 (4 for 4) in the win column at home but only .333 (2 for 6) away from Long Beach.

"We're playing better at home because we know each other better," offers 49er forward Anthony McGee, "and we're going to play tougher on the road from now on.

Tonight will be a difficult time to start.

The 49ers, who improved their over-all record to 6-6 with wins over Colorado (Saturday) and L.A. State (Monday), open a two-contest sojourn here tonight against the lusty Sun Devils of Arizona State University.

The encounter begins at 6:30 (PST) and can be heard on KFOX-AM (1280). Monday night the 49ers duel Weber State in Ogden, Utah.

Tonight the 49ers take on a team that has been virtually ignored by its fans although it has lost only once, by four points, in eight games.

The Sun Devils have been the victims of a malady known as "basketball season doesn't start until football season is over."

In Tempe, the "sickness" was caused by a football team that was 12-0, beat Nebraska in the Fiesta Bowl and then was voted the No. 2 team in the nation.

"To be honest with you, I don't even know much about the basketball team," publicist Dick Mullins conceded Friday. "I've been involved with football until this week."

• The Sun Devils have lost only to Oregon State (87-83) in the first round of a holiday tournament in Lexington, Ky.

• Ned Wulk lost four starters from last year's NCAA tournament team and then lost a fifth to a knee injury early this season, but has put together a talented lineup of 6-5 Gary Jackson, 6-7 Ken Wright, 6-10 Scott Lloyd, 6-2 Rick Taylor and 6-4 James Holliman.

• Lloyd, the only starter returning for 1974-75, is the team's leading scorer (20.4) and rebounder (8.5).

• The Sun Devils have never lost (19 games) in their shiny, two-year-old University Activity Center.

Black Hawks 1, Flames 1— Cliff Koroll tallied for Chicago while Dave Krykow beat Tony Esposito from in close as teams battled to standoff. Atlanta took the early lead when Krykow scored on a pass from Tim Ecclestone. But Koroll earned Chicago the tie when he tapped in a loose puck from a scramble in front of Flames goalie Phil Myre after 7:07 of the second period.

Seals 5, Capitals 0— Al MacAdam scored two goals and Gary Simmons turned in his first shutout of the season. Bob Murdoch added three assists as California handed Washington its 20th consecutive loss. California scored two goals in each of the first periods and both times the goals came with 30 seconds of each other. Dennis Maruk closed out the scoring in the final period, connecting on a 40-footer.

College highlights

Pepperdine 75, USF 65— Center Marcos Leite scored 22 points and forward Ollie Matson Jr. had 19 points and 11 rebounds to lead Waves to upset victory over 20th-ranked Dons. The 6-foot-6 Matson scored six of his points in a late Wave rally which saw them outscore the Dons 13-4 and take a 73-61 lead. The Pepperdine triumph in the West Coast Athletic Association opener for both teams came before a capacity — and school record — crowd of 3,500. The victory gives the Waves a 10-2 overall mark, and the loss was San Francisco's fourth in 15 contests. Flintie Williams added 19 points for Pepperdine, and San Francisco was led by Howard Smith, who had 18 points.

San Francisco St. 87, Hayward St. 75— Nehemiah Browa and Greg Bond scord 18 points each as San Francisco rallied from one-point deficit to steadily pull away in second half.

Mat victory to Lakewood

Bob Legaspi ran his season record to 19-0 with a major decision as Lakewood opened the Moore League wrestling season with a 38-24 victory over Jordan.

Fourteen of Legaspi's victories have come by pins.

Brad Clagg and Mark Venanzi came through with key wins. Clagg scored a superior decision at 129 pounds and Venanzi eked out the closest decision of the night as he made one penalty point stand up.

$12 million Coliseum refurbishing?

From Our L.A. Bureau

Newly elected Coliseum Commission president Pete Schabarum has two New Year's wishes — one to refurbish the 53-year-old stadium, the other to effect a long-term contract with the Rams.

Schabarum, a county supervisor who was elected president of the nine-member commission, said the two goals go hand-in-hand.

A former U. California football star who played three seasons with the San Francisco 49ers, Schabarum said remodeling of the stadium would be financed through issuance of revenue bonds.

He said plans have been drawn for lowering the playing field to add 11 more rows of seats and eliminating the running track. Also, the east end of the stadium would be enclosed with the peristyle remaining as a "free-form monument." He said the Coliseum offices would remain in that area.

Schabarum said refurbishing costs would range up to $12 million and would be paid for out of revenues generated by leasing the Coliseum for college and professional sports events.

"The improvements are mandatory to add to the Coliseum's revenue generating capabilities," Schabarum said. "However, it will take tight fiscal management to achieve the goals as we have in mind."

Schabarum said a new contract with the Rams is in the offing following the refurbishment, and said the commission is looking a long-term pact to assure repayment of the bonds.

The Rams presently are on the final year of a three-year contract, with an option for one more three-year pact.

Schabarum said he is hopeful that if agreements are reached on the restructuring of the stadium and the contract negotiations that a 25-year pact with the Rams will result.

'Just this one time, please?'

No amount of pleading by Laker coach Bill Sharman will change referee Bill Saar's decision Friday night. Saar ejected center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar in second quarter for throwing ball at him and socked Sharman with technical foul for delaying game with his arguing.

Leading by a single point at intermission, Washington's Huskies exploded in the second half to stretch their unbeaten record to 12-0 Friday with a 76-56 win over host California (6-4).

At Stanford, Washington State (8-2) survived a late comeback for a 62-60 Pacific-8 Conference decision over the Cardinals (4-7).

James Edward and Lars Hansen, Washington's tree-top tall frontliners, combined for 26 points and 12 rebounds as the eighth-ranked Huskies outscored the Bears, 47-28, the final 20 minutes.

Norton Barnhill's four-foot basket with less than three minutes remaining was WSU's final points, but more than enough as Stanford missed three shots that would have sent the game into overtime.

Ripley rockets 18-1¼

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Dan Ripley pole vaulted 18-1¼, best ever indoors by an amateur and second only to pro Steve Smith's 18-4, and won the event on his third leap Friday night in the National Invitational indoor track meet.

Ripley, a 22-year-old San Jose State graduate and newest member of the Pacific Coast Club of Long Beach, went under the cross bar on his first two attempts in the first U.S. indoor meet of 1976.

Clearing the bar on his final attempt, Ripley set off a thunderous ovation from a meet-record crowd of 11,873 in Maryland's Cole Fieldhouse.

Wojciech Buciarski of Poland, who stayed even with Ripley at 17-6, failed on his third try at the winning height after coming much closer on his first two tries.

Ripley, 5-11 and 180 pounds, last year leaped 18-1 both indoors and outdoors. His outdoor mark equalled the National Collegiate Athletic Association record although he finished second to Earl Bell of Arkansas State.

Earlier on the program, which drew a host of world class performers, Houston McTear, Florida high school sprint sensation, equalled the meet record of 5.9 seconds in the 60-yard dash and Eamonn Coghlan of Ireland ran a 3:59.7 mile.

McTear was first out of the starting blocks to easily win his heat in 5.9 seconds, and then equalled that time in the finals despite a poor start.

Defending champion Steve Riddick was third while matching Crawford's time of six seconds flat. Ivory Crockett, who like McTear has run 100 yards in nine seconds, finished sixth and last in the finals at 6.2 seconds.

Coghlan, a Villanova senior and the NCAA indoor and outdoor mile champion, ran the last quarter in 56.8 seconds. Danie Malan of South Africa was passed on the last lap by Coghlan but rallied to cut away at a 15-yard deficit and trailed by only two yards at the finish in 3:59.8. Len Hilton of the Pacific Coast Club was third at 4:00.7.

Rick Wohlhuter defended his 880 title in a disappointing 1:50.1; Joe Myatt won the 60-yard high hurdles in 7.1 while defeating defending champion Larry Shipp; Geoff Capes of Great Britain took the shot at 65-7, and Debbie LaPlante repeated in the women's 60-yard hurdles at 7.7.

15 in row for Poly

Wilson blitzes Saints, 63-50

By KEN PIVERNETZ
Staff Writer

Wilson High made the most of a built-in revenge factor for its second meeting of the season with St. Anthony High Friday night.

The Bruins, the only Long Beach team to lose to the Saints in five prior games, used a first half blitz to cushion a 63-50 victory before a capacity-plus crowd at St. Anthony.

It was Wilson's third win in a row, and coach Butch Taylor believes his team is rounding into shape for Moore League competition which commences next Friday.

"We've been playing with some of the intensity lately that I had hoped for all along," he said. "But if we've been slow to peak, at least we're coming along at the right time."

The Bruins overpowered St. Anthony during a four minute 19-4 blitz that spanned the first and second quarters. At one stretch the Bruins forced five turnovers in a row with their pressure defense that Steve Hunt, Gary Mulder, Jerry Anderson and Gary Smith converted into easy baskets.

Taylor agreed that Wilson played well in the first half, "but you can see what happens when we slack off," he added.

Trailing 34-20 at halftime, St. Anthony battled back to draw within 39-37 at 1:02 of the third quarter, scoring 10 points in a row as talented Dave Ramsey drove the baseline twice for baskets and dropped in a 14-footer.

After Tony Spanier went around Anderson for a reverse layin to get the Saints within two points, Wilson suddenly turned the momentum its way in the final 60 seconds of the third quarter.

After Hunt sank one of two freee throw at 0:51, Kevin Riley turned poor Saint pass into an easy basket that also saw the Saints called for a technical foul when someone touched the backboard while the ball was in play.

Mulder converted the free throw for a 43-37 advantage, that quickly jumped to eight points as Hunt's drive was good at the buzzer to end the period.

The Saints, now 4-9, never got closer than six points in the final eight minutes.

Wilson is now 10-5.

POLY won its 15th game of an undefeated season Friday night, but the Jackrabbits' big news came with the announcement that 6-8 junior Manuel Johnson will be lost to the team for at least three weeks. He suffered a shattered left kneecap in a non-basketball accident.

But on a team as talented as Poly's, all it probably means is that blue chippers Johnny Nash and Mike Wiley are going to play even more.

Wiley, also 6-8, had a super game in a 81-63 victory over Duarte at Long Beach City College, pulling down 14 rebounds and hitting 12 of 17 field goals to finish with a season-high 25 points.

MILLIKAN, which had struggled in splitting two games earlier in the week, found its shooting eye again at El Rancho, running off with an 85-64 victory.

John White scored 19 points and pulled down 14 rebounds as the Rams hit on 33 of 57 shots. The Rams had Rich Manoogian, Greg Wysocki and Greg Perkins come off the bench to contribute 21 points and back up starters White, Steve Trefzger (15), Jim Whalen (12) and Doug Marty (12).

Shaw lowers record in Long Beach St. win

Tim Shaw lowered the 1,000-meter school record Friday night as Long Beach State tuned up for Arizona with a double-dual swimming victory over San Diego State and Occidental.

The 49ers, who host the Wildcats tonight at 8 in Belmont Plaza Olympic Pool, trounced San Diego State by 74 points and Occidental by 73.

"We'll need the same type of effort to have a chance of beating Arizona," said LBSU coach Dick Jochums. The Wildcats have already beaten BYU, a team which hammered the 49ers earlier in the season.

Shaw shaved six seconds off his own school record, lowering the mark to 9:24.83. The freshman sensation also won the 200 freestyle and swam the leadoff leg on the 49ers' victorious 400 medley relay.

Marina, Los Alamitos 2-0 after Sunset wins

Marina High overcame guard Rich Branning's poorest shooting night of the season to improve its Sunset League record to 2-0 Friday night with a 56-46 win over host Newport.

Branning's, Marina's leading scorer, was held to eight points (his previous season-low was 20) but the Vikings got double-figure scoring from three other players.

Dan Boldt (14), Tom Ugland and Mike Buhler (12 apiece) combined for 38 points to bring Marina's overall record to 12-3.

Kim Cooke led the losers with 14.

Los Alamitos also upped its mark to 2-0 with a 74-64 win over host Edison.

Gary Strawridge tallied 21 points to lead the way for the Griffins. Center Tim Beckerle added 18 while Bob Vogelsang scored 29 for the shorter Chargers (1-1).

Marina and Los Alamitos Wednesday at Marina, 7 p.m.

Westminster outscored Fountain Valley 12-4 in the final quarter to edge the visitors, 37-31.

The 31 yielded by the Lions was a school record for fewest points allowed. Tim Page (11) and Ed Romine (10) provided the offense for Westminster (1-1).

Huntington Beach remained undefeated in Empire League play (2-0), surviving Saddleback's slow-down efforts, 33-27.

The Oilers led after three quarters, 19-14, before opening up the game in the fourth quarter with good outside shooting.

Junior center Clark Sims led the winners with 11 points.

Rancho Alamitos and Los Amigos improved their Garden Grove League records to 2-0 with wins.

Los Amigos had an easy time with Pacifica, 59-42, as Leo Gonzales led the way with 20 points. Randy James and Tim Davidson helped out with 12 points apiece.

Rancho Alamitos had a tougher time with Bolsa Grande, 50-49. Center Dave Wear, who led all scorers with 22 points, sank a basket with 20 seconds remaining that proved to be the winner for Rancho.

Gym powers vie at LBCC tonight

UCLA hosts the University of Oklahoma in a gymnastics dual match in the Long Beach City College men's gym tonight at 7:30 p.m.

Also participating, but not involved in the scoring, will be the University of Arizona and seven-time California junior college champions Long Beach City College.

Arizona, ranked in the top ten last season, will meet the Vikings in a separate dual match, but because the California junior college season does not officially begin until February, the action will be classed as a scrimmage.

Each performer will be scored by judges, but only the UCLA-Oklahoma running score will be kept.

Oklahoma, which finished fifth nationally last season, was originally scheduled to meet the Bruins at UCLA, but scheduling problems forced Westwood officials to search for another site. They settled for Long Beach because, according to LBCC gymnastic coach John Draghi, "they liked our community spirit."

LBCC graduates Steve Sargeant (second in NCAA high bar last season), junior college all-America Elliot Schnee (1975 state junior college record holder on rings) and John Hart (1975 state junior college high bar champ) will compete for UCLA.

Draghi expects top performances from sophomore Frank Martin (1975 state all-around champ), Danny James (third last year in the state on the pommel horse), and 1975 all-Los Angeles high bar champ Chad Nounnan.

Admission is free.

Lynwood scores quickly, beats Bellflower, 80-55

By DAVE FERRELL

Lynwood High jumped to a 16-2 lead after one quarter and cruised to an 80-55 victory over Bellflower in San Gabriel Valley League play Friday night.

Bellflower went over five minutes without scoring before a basket by junior Kurt Herbst put the Buccaneers behind, 8-2. Herbst led both teams with 26 points, 14 in the third quarter.

Coach Bill Notley said the fast start was the key to the Lynwood's second league win.

"We shot fairly well and by getting the early lead we made them play our type of game," Notley said. "If they (the Buccaneers) had made their first few shots they could have kept the pace slow. We like to run up and down the court.

"We knew Herbst would be taking most of their shots, since he's their best ballplayer and we tried to slough off the other players and concentrate on him."

Howard Henderson hit 4-of-5 shots to lead the Knights in the first quarter, and Darrell Allums and Tom Freeman took over the scoring in the second half. Henderson finished with 17, just behind Allums' 21 and Freeman's 18.

Freeman scored 14 of his total after intermission.

Bellflower cut a 24-point halftime lead to 12 after three quarters behind the scoring of Herbst, but Lynwood regained momentum in the final period.

Warren and La Mirada kept pace with Lynwood to remain undefeated in league.

Brian Lumsden tallied 25 points and grabbed a season-high 14 rebounds to help Warren past Cerritos, 81-58.

Warren, which hit 56 per cent of its floor shots, enjoyed a 22-point effort from Chris Marsh and 12 assists from Jim Klunder.

Cerritos, playing without Rodney Miller and Mark Smith, was led by Dave Navaratte's 16 points. Eric Arnold added 11.

La Mirada ran its season record to 13-0 with a 75-51 triumph over Norwalk.

La Mirada, which led only 27-26 at halftime, exploded for 24 points in the third period en route to its victory.

Jeff Brewer, who led the victors with 22 points, connected on all six of his floor shots in the second half (10-for-11 in the game) and Doug Widtfeldt scored 13 of his 20 points in the third quarter.

La Mirada connected on 57 per cent of its field shots in the second when it outscored Norwalk, 48-25.

Downey scored its first league win of the young season with a 73-56 decision over Paramount.

Steve Driessen poured in 23 points and Mark Elman chipped in 18 to pace Downey. Tom Day was held to nine points.

Downey broke the contest open in the second quarter when it outscored the hosts, 25-15. The Vikings enjoyed a tremendous rebounding edge over Paramount, grabbing 35 to the Pirates' seven.

Tom Riskey paced Paramount with 15 points and Ken Korver added 11. High-scoring Al Alcaraz totalled only two.

Baubien			7.40

Start good from gate, won easily.
Mutuel pool—$115,102.

MUTATION MISS moved inside horses and checked on the far turn, rallied in the middle of the track through the stretch to wear down AQUA SPRITE with ease and won going away. The latter broke in stride to share the early lead, drew clear on the stretch turn then could do little when caught by the winner. BAUBIEN drifted out midway on the turn and went evenly in the stretch.

Scratched—Testifying, Drive Of Roses, Imbros Doll.

Race for $127,000 at Alamitos

Mito Wise Dancer and Mr. Breakthru, a pair of outstanding colts, will face the challenge of a fleet field of sprinters in the $127,000 El Primero del Ano Derby at Los Alamitos Race Course tonight.

Mito Wise Dancer, the fastest qualifier, and Mr. Breakthru, the richest entry, bring a combined record of 17 wins in 36 career starts into the fourth running of the nation's first major quarter horse event of the new year.

He Flys, Miss Reber, Bonnie Boone, Mr. Roan Deck, Poppa John, Nice N Ezy, Jonathon and The Kid Sister round out the field for the El Primero del Ano.

Mito Wise Dancer, a late bloomer as a two-year-old, comes into the Derby off a swift and impressive 19.94-second qualifying race a week ago. The three-year-old Mito Paint colt had starting problems through the early part of his freshman campaign, but trainer H.C. Werner reports they were solved, and the colt's recent performances seem to prove it.

He has won four in a row including two impressive victories at Los Alamitos this winter and five of his last six starts. Mito Wise Dancer has won eight of 16 lifetime starts and brings earnings of nearly $50,000 into tonight's race. Danny Cardoza, leading jockey of the winter meet, will be in the saddle.

Mr. Breakthru, the horse that ran the sizzling 17.76-second qualifying workout at 350 yards under the lights a couple of weeks ago, is the richest entry in the standout field with lifetime earnings of $150,000. The swift Easy Jet colt has won three in a row and seven of his last eight races with the lone blemish being a fifth in the All-American Futurity. But for a poor start at Ruidoso, Mr. Breakthru might have finished no worse than second.

He Flys, a Cinderella entry tonight, comes in as the 10th fastest qualifier and had to earn his berth by the luck of a draw after being tied for that position after last week's trials.

Alachic, winner of more than $48,000 last year, dashed to his second successive victory when he and stablemate The Good Thief ran 1-2 Friday in the Quarter Racing World Purse.

Ivan's Easy Jet grabbed the early lead, but the even-money favorite was no match for Alachic and The Good Thief, who passed him near the wire.

Ridden by Ron Banks, Alachic covered the 350 yards in 17.88 with the entry paying $8.80, $8.20 and $3.

Malibu kicks off Strub set

Red-hot Hawley has 4 more wins

Forceten, absent since the $350,000 National Thoroughbred Championship at Oak Tree, and California Derby winner Diabolo begin their 1976 stakes campaigns as co-highweights under 123 pounds each in the $59,450 Malibu Stakes at Santa Anita today.

Two of the top three-year-olds racing in California last season, the just-turned-four Forceten and Diabolo will face nine competitors in the seven-furlong Malibu, which is the first in the three-race Strub series which climaxes with the $100,000 Charles H. Strub Stakes Feb. 8.

Exclusively for four-year-olds, the Strub series has been completed successfully only three times—by Ancient Title in 1974, Hillsdale in 1959 and Round Table in 1958.

Although Forceten, who won the Alibhai Handicap prior to running out of the money in the NTC, and Diabolo carry the most weight under allowance conditions, Messenger of Song was just a fifth of a second off the stakes record when he won the opening day Palos Verdes Handicap Dec. 26 in 1:08 3/5 for six furlongs.

Messenger of Song will be ridden by Jerry Lambert, while Forceten will have Don Pierce up. Diabolo, who finished third in a one-mile allowance Dec. 28, will have Sandy Hawley in the saddle.

Hawley continued his red-hot riding Friday, fashioning four winners after scoring five victories in six races Thursday. A crowd of 21,719 saw him score aboard Big Band in the featured $25,000 Kern County Purse.

With nine wins through 14 races in two days, Hawley shows 22 victories through the first dozen days of the meeting. He scored aboard Noel's Bagel ($6) in the second race and El Penon ($4) in the fifth.

Outsider Big Band ($11.60) posted a narrow head verdict over favored No Bias and Against The Snow in the feature.

UCLA eyes 2-0 mark in Pac-8

Combined News Services

UCLA, still shaking from its 62-61 victory over Oregon Thursday evening, looks for an easier time with Oregon State this afternoon and a solid 2-0 record after one week of Pacific-8 Conference play.

The Bruins and Beavers are featured at 3:30 in the Pac-8 game of the week (Channel 5). Tonight USC attempts to rebound from Thursday's 80-70 loss to Oregon State by keeping alive coach Bob Boyd's streak of never having lost to Oregon in Eugene. KTLA will televise that contest at 8.

UCLA might be in the basement looking up today had it not been for forward Richard Washington's 23-point, 10-rebound effort Thursday. Guards Andre McCarter (3-9), Raymond Townsend (2-5) and Jimmy Spillane (1-5) were a collective 6-19 from the field, producing only 18 points.

Golden Triple slated

California races worth $500,000

California will assume national leadership in the presentation of pre-Triple Crown competition for three-year-old thoroughbreds with a new series, California Golden Triple, worth an estimated $500,000 and involving the 1976 California, Santa Anita and Hollywood Derbies.

To make the California Golden Triple a reality, it was necessary to make a revision in the previously announced date for the Hollywood Derby and to shift the California Derby from what in recent years has become a traditional placement.

The California Derby at Golden Gate Fields will lead off the parade of sophomore classics. It will be run March 6 at 1 1/16 miles. At a guaranteed $150,000, it will be the richest thoroughbred race in Northern California history.

The Santa Anita Derby, March 28, one of six Santa Anita hundred-granders, is expected to reach a value of $135,000 for its 39th running.

Reset from April 10 to April 17 (two weeks before the Kentucky Derby), the Hollywood Derby will be worth $200,000—the richest announced event for three-year-olds in the nation.

Jo's Martini, Myles	7	117	15-1
Bunny Hunter, Watson	9	122	15-1
Kracklin Kathy, Treece	2	117	20-1

ROCKET CHIC gets jockey Danny Cardoza aboard and can be tabbed for a wakeup performance. NOTHER PROFIT a stout threat with this kind. BATTLE HIM helps make it a very interesting opening exacta event.
LONGSHOT—INFIGHTER.

372—SECOND RACE. 540 yards. 3 year olds & up. Allowance. Purse $2,400.

Chained Rocket, Ward	4	119	5-2

Lee Bar Watch, Adair	1	119	4-1
Nuther Willow, Watson	3	119	4-1
Soloman's World, Mitchell	6	119	15-1

CHAINED ROCKET appears to be on the improve and loves this 540 yard distance. ROAN MAMBO is sharp and figures as a stout threat for it all. LYNN CEE shouldn't be far off at the wire.
LONGSHOT—SOLOMONS WORLD.

373—THIRD RACE. 350 yards. 3 year old maidens. Calif-bred. Claiming. Purse $1,700. Claiming price $6,500.

TOP ETTA gets a good spot for maiden victory. HEIDIS ANGEL figures to make top one hustle all the way. TWO GRACES looks best of the others.
LONGSHOT—QUEEN OF ANGELES.

374—FOURTH RACE. 870 yards. 3 year olds & up. Allowance. Purse $7,000.

Wheatland, Ward	5	129	9-5
Big Badger Bar, Adair	2	121	3-1
The Moonshiner, Cardoza	4	119	7-2
American Gent, Hart	1	124	4-1
Savannah Lark, Nicdus	3	121	8-1
Zip's Son, Lipham	6	121	15-1

WHEATLAND is back at his favorite 870 yard distance. BIG BADGER BAR won in very fast time and could prove a repeater. THE MOONSHINER well overdue for top effort.
LONGSHOT—ZIPS SON.

375—FIFTH RACE. 400 yards. 3 year olds & up. Allowance. Purse $3,000.

Lanty's Jet, Adair	6	117	9-5

NO 'SUPER DIVISION,' HORN URGES NCAA

Calling next week's NCAA convention in St. Louis "the most crucial in history," Long Beach State president Stephen Horn has asked fellow university presidents to resist attempts by the football super powers to establish "a cartel within a cartel."

President Horn's appeal, via letter, was sent to 630 presidents of NCAA member institutions in the proposed Divisions I-A, II and III.

It made special note of the proposed reorganization which would create a "super division" of 78 institutions, hand picked from the present Division I.

"If this resolution is adopted," Horn said, "it will be the old story of the 10 per cent in the NCAA getting richer and the 90 per cent getting poorer. Should this super division succeed, Divisions I-A, II and III can forget any television of their games in the years ahead. The cartel within the cartel will determine that.

"What crumbs have finally been given to Division III in the 1976-77 NCAA Football Television Plan came about after the revenue sharing scare. The thirst for a share of the television money will probably drive some institutions away from Division I-A and II conferences to pursue an independent route or to be accepted by the 'big boys'."

Four other issues are pinpointed in Horn's letter —television revenue, presidential involvement in the policy and regulatory bodies of the NCAA, a "needs" test to determine the availability of aid grants, and the obligations of the organization to women athletes.

"Many of us feel that there should be basic changes in the governance structure of national intercollegiate athletics if we are to provide adequate opportunities for women athletes and to develop policies in an economic and sensible manner," Horn said.

Among five other resolutions, proposed or co-proposed by president Horn, is one that would give the NCAA 75 per cent of the gross receipts from extra events, such as post-season football contests. The NCAA would divide its funds accordingly: 50 per cent to the participating schools, 25 per cent to all football-playing Division I members, 12.5 per cent to Division II playing members and 12.5 per cent to Division III playing members.

Another proposal concerns the television plan. After expenses, the remaining net proceeds would be pro-rated equally to member institutions as follows: 50 per cent to Division I, 25 per cent to Division II and 25 per cent to Division III football-playing members.

International gym meet at Fullerton

The nation's first international woman's gymnastic meet of the new year, an Olympic year, will be held today when the Kips host their fourth Gymnastics Invitational at Fullerton State.

Five California clubs, two from Canada (Quebec and Toronto) and one from Oregon, Pennsylvania, Colorado, Arizona and Nevada will participate in a six-member team session based on cumulative scores beginning at 10 a.m. and concluding at 4 p.m. Individual competition begins at 7 p.m.

Among the competitors will be Kelly Muncey of the Kips. Miss Muncey, a Canadian citizen attending Lakewood High, startled Russia's Maria Filatova in the '75 MilkMeet in Montreal with a 37.30-37.20 upset victory.

Other highly regarded competitors include Arizona's Tammy Manville, 1975 elite all-around champion and a member of the USA pre-Olympics team; Diane Dunbar, U.S. Pan American team member, and Donna Turnbow, the junior national all-around bar champion and U.S. team member in the world junior meet in Tokyo.

Admission is $2 for team competition, $4 for individual competition or $5 for both sessions.

Golf's 'big guns' close on Tucson Open tri-leaders

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Veteran Dave Hill, insisting he isn't playing well, fashioned a three-under-par 69 that gave him a share of the second-round lead Friday in the $200,000 Tucson Open Golf Tournament.

While Hill, first-round leader Gibby Gilbert and young Pat Fitzsimons shared the lead at 137, a battery of golf's big guns wheeled into position for a shot at the $40,000 first prize.

Johnny Miller, Tom Weiskopf, Lee Trevino and British Open champion Tom Watson were within easy striking distance for the title the first tournament of 1976.

Weiskopf, who could have been in a tie for the lead except for a bogey on the final hole, and Watson were the closest at 138, six-under-par after two trips over Tucson National Golf Club course.

Weiskopf shot 71 and Watson, a three-time winner last year, a 68 in the mild, breezy weather.

Trevino had a 67 despite what he called some shoddy putting and was tied with Miller—the record-setting winner of this event for the last two years—at 139, two strokes behind.

Miller managed a 69 and said he may be ready to make his move.

"I'm not disappointed with my game," he said. "I'm just not doing what I did last year. But I might shoot a really low round anytime now. A 62 would be easy the way I'm hitting the ball."

There were 16 golfers locked within three strokes of the top midway through the tournament.

Arnold Palmer wasn't among them. The 46-year-old master shot a 73 and was a victim of the cut at 150.

Fitzsimons, the 25-year-old winner of the Los Angeles Open last year, had the day's best round, a 65, to claim a piece of the lead. Gilbert had the top spot alone until bogeying the final hole, missing the green. He finished with a 71.

"I've got a new set of irons—just started using them Wednesday—and a new putter and I'm just trying to find a way to hit the ball," said Hill, who has gained a reputation as the game's outspoken maverick. "I haven't got the feel of the clubs yet. I can't get the ball close to the hole."

Monday ?????

Forecast for Sunday

Your birthday today: Self-fulfillment is the theme throughout your entire year as you begin to put to use formerly latent talents. Your earning capacity rises, and it's possible you may switch to another specialty. Relationships take more time and energy now. Today's natives have mercurial dispositions and great personal charm, are intrigued by psychology and curious about what makes people tick.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Take comments at face value and go on. Try to coax people out of yesterday's moods. Spend some time planning the week ahead.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): There isn't much to do, so you're free to do it gracefully. Keep your sense of humor. Catch up on visiting, letter writing and things that broaden your social horizons.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): The urge to move involves you in a crowded situation. People aren't likely to behave in any consistent pattern; try to sidestep problems. Secrets pop from unexpected sources.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Work on resolving differences among friends, but don't take sides for any reason. Socializing is feasible. Bring your mate along to enjoy introductions and important contacts.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Leave business out of today's activities unless you are cultivating relationships that can be useful in the future. Take time to meditate. Organize a master plan for your coming week.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You've got everything going in your favor, but you must break away from old attitudes to get the full benefits of present conditions. Let people be themselves.

Libra (Sept. 23-Sept. 22): Prepare for sudden incidents as you wound up the details of your home situation. No one is spared from endless discussions. Take time out for yourself.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Make your regular Sunday appearance in good style. See what you can do to help others taper off from yesterday's stress. You make important social contacts today.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You can make a worthwhile contribution by allowing others to learn from their mistakes. Take in some art, music, and cultural entertainment.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Promote your favorite pastimes and encourage everyone else to line up theirs. It's all right to compete. Try to improve your personal drafts.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Seek the easiest, most practical course. Allow people to form their own conclusions. Visit those who are unable to come see you. Share intellectual hobbies.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Health care continues to be important; try to get some outdoor exercise. Move around among your neighbors and get acquainted with newcomers in the community.

GAO hits personnel infractions

WASHINGTON (AP) — An investigation of personnel practices at the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration reveals 31 instances of hiring and promotion that might not have been entirely proper, the General Accounting Office reported Friday.

The GAO, Congress' watchdog agency, made the investigation at the request of Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., chairman of the Interstate and Foreign Committee Committee's investigatory panel.

Moss had asked for information on the hiring and promotion practices involving 20 individuals at the DEA.

In its report, the GAO said 10 of the 20 did not compete as required by the DEA's merit-promotion plan and the Federal Personnel Manual.

TWO MORE were promoted or hired without the internal agency competition required by the merit plan, the GAO said. And it said six were hired or promoted without apparent competition, although there was compliance with the merit-promotion plan and the manual.

The GAO also said it reviewed 55 hirings and promotions between July 1, 1974, and March 18, 1975 and found that 24 per cent—involving 13 persons—were without the competition required by the merit plan and the manual.

The jobs included a wide variety of positions from clerical through the professional levels in both Washington and elsewhere, GAO said.

Names of the individuals hired or promoted were not mentioned.

Proposal amended to preserve farm land

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A bill to preserve prime farmland from urban development has been amended to try to soften the opposition of cities and counties.

Assemblyman Charles Warren, D-Los Angeles, says the amendments will make his bill more flexible and "lessen the intensity of the opposition."

WARREN'S measure, expected to be one of the year's major issues, would virtually forbid any activity but farming on about 12 million acres of land.

One of his amendments would allow a city or county to develop a parcel of prime farmland if it could prove to a state agency that the land was needed more for a purpose other than food production.

Other amendments would exempt cities and counties with less than 1,600 acres of prime farmland—which Warren says is 90 per cent of them — from the time-consuming process of mapping their farmlands, and would rule out a building moratorium while the others were preparing their maps.

WARREN said Thursday he thought no more than 100,000 acres would be removed from the bill's protection by the amendments.

Warren, chairman of the Assembly's Resources, Land Use and Energy Committee, has warned of aggravated food shortages unless California moves quickly to save its farmland.

Everybody's got things around they no longer need ... and they'd like to sell. And the place to advertise those things is the I,P-T Classified Section. To prove the point, we've listed some recent Classified ads below. Next to them are listed the number of calls the people received — and the number of people who are still looking for similar items.

RECENT ADS	NUMBER OF CALLS	PEOPLE STILL LOOKING
John Novak of Cerritos sold his Chevy camper with a weekend ad.	14	13
Peter D. Smith, Long Beach, was overwhelmed with the response he got with his ad for a color TV.	80	79
Mrs. Lee Smith, Long Beach, "didn't realize that everyone reads the classified" when she advertized her lawnmower for sale.	20	19
Mrs. Joe Schultz was very pleased with the results of her ad for a housekeeper. She found one the first day.	29	28

Give you some ideas? We hope so. Because there just isn't a better place than the I,P-T Classified Section, with it's over 400 classifications, for reaching just the people that are looking for the goods or services you've got to offer. Give us a try

Sniper fire rakes beach; 3 boys held

Associated Press

Three 13-year-old boys tried to shoot up everything from sunbathers to jetliners in unleashing almost 300 rounds of sniper fire on a beach, Los Angeles police said Friday night.

No one was injured, however, as the boys fired from a long range with pistols they said they had stolen in house burglaries, said Officer Willie Glenn of Venice Division.

"People didn't know they were being shot at because of the distance," said the officer, with one exception: a surfer who ran for his life when sand kicked up around him.

The location was the Playa Del Rey beach adjacent to busy Los Angeles International Airport. Huge aircraft including jumbo jets take off every few minutes and fly past at low altitude out over the ocean.

Glenn gave this report in part: "They said they shot at a lady in a car at the Westchester High School area; they continued down to the beach and shot at a couple — a man and a woman. Then they shot at a couple of girls and an airplane. That was Thursday night. In the morning they got up and started shooting at other things" — which included a lifeguard station lock, dogs and a duck.

Officers said they found one duck had been killed and that the station lock showed obvious gunfire damage.

"They could have hit a plane with their weapons," added Glenn. "They were close enough."

The officer said he and two other uniformed policemen took the trio into custody with no resistance Friday. He said two loaded revolvers were found, and the boys told of throwing two other guns into the ocean.

The three, all from South Los Angeles homes, were termed "runaways" by their parents. Two had previous juvenile records, police said. All three were booked at Juvenile Hall for investigation of burglary. Officers said shooting charges may follow later.

Police arrived Friday after a neighbor saw the three break into a house. Officers said the boys said they had stolen, burglarized and shoplifted the guns and ammunition, and on their crosstown trip to the beach had till-tapped a hamburger stand for expense money.

Brown gambles on budget

Asks $622 million more with no new taxes

By BOB SCHMIDT
From Our State Bureau

SACRAMENTO — Gov. Brown, gambling on cooperation from the Legislature and California's continued economic recovery, Friday proposed a $12.6 billion 1976-77 budget which requires no new taxes.

Increased tax revenues resulting from the economic upturn will more than offset inflation and enable the state to finance a spending plan $622 million larger than the current fiscal year's without additional tax sources, the governor said.

There will even be a $519.3 million surplus on June 30, 1977, he said.

But for the budget to work, not only will California individuals and business have to earn more money to be taxed and spend more money to be taxed, but the Legislature will have to go along with a large number of controversial proposals.

These include limiting pay increases for all state employes, "from judges to janitors," to a flat $65 a month regardless of present income, continued tight rein on education funds, highway spending emphasizing expanded use of existing facilities rather than construction of new roads and freeways, and several state-agency reorganization proposals.

For instance, Brown proposed taking the Department of Alcholic Beverage Control, which regulates the manner in which liquor is sold, out of the Business and Transportation Agency and combining it with a newly established Office of Alcoholism in the Health and Welfare Agency.

The emphasis would shift from checking up on the apparel of girls dancing in bars to combatting the harmful effects of alcohol, he suggested.

The Air Resources Board was given a whopping $17.7 million budget increase, primarily to finance the construction of 23 auto emission control test stations in the South Coast Air Basin.

But ARB Chairman Tom Quinn said Friday he was not at all sure California would go ahead with the testing program, even though not to do so would invite certain financial penalties — by way of withheld road-construction funds — from the Federal Government.

"We'll probably make a decision in March," Quinn said.

Kindergarten through high-school funding went up a total of $153 million, but $111.7 million of that is because of existing formula apportionments which educators insist are inadequate, and another $34.5 million is for the controversial Early Childhood Education program championed by State Superintendent of Public Instruction Wilson Riles.

Cal. may stop L.B. oil port

From Our State Bureau

SACRAMENTO — The Air Resources Board's chairman and executive officer agreed Friday that Long Beach may not be allowed to receive Alaskan oil at its planned deep-water port.

William Lewis, executive offier, said "we think bringing it (oil from Alaska) into the South Coast Air Basin is intolerable."

Standard Oil Co. of Ohio recently gave Long Beach the nod over Los Angeles Harbor for the oil terminal.

The decision to locate the port in Long Beach is not final, Lewis said, and suggested that the powerful state agency "would like to find some other place for it."

Tom Quinn, chairman of the Air Resources Board, denied that any judgment had yet been made on the proposed port's Long Beach location.

"There is a real possibility that operation of the facilities proposed would be in violation of the Federal Clean Air Act, based on our observation of similar facilities," Quinn said.

"But I believe the technology exists to operate such a facility in accord with federal law. It will require the spending of some money, but in comparison with the value of the oil to be moved it is infinitesimal.

"We recognize that a lot of the Alaskan oil must come into California to be shipped elsewhere in the country, and we only want to insure that there is no adverse impact on air quality."

It is not true, Quinn said, that a decision had already been made to oppose the Long Beach project.

So this is Dixie!

Ford program for America

By PHILIP SHABECOFF
New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — President Ford will propose broad new programs to produce more jobs and more housing and to develop wider energy sources in his State of the Union message to Congress on Jan. 19, a high White House official said Friday.

The President will also call for sharp slashes in foreign aid, a significant reduction of federal employment and the closing of military bases among other means of trying to hold down the growth of federal spending, the aide said.

The official, who is close to the President, said that the State of the Union address would be a major effort by the President to expound his own "vision" of where the nation should be heading and to establish that he has a "positive program for America."

This and several other White House officials indicated that Ford is also counting on his speech and his budget message two days later, to touch off a revival of his currently sagging political fortunes.

Recent public opinion polls indicate that most Americans do not approve of the way Ford is handling his job. But White House aides express confidence that his standing in the polls will rise after he unveils his new programs.

Two of them, jobs and housing, are aimed at problems that could be serious political problems for Ford. The high unemployment rate could be a particularly heavy liability in an election year.

Administration officials have said publicly that the high jobless rate will not be a major political factor because it is tending to go down rather than up and so those Americans now employed are not worrying about losing their jobs. But privately, some of the officials agree that unemployment could be exploited by the President's political opponents.

The President, according to the aide, will propose to bring down the jobless rate through a program of expanded public service employment. The aide would provide no details on the plan nor on the other proposals the President will make in his message to Congress.

Ford has announced that he will call for federal spending of less than $395 billion in fiscal year 1977. Holding the budget to this level would require sharp curtailment of anticipated spending for programs already in existence.

Slowdown in 10th day

MDs charged with endangering lives

By KRIS SHERMAN
Staff Writer

Southland doctors—whose slowdown in protest of skyrocketing malpractice insurance premiums enters its 10th day today—were charged Friday with "endangering lives and the stability of hospitals."

Stuart J. Marylander, president of the Hospital Council of Southern California, made the statement after urging protesting doctors to get back to work.

His plea came amid announcements that hospitals across Los Angeles County were losing money, that more employe layoffs are looming and that county hospitals are nearing capacity.

Dr. William Hyman, president of the Long Beach Medical Association, countered the charge by saying that physicians were "fighting for our professional lives."

HE SAID the slowdown—protesting insurance premium increases of up to 327 per cent—was gathering momentum. Meetings are scheduled next week to recruit doctors in Orange County, San Diego and San Jose, he added.

Hyman's appraisal that the slowdown was gaining effectiveness was underscored by Marion Diamond of the Los Angeles County Health Services Department.

Though Marylander did not amplify his remarks, Mrs. Diamond said she believed he was referring to the "difficulty of possible delays in emergency rooms" at community hospitals where they are only prepared to stabilize and transfer patients.

"Their emergency physicians are on call, but they are not always available," she said.

ANOTHER official, however, admitted that the increased patient load at the county's eight hospitals "has taken its toll" on the system.

Though he pointed out that "county hospitals are traditionally busy and employes are accustomed to working under stress," public information officer Anthony Tripi added that staff members have lately "been put in a position of continuous stress rather than the normal series of peaks and valleys.

"They don't really have time to rest," he said. "I think this slowdown has taken its toll on the system."

He said the patient census at the eight county hospitals rose by 60 admissions to 3,531 Friday. Capacity in the county system is listed at 3,761, though that figure can be stretched in emergencies, he said.

HOSPITAL Council officials, meanwhile, said 97 of 234 member facilities in Los Angeles, Orange, San Bernardino, Ventura and Santa Barbara counties have curtailed services either minimally or severely since the slowdown began Jan. 1.

In Los Angeles County, where the protest is rooted, 82 of 160 hospitals have been affected. A census in other portions of the Southland shows that the action has hit three hospitals in San Bernardino County, 11 of 14 hospitals in Santa Barbara and Ventura counties and one hospital in Orange County.

Hospital Council officials added that, to date, about 3,100 of the organization's 136,000 workers have been laid off. Another 12,175 are working shortened hours, salaries have been reduced for 1,600 and 350 have taken early vacations.

CEDARS-Sinai Medical Center has laid off 1,500, while up to 500 workers have taken enforced "vacations" in Ventura and Santa Barbara counties.

And officials at Bauer Hospital-St. Mary Medical Center in Long Beach announced a new wave of layoffs next week.

Stephanie James, acting director of public relations for the facility, said new layoffs would be announced Monday. Nineteen surgical department employes have already been laid off as a result of the slowdown, she said.

"Bauer Hospital-St. Mary Medical Center continues to experience a worsening effect from the physicians' slowdown," she said. "Surgeries are significantly below normal. Thursday, they were off 56 per cent, and Friday's projections indicated a 72 per cent reduction from schedules one year ago.

"HOSPITAL admissions Thursday were down 71 per cent from last year," she added. "As a result of this week's activity, additional employe layoffs are being effected beginning Monday."

Ms. James said she did not know how many employes would be laid off Monday.

At Memorial Hospital Medical Center officials said the patient census was down about 60 persons. The drop in revenue based on the average $225 per person daily charge in Southern California hospitals could mean a reduced income of $13,500 a day. A hospital spokesman said, however, that the figure did not represent a financial loss but rather a drop in income.

Officials at Long Beach Community Hospital, meanwhile, said the slowdown was costing the facility an estimated $20,000 per week. Officials at Pacific Hospital said a declining patient load there—occupancy was down to 54 per cent—forced the layoffs of three employes.

HOSPITAL Council officials expressed concern that continuance of the slowdown could be the death knell for several of the smaller, community hospitals while severely

Wholesale costs dip, jobless rate level

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON—Inflationary pressures eased a bit in December as wholesale prices dropped for the first time in six months. However, unemployment clung stubbornly at the 8.3 per cent level.

The government said Friday wholesale prices fell four-tenths of 1 per cent because of a decline in agriculture prices.

A quarter-million more Americans found jobs last month, the first monthly increase since last summer. But the nation's jobless rate was unchanged from its November level of 8.3 per cent because the increase in the number of jobs was only enough to absorb an increase in the number of persons hunting for work, the government said.

The reports prompted President Ford's press secretary to say: "Overall, the White House believes the economy continues to recover."

Ron Nessen said wholesale prices "are an indication that inflation is moderating and there is no evidence of acceleration." He also said the rise in the number of people with jobs is encouraging.

AFL-CIO President George Meany said the job picture has not improved because of "President Ford's repeated vetoes of any job-creating legislation." He said the figures show "millions of Americans have been condemned by his administration to the misery of unemployment."

Administration economists forecast only a gradual decline in unemployment, with the rate expected to still be above 7 per cent next November. This is expected to provide Democratic presidential candidates with a major campaign issue to use against Ford.

Although total employment rose by 233,000 to 85,511,000, an estimated 7.8 million Americans were unemployed in December.

Unemployment averaged 8.5 per cent of the labor force in 1975, up from 5.6 per cent in 1974 and the highest annual average in 34 years. In 1941, with the country still shaking off the effects of the Depression, joblessness averaged 9.9 per cent in a work force of 55.9 million.

Economic analysts disagree on whether there will be further progress in reducing inflation. Some economists outside the administration have warned of a new surge late this year or in 1977.

With December's four-tenths per cent decline, wholesale prices in 1975 rose 4.2 per cent, a sharp reduction from the 20.9 per cent jump in 1974 and the smallest year-to-year rise in four years. The price figures are seasonally adjusted.

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California had 890,800 unemployed in December, the lowest level since last March. The 9.6 unemployment rate dropped from the 10 per cent rate in November as the number of jobless declined from 910,400. Services, finance, insurance and the real estate industries also showed small gains.

Commuter trains collide; 400 hurt

Combined News Services

CHICAGO — A packed commuter train crashed into the rear of another train Friday at the height of the morning rush hour, injuring more than 400 of the 600 passengers. The motorman of the train said he was blinded by sunlight reflected off snow shortly before the collision. No one was killed in the crash, but the Chicago Transit Authority, which operated the two electric rapid transit trains, said the crash was one of the worst in recent years. Four persons had to be cut free from the mangled metal with acetylene torches. Both trains carried safety equipment designed to avoid such rear-end collisions, but an automatic signal in a "fail-safe" system on the lead train apparently malfunctioned, a transit spokesman said.

Many schools in five states closed Friday and industry was asked to curb production as freezing temperatures forced a major natural gas firm to conserve its dwindling supply of gas. The Arkansas-Louisiana Gas Co. (Arkla) of Shreveport, La., told school districts and industries in its service area that frigid weather had lowered its natural gas supply and asked the schools to close so that residential customers and hospitals would have enough gas for heat and also urged industries to curb production. The company serves most of Arkansas, northwestern Louisiana, northwestern Texas, and parts of Oklahoma and Kansas. The Federal Energy Administration said most of the gas cutbacks in the Southwest have been to interruptible customers, pretty much as expected. In most cases, interrupted customers have alternative fuel available, the FEA said.

Union merger studied

DETROIT — The United Auto Workers' 26-member international executive board meets here next week to consider rejoining the giant AFL-CIO, with which it split in 1968. The meeting next Tuesday will come one week after 10 presidents of major AFL-CIO unions visited UAW leaders in Detroit in hopes of convincing the UAW to rejoin the labor federation. Leonard Woodcock, president of the 1.5-million-member UAW, said last year during the group's international convention that he favored re-establishing formal ties with the AFL-CIO. The UAW severed its affiliation with the AFL-CIO after the late Walter P. Reuther, then president of the UAW, clashed with George Meany over social issues and the Vietnam war.

Discrimination settlement

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — A federal judge awarded $120,000 in back wages Friday to 43 black railroad employes in a civil rights case that lasted nearly a decade. The ruling by U.S. District Judge Seybourn Lynn also means the plaintiffs, most with 20 to 30 years experience, will have the opportunity to move beyond entry-level switchman jobs to supervisory positions. The black workers, who were employed by the Birmingham Southern Railroad and covered by the United Transportation Union, had charged they lost income because of racial discrimination.

15 die as boiler on ship explodes

HAMBURG, West Germany — The boiler of a container ship under construction in Hamburg harbor exploded Friday during an engine test, killing at least 15 workmen with the force of the blast and scalding steam. Officials said reported dozens of persons were injured and many remained in hospitals, some in critical condition. Twelve victims were killed at the scene and three died later in hospitals. Witnesses who saw the dead and injured being lowered from the hulk of the unfinished vessel, the Anders Maersk, said some of the bodies were scalded bright red by the 900-degree steam. One dock official reported there were many casualties because scores of workers for subcontractors were swarming over the ship, trying to complete last-minute jobs for its scheduled Jan. 17 sea trial.

Ecuador shakeup

QUITO, Ecuador — One general was taken into custody Friday and another was ordered out of the army as rumors of a coup against President Guillermo Rodriguez Lara's military government spread through Ecuador. Both generals were also ministers of the 11-man cabinet, all of whom offered their resignations Wednesday. There were reports that the armed forces commanders were demanding that a four-man military junta replace Rodriguez Lara, a general who seized power in a coup four years ago. Combat troops ringed the palace, where Rodriguez Lara worked throughout the day trying to restructure his cabinet.

Subway strike settled

MADRID — All 3,800 workers of Madrid's subway system have accepted an offer by the company and will return to work today, ending a five-day strike. The subway employes agreed to return to work by unanimous vote held in a suburban Madrid church late Friday. The company promised not to take action against the workers and agreed to a pay increase of $500 a year. The workers had demanded a wage hike of 20 per cent over the current level of about $260 a month as their share of a 20 per cent increase in fares that took effect last August.

Expropriation turnaround

LISBON — Portugal's Socialist Minister of Agriculture Antonio Cardoso presented new guidelines for the controversial agrarian reform program Friday in an apparent move to appease hostile small and medium farmers. Cardoso declared that land illegally occupied would be restored to its owners, farms up to 75 acres would be exempt from expropriation, and that expropriations would be limited to southern Portugal's districts of large estates. Admitting "injustices," the minister told a news conference that some 2.5 million acres of land have been occupied in the name of agrarian reform — about 70 per cent illegally.

Rebels free kidnaped U.S. servicemen

Combined News Services

Two American servicemen kidnaped four months ago by Eritrean rebels in Ethiopia were released in good condition Friday in Sudan, the State Department announced.

They were identified as Thomas Bowidowicz of Jersey City, N. J., a Navy electronics technician, and David Strickland of Longwood, Fla., an Army enlisted man.

In Hollywood, Fla., Strickland's father said the State Department told him his son would be flown to the U.S. next week and examined in Texas by tropical-disease experts.

The father, Leonard Strickland, said his son, who is 24 years old, had written that he had lost 20 to 30 pounds from dysentery and heat exhaustion.

The younger Strickland wrote of his illness in a letter to his wife, Leonard Strickland said. He said he received a letter from his son about three weeks ago, dated two weeks after the capture, and that the Bowidowicz family got a letter from young Bowidowicz at the same time.

The two young men were working at the Kagnew Naval Communications Facility in Asmara when they were abducted last Sept. 13 by members of the Eritrean Liberation Front.

Among its functions, the Kagnew base serves as a satellite tracking station and as a link in the Washington-Moscow hotline.

Two days after Strickland and Bowidowicz were captured, the rebels threatened to kill them at the mountain cave where they were being held unless the U.S. halted arms supplies to Ethiopia's military regime.

A White House spokesman said at the time that it had received "some demands" from the rebels, but that American officials had been unable to make contact with them.

In addition to the arms ban, the rebels demanded:

— Dismantling the Kagnew base and an Ethiopian naval base under construction at Massawa, Ethiopia's chief port on the Red Sea.

— Compensation for areas of Eritrea that suffered heavy damage in attacks by U.S. equipped Ethiopian air force planes during fighting between the rebels and Ethiopian government forces last February. Eritrea, a former Italian colony, was annexed by Ethiopia in 1962, touching off a 13-year-old independence rebellion.

— U.S. government pressure on Ethiopia's military government to free all Eritrean rebels it holds in prisons.

No name

U.S. District Court Judge Ralph Maxwell has denied the request of a Fargo, N.D., teacher who wanted to change his name to a number.

Michael Dengler had petitioned to legally change his name to "1069."

But Maxwell said Friday in Fargo that under the law a name consists of words, not symbols. The judge noted that the petitioner did not seek to adopt the word name of the number, but only asked to use the symbol.

Dengler had said his idea developed from readings in mathematics and philosophy. He explained that the 1 represented his concept of nature which manifests itself as one individual; the 0 showed his relationship with time and movement through life; the 6 was equal to the relationship he has with the universe, and the 9 indicates the relationship he has to essence.

"If the court indulges the present request...to use numerical symbols as a legal name, it could hardly deny the use of other symbols to subsequent petitioners," Maxwell said. He cited as examples a musician who might want to seek eighth notes as a name or a financier who might want a dollar sign.

Coming home

David and Julie Eisenhower, laden with luggage and souvenirs, walk down ramp from plane in Tokyo Friday en route to the U.S. after ending 12-day visit to China. Among their gifts, the couple said, was a birthday cake from the Shanghai municipal government for former President Richard Nixon, who turned 63 Friday.

Hassle

Actor-comedian Godfrey Cambridge has settled a skirmish with town fathers of Ridgefield, Conn., over a fence around his property.

Cambridge, who accused Ridgefield officials of hassling him about the fence because he's black, has moved the chain-link fence back onto his property, officials said. In return, the town has withdrawn a court action against the entertainer, and the case is considered closed.

First Selectman Louis Fossi, who denied that Cambridge was being harassed because of his race, said the fence originally was from 12 to 20 feet within the town right of way.

Separated

Auto magnate Henry Ford II and his jet-setter second wife, Cristina, have separated and are living apart, a spokesman for Ford says.

Ending almost a year of rumor, Alan Schwartz, a Detroit attorney representing Ford in the separation, said: "In response to the inquiry I can tell you this: I do represent Mr. Henry Ford II in this connection and the parties have separated and are now living apart."

Schwartz would say nothing further. There was no announcement of any financial settlement.

Neither Ford, board chairman of the Ford Motor Co., nor Mrs. Ford could be reached for comment.

There have been rumors that the Ford marriage was in difficulty since last February.

Thurmond

Mrs. Nancy Thurmond, wife of U.S. Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., gave birth late Friday night to an eight-pound baby boy at Self Memorial Hospital in Greenwood, S.C.

"That completes the family," said the 73-year-old Thurmond.

The Thurmonds have three other children, two girls and a boy. The eldest, Nancy Moore Thurmond, will be five in March.

Mrs. Thurmond, 30, is a former Miss South Carolina.

Peace Prize

Dr. Addeke Boerma, outgoing director of the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, has been awarded the Wateler Peace Prize by the Carnegie Foundation.

The foundation is owner and administrator of the Peace Palace in The Hague, which houses the International Court of Justice.

Boerma, a Dutchman, joined the Food and Agriculture Organization in 1948 and became director in 1967. His efforts to find a solution to the world food shortage are said by the foundation to have contributed to a better basis for world peace.

He receives 30,000 guilders or about $12,000. Previous recipients include U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

Austerity

Rhode Island's Gov. Philip Noel says he believes in austerity but doesn't plan to make quite the personal sacrifice that Gov. Ella Grasso has in neighboring Connecticut.

In light of her state's budget problems, Mrs. Grasso has said she will renounce use of the limousine that normally comes with her office.

Noel said he wouldn't go that far...but added he has sold his Cadillac in favor of leasing a Lincoln. The change has saved Rhode Island about $5,000 a year, Noel said.

Candidate

Bill Murray, son of atheist Madalyn Murray O'Hair, has filed as a congressional candidate in the Republican primary in Austin, Tex.

Murray, 29, was the named plaintiff in Mrs. O'Hair's successful suit in 1963 to outlaw required religious exercises in public schools — a decision she says is being flouted openly today.

Murray is trying to win the 10th Congressional District seat now held by Democrat Jake Pickle.

His campaign literature calls him "a conservative, responsible businessman who is aware of the problems and the needs of those in Travis County." It says he opposes government "give-aways" and "busing small children from town to town."

Mrs. O'Hair said she was trying to stay out of the campaign, citing local headlines, "O'Hair son to oppose Rep. Pickle" as an example of why she should.

Allergic

Betty Bond, head of a nationwide nudist organization, admits she has a problem. She's somewhat allergic to the sun.

"I usually have to put a little light top on when I've been out too long," confessed Mrs. Bond, the 43-year-old president of the 16,000-member American Sunbathing Association. She was in Florida to help organize the club's Orlando office.

The mother of two said she didn't shed her inhibitions — or her clothes — until she was an adult. It took her husband nearly seven years to convince her to go to a nudist park near their Oregon home.

"A healthy mind and a healthy body is what nudism is all about," she said. "The beautiful thing about it is that you learn appearance has nothing to do with it. It's what the inner person is."

What happens when it's cold, wet and nasty outside?

"We keep our clothes on," Mrs. Bond says. "We're not crazy."

Sextuplets

The world's only surviving sextuplets will celebrate their second birthday Sunday.

According to their mother, Susan Rosenkowitz of Cape Town, South Africa, "the kids are in good health and will have a very happy second birthday."

One of the youngsters, when asked how she enjoyed being one of the famous six, said "Mommy."

Hahn wires Coleman

U.S. aid sought in transit stalemate

By NOEL SWANN
From Our L.A. Bureau

U.S. Transportation Secretary William Coleman Friday was urged to intervene personally in the dispute over routing for the county's proposed rapid transit starter line.

Supervisor Kenneth Hahn sent a telegram to Coleman saying, "Transportation is at a standstill. The people of Los Angeles County need direction from you to clear the tracks so rapid transit can get moving."

Hahn also indicated that he might consider reversing his vote pledging the county's share of $52 million to the starter line project if the federal government insists on still another study.

"For the past 25 years, there have been $6 million worth of studies (for rapid transit)," Hahn told Coleman. "We've had studies on top of studies all these years when what has been needed was action."

He said delays, postponements of decisions due to federal requirements, and bureaucratic red tape "have made the citizens frustrated and local officials completely baffled by changing demands."

Hahn's appeal to Coleman came in the wake of a decision this week by Southern California Rapid Transit directors to seek a federal grant for preliminary studies of the proposed route between Long Beach and Union Station in Los Angeles.

The RTD vote flew in the face of a request from the Los Angeles City Council to apply for funds for a study covering the entire proposed corridor from Canoga Park to Long Beach.

Shortly after the RTD action, transit officials were told by representatives of the federal Urban Mass Transportation Administration that the application for $4.4 million in study funds probably would not be given favorable treatment unless the analysis covered the entire corridor.

As a result, RTD officials have called a special meeting Monday to consider the demands made by officials of the mass transportation administration.

Many local officials have questioned the sense of the administration's demand because the total amount of potential funding available is only $820 million—barely enough to cover the Long Beach-Los Angeles link.

Hahn noted that the $52 million in county funds committed for the project comes at a time when the county road department may have to lay off 300 design employes because of a lack of funds for highway construction.

He said there are many road projects in his district needing completion and hesistated to put money into a starter line which may never be built.

If supervisors decided not to commit the county's share of gasoline tax diversion monies to a starter line project, the whole concept would fall to pieces. Similarly, if the city of Long Beach withdraws its monetary support of the program, no line could be built.

Murder suspect pleads insanity

A 31-year-old Long Beach woman Friday entered a plea of innocent by reason of insanity to a charge she murdered an apartment house manager in a dispute over unpaid rent.

Willie Nell Williams, of 324 Dayman Ave., entered the plea before Superior Court Judge Elsworth M. Beam, who appointed of psychiatrists to examine the woman.

The judge ordered the defendant returned to court Feb. 20, allowing the psychiatrists' time to prepare reports mandated by law in cases involving insanity pleas.

The Williams woman was arrested at her apartment last Oct. 17, about a half-hour after the slaying of Mrs. Vivian Elder, 51, also of the Dayman Avenue address.

Vallerga's trial reset

Jack P. Vallerga, 53, who was deposed as Orange County assessor after conviction Sept. 18 on a multiple-count indictment, Friday moved to quash another indictment on which he was to go to trial Monday.

The Santa Ana Superior Court set Jan. 23 as the date for hearing arguments on the dismissal plea, and reset his trial for Jan 26.

The indictment he faces, along with Rep. Andrew J. Hinshaw, R-Santa Ana, who preceded him as county assessor, was returned by the Orange County Grand Jury last May.

Stewardess jobs

I'm currently a college student and would like to become a stewardess. Can Action Line find out what the qualifications are for this job and how one breaks into the field? C.J., Long Beach.

A LITTLE LEARY..
LET YER WIFE KNOW YA AIN'T FORGOTTEN CANDY 'N FLOWERS: MENTION THEM ON OCCASIONS

The job market for flight attendants — the new term for stewardesses — is improving slightly, but it's still difficult to get a job in any capacity in the airline industry. Because of the high cost of fuel and the economic slump, the airline companies have suffered business cutbacks and have reduced their work forces. When openings become available, flight attendants who have been laid off will be called for jobs first. "The fact that flight attendants are now staying on the job longer because the age and marital status restrictions have been removed has also affected the job market," said a spokesman for one major carrier. "In the 1960s, a flight attendant usually held her job about two years; now many of them remain 10 years or longer." Spokesmen for the airlines agreed that the only way for you to break into the field is to file job applications with as many airlines as posssible and then simply wait to be called. With most of the airlines, flight attendants — male or female — must be at least 20 years old and meet certain height and weight requirements. A college background generally is not required, but some of the international carriers, such as Pan American World Airways, require that their flight attendants speak a second language. Spokesmen also said that virtually all of the major airlines have their own flight attendant training programs and don't go to private airline trade schools to hire employees. Job applicants who have attended these schools usually don't get priority treatment.

Theft loss

My car was stolen by a juvenile and the police recovered it two weeks later. I had to pay $30 in towing charges and other expenses which I think the boy's parents should have paid. When the juvenile was tried in court, shouldn't the matter of my losses have been settled at that time? How can I recover this money? M.L., Long Beach.

In a criminal cases involving a juvenile, a judge usually will not require the defendant to reimburse his victim because a juvenile generally does not have the means to do so and the parents' liability does not enter into a criminal matter, according to a county district attorney who specializes in juvenile cases. "The question of the parents' liability is covered under civil, not criminal, law," he added. The only way for you to try to recoup your losses is to file a small claims court action against the juvenile's parents, but even in civil cases, a judge won't necessarily hold parents responsible for all the debts or acts of their minor children.

In the dark

Some friends and I went to El Dorado Park to play volleyball on the courts near the recreation center on a Sunday evening in early December and found the courts dark. We asked an employe there about turning on the lights and were told that the woman who runs the center in the evening refuses to go out after dark and turn on the lights. We were also told there used to be 40 to 50 people playing out there on Sunday nights before this woman started running the center. Would you look into this for us? G.M., Long Beach.

The courts there are not, and have not been, lighted on Sunday evenings, except on special occasions, said Henry Zimmerman, senior recreation leader with the Long Beach Recreation Department. He said the woman working there on Sunday nights supervises the senior citizen dances and isn't in charge of the other recreational facilities. "We only have a program on the courts when supervision is available," he said. Supervision is available — as well as volleyball equipment — on Tuesday nights from 6:30 to 9:30 during the school year, and on Tuesday through Thursday nights at the same hours during the summer. The department also sponsors night volleyball play at the Milliken High School gym, 2800 Snowden Ave., on Thursdays from 7 to 9:30.

County cash reserve urged

From Our L.A. Bureau

County Auditor-Controller Mark Bloodgood Friday urged supervisors to set up a $200 million reserve fund over the next several years to help avoid serious cash flow problems at the end of each fiscal year.

Supervisor Kenneth Hahn, however, said he could not support the move because it would "just open the floodgates to extra spending by department heads."

Hahn said, though, that Bloodgood's report prompts him to call for a 1976-77 budget needing no tax rate increase. The current property tax rate is about $4.52 per $100 of assessed valuation.

Bloodgood warned that it may be necessay to issue revenue anticipation notes to get through the fiscal year ending June 30.

He said that in the past two years there was enough money in the revenue-sharing fund to cover the cash shortage problem at the end of the year. But he said the revenue sharing money available this year will be "substantially below" the level needed to meet county expenditures.

Bloodgood said one of the main problems has been that expected state and federal revenues relied on to finance county spending have not materialized.

Because of this, he urged supervisors to be more conservative in their revenue estimates in future budgets.

An increasing problem, he said, has been the amount of money the county has to divert to redevelopment agencies.

When a redevelopment agency is formed, the existing tax rate on the property earmarked for renewal is frozen. As the value of the property rises in subsequent years, the resulting tax increase goes to the redevelopment agency—instead of the County General Fund—to enable the ageny to pay off bonded indebtedness over the life of the renewal project.

Bloodgood noted that in 1975-76, about $20 million that would normally have gone into the General Fund has had to be diverted to redevelopment agencies.

He said at present the County General Fund maintains a reserve of $3 million to meet cash requirements and emergency expenses, but recent year-end cash needs indicate that this reserve should be at least $200 million.

Noting, however, that an increase of $197 million in the reserve fund would cause a property tax rate hike of about $1 per $100 of assessed valuation, Bloodgood said a one-shot boost of the fund would be "impratical." He urged the board to consider a long-range program to eventually build the reserve up to $200 million.

State OKs Riles' high school plan

SACRAMENTO (AP) — State schools' chief Wilson Riles' high school reform plan, which stresses "personalized" learning and skills testing, was approved by the State Board of Education Friday.

The board told Riles' staff to draft a bill that would ask the Legislature for $4 million to start planning the program in some schools this year.

RILES wants to implement the plan in all junior and senior high schools within five years at an eventual cost of $120 million a year.

The product of a statewide panel on the Reform of Intermediate and Secondary Education, the proposal could drastically change secondary education in California.

It would let each student draw up a learning plan with a counselor which could include work in the community, independent study, or even a year's "furlough" from school in addition to classroom study.

Course credit would be based on demonstrated skills, not "seat time."

Riles has hailed the plan, but some critics contend the RISE panel watered it down by removing some proposals it had earlier approved.

They included an end to teacher tenure and a lowering of the dropout age from 18 to 14.

THE BOARD also received Riles' enthusiastic evaluation of the Early Childhood Education program's second year.

The report said the program not only produced steady gains in test scores for grades kindergarten through three, but also attracted 181,000 parent volunteers to help with teaching and planning.

For the second straight year, the program got a more skeptical evaluation from the office of A. Alan Post, the Legislature's nonpartisan fiscal adviser, who said there was no proof ECE was better than other programs.

Judges rule against ban on glasses ads

Associated Press

State laws which prohibit advertising the price of prescription eyeglasses have been declared unconstitutional by a panel of three federal judges in Los Angeles.

However, ads for eyeglasses and contact lenses may not appear immediately since the judges issued only a preliminary injunction against the enforcement of the laws and said a full trial would have to be held on the issue.

Tempest-tossed Viets get new start at special camp

By GREGORY A. GROSS

CHULA VISTA (AP) — The Vietnamese studying English at the Agapi Foundation Resettlement Center are a special breed of refugee. They are the betrayed.

The 34 now living at the Brown Field center are victims of what officials call "sponsorship breakdowns," promises not kept, sponsors who either ran out of money or ran out on the refugees.

Agapi, a local charity, agreed last winter to take refugees from the volunteer agencies who arranged the ill-fated sponsorships last year when thousands of Vietnamese, Cambodians and Laotians were rushed into the United States via Camp Pendleton.

The center is located on the Mexican border in five buildings once used by Pacific Southwest Airlines to train foreign pilots. They have a capacity of 320. But the refugees are not pouring in, despite the number of sponsorships collapsing throughout the state.

Stranded in a strange place, with no usable skills and little or no English, many are still afraid to leave the area, said Agapi volunteer Kelly DeSare.

"It's a frightening thing, relocating a second or third time in a foreign country," she said. "You tend to hang on to whatever security you have."

Many were fearful and distrustful when they arrived at Agapi. They feared it would be another Camp Pendleton. And there were ugly rumors floating around. One rumor said that anyone going to Agapi would be sold. But after meeting the American and Vietnamese volunteers at the center, attitudes change.

"We don't even call them refugees anymore," said Minh Cong Ton Nu Dieu, herself a refugee.

"We call them residents. That makes them happy."

Unlike Pendleton, there are no rows of tents or guards to prevent the Vietnamese from coming or going as they please. There is a gymnasium and a swimming pool.

But there are also nine hours of classes daily which all adults are required to attend.

"We demand that people participate," said Agapi director Michael Hanson. "This isn't a babysitting service."

Formal classes began this week in driver training, with more classes scheduled in citizenship and independent living. There's also a demanding three-hour English class.

"Everything is forced language, English, English," said Hanson. "We have interpreters, but we don't use them unless we have to."

Teachers from Chula Vista's Sweetwater Union High School District handle the English classes and the teachers and volunteers alike are delighted with the response they're getting.

"Nobody gripes," said Mrs. DeSare. "Morale is incredible when you consider that these people have already been burned once or twice. They all call me Mommy."

The training program, which eventually will include specific job skills, is scheduled to last six weeks, but the center swears it won't place any Vietnamese in a job until he's ready, even if it means more training.

"We want to make sure that everyone has a good grounding," said Hanson. "They don't need anymore failures."

State accuses Navy of smog violations

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The state filed a suit Friday in U.S. District Court contending the Navy is violating state, local and federal air-pollution laws by testing jet engines at four military installations.

The complaint was filed on behalf of the California Air Resources Board and the San Francisco Bay Area Pollution Control district by the state attorney general.

IT ALLEGED that the Navy is violating air-pollution laws by permitting excessive smokestack emissions from stationary jet-engine test cells at El Toro Marine Corps Air Station in Orange County and at naval air stations in Alameda County and at Miramar and North Island in San Diego County.

The suit contended that despite efforts by local pollution-control districts to get compliance, violations are continuing.

The court was asked to impose civil penalties of $500 for each day in which such violations occurred.

Legality of gas-oil pacts questioned

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The California attorney general said Friday that advance payments agreements between utilities and major oil firms and circumstances surrounding proposed development and distribution of Alaskan natural gas "raise serious antitrust questions."

"There is a strong probability based on facts as now known that the funding agreements and the activities of the major gas producers on the North Slope may well constitute violations of federal and state antitrust laws," said the attorney general's office.

"We accordingly have recommended that further facts be ascertained," it added.

The state Public Utilities Commission, which requested an opinion, was told that the attorney general's office may initiate its own antitrust investigation of these agreements and suggested the PUC might want to conduct its own probe.

The PUC last Tuesday voted to consider rescinding, altering or amending two advance payment plans it had approved earlier. One provided for Southern California Gas Co. to pay $640 million interest on a loan arranged by ARCO to develop production of its gas reserve at Prudhoe Bay. In return, the utility would get the right to negotiate for purchase of 60 per cent of that reserve.

Pacific Gas & Electric Co. signed a similar agreement with Exxon calling for payment of $161 million in interest costs and giving PG&E the right to negotiate for 30 per cent of the oil firm's reserves.

The PUC had approved a rate increase for Southern California Gas but had delayed any rate decision for PG&E.

In Sacramento, a resolution was introduced in the Legislature that would ask the PUC to order PG&E and the Southern California Gas Co. to halt collecting a special $1 billion surcharge from ratepayers.

Assemblyman Charles Warren, D-Los Angeles, proposed the legislation and said California utilities used the federal policy as a "convenient loophole to bypass federal regulation of the wellhead price of natural gas."

The resolution asks that the utilities stop collecting for the surcharge pending the outcome of new PUC hearings.

The PUC reopened the matter following a Dec. 31 Federal Power Commission decision to terminate a federal advance payment policy for interstate pipelines.

The attorney general had been asked if a "most favored nation" clause such as contained in the advanced payment agreements would violate antitrust laws. This clause calls for a contract gas sales price at the highest price provided by any other long-term Prudhoe Bay contract for delivering substantial volumes of gas to the lower 48 states.

The PUC had noted this meant the oil companies would not only get the price negotiated for but any higher price received by other producers.

The opinion prepared by Deputy Atty. Gen. Linda Tedeschi said that antitrust laws prohibit any combination, conspiracy, agreement or tacit understanding between competitors to fix, increase, stabilize or affect prices in any manner.

Cleaver's bail set at double pre-flight sum

OAKLAND (AP) — Eldridge Cleaver's bail was set at $100,000 Friday, and his attorney claimed the onetime Black Panther party leader lacks funds to fight charges resulting from a 1968 shootout with police here.

Temporary counsel Robert Baxley of San Diego asked for $50,000 bail, the amount forfeited when Cleaver fled the country seven years ago. He argued that the 39-year-old black activist's voluntary return to the country last November "washed out or negated" his original flight.

Replying that "his record indicates that $50,000 was not enough," Alameda County Superior Court Judge Lionel Wilson doubled the original bail, but left open the possibility of a later reduction.

THE JUDGE also continued the arraignment on assault and attempted murder charges until Feb. 10. Baxley had asked the delay, saying Cleaver hasn't decided on an attorney nor raised money to hire one.

Cleaver, known for his fiery oratory in the late 1960s, spoke only once during the half-hour hearing in a tightly secured courtroom. Wearing a moustache and a navy-blue leisure suit, he stood and in a low voice waived his right to a speedy trial.

There was little visible support for the former Panther information minister who started the party's international section after fleeing to Algeria and was expelled in 1971. His wife Kathleen and a small group of supporters sat in the front rows of the crowded courtroom.

After the hearing, Mrs. Cleaver told reporters the bail "is not reasonable. It is a major problem."

Noting that money earned from his writings is being held by the Internal Revenue Service, she said she hopes to raise enough money to hire a private attorney.

Mrs. Cleaver said her husband will not resume his relationship with the Panthers and added, "He has no fear he will be harmed by former associates. He has no intention of telling anything about former associates, which is showing them more respect than they have shown him."

THE Panthers have labeled Cleaver a possible "turncoat" and have demanded that he state publicly whether he will become a government informant.

Asked how much support she has found upon return to this country, Mrs. Cleaver ventured that she has found "no hostility towards Eldridge" here or in Southern California.

"He wants to come home and re-establish himself as an American citizen," she added. "He feels he can be completely exonerated."

Cleaver is charged in connection with an April 1968 police-Panthers gunbattle in which a policeman was injured and Panther officer Bobby Hutton was killed. Facing possible revocation of parole from a 1958 assault conviction, Cleaver fled the country in 1968.

Despite court ruling

Early parole hearings to stay

SACRAMENTO (AP) — An official of the state Adult Authority said Friday it would continue setting parole dates as soon as possible after people enter prisons, despite a court ruling that it violates the state's indeterminate sentence law.

"We're going to continue to hear cases as we have in the past," said Wilmer Leon, administrative officer of the authority.

He said the decision announced Thursday by the 3rd District Court of Appeal did not order a return to the old system, when paroles were set after a prisoner had completed most of his minimum term. He said it applied only to the two prisoners who petitioned the court.

The new rules were instituted last March by Adult Authority Chairman Raymond Procunier, who said it was better for prisoners to know as soon as possible when they could expect to get out.

The court said that while there might be good reason for quicker setting of parole dates, state law simply doesn't permit it.

In the decision written by Justice Leonard Friedman, the court said that an inmate's conduct in prison must be considered in fixing his term, and that the new system recognizes it "only as a negative determinant, directing extensions of confinement for post-conviction breaches."

Leon said the decision might be appealed. He said if the state Supreme Court upheld it, the authority might have to reconsider 7,000 parole cases.

One of them involves Sirhan Sirhan, convicted assassin of Sen. Robert Kennedy, who was given a parole date of Feb. 23, 1986.

Gov. Brown last year vetoed a bill which would have revised the law in line with Procunier's new rules, saying it was unnecessary because its provisions were already in effect.

Fine 'lived quiet life, with his cat'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — David Sylvan Fine spent his last months as a fugitive living quietly in a pleasant one-room apartment with a half-dozen plants and a Siamese cat, according to his landlord.

David Cudhea said Friday that the 23-year-old Fine's only apparent interests were the plants and the cat, which he named Camilla, apparently after Camilla Hall—the Symbionese Liberation Army member who died in 1974 in a shootout with Los Angeles police.

FINE, arrested Wednesday in San Rafael, was being held at the San Francisco County jail in lieu of $1 million bail and awaiting his return to Madison, Wisc. He waived a removal hearing Thursday.

He faces federal and state charges that include murder, conspiracy, sabotage, and destruction of government property stemming from the Aug. 24, 1970, bombing of an Army mathematics research center at the University of Wisconsin. One man was killed in the blast.

Cudhea said he rented the book-lined basement apartment five months ago to a man calling himself Will Lewes. Authorities say dental charts identified Lewes as Fine.

"I KEEP trying to square in my mind that that quiet kid we knew as Will, who only seemed to be interested in sports and plants and cats, is the same person who was accused of such a thing," Cudhea told reporters. "He seemed like so many youngsters these days who keep fading in and out of college and in and out of jobs."

Cudhea said he met Fine when the youth answered a notice his wife, Jean, had posted in a Marin County supermarket advertising the $150-a-month apartment.

He told the Cudheas that he was living on unemployment compensation and savings and enrolled briefly at the College of Marin. He liked rock music but played it at a low decibel and occasionally had friends visit.

FINE frequently borrowed books on philosophy and sociology from the home library and never discussed politics, said Cudhea, a free-lance editor.

The arrest of the 5-foot-5 Fine on an anonymous tip prompted FBI agents to search the area for two other fugitives linked to the 1970 bombing, Dwight Armstrong, 24, and Leo F. Burt, 27.

Sandra Good charges judge biased, fears her

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Cultist Sandra Good declared Friday that a federal judge sentenced her innocent roommate and should disqualify himself from her trial because he is biased and fears her.

The 31-year-old follower of convicted mass-murderer Charles Manson told U.S. District Court Judge Thomas MacBride, "You fear for your life from me."

MacBride, who last month sentenced Miss Good's roommate, Lynette Fromme, to life imprisonment for attempting to kill President Ford, said in a firm voice: "I am not biased or prejudiced."

BUT HE delayed a decision on Miss Good's request until she submits it in writing.

Miss Good made her opinions known as she stood at the podium during her arraignment on an expanded federal grand-jury indictment charging that she threatened business leaders in four phone calls.

Susan Murphy, one of Miss Good's roommates before their arrest, is charged along with Miss Good with mailing threatening letters to businessmen.

Over and over again, Miss Good lectured MacBride, telling him he had already castigated her roommate for her ties to Manson and the "X" on her forehead. She said she also had an "X" and was tied to Manson.

"LESS THAN one month ago you sent my sister, Lynette Fromme, to life in prison when in fact I know she was not guilty," Miss Good declared.

In November a jury convicted Miss Fromme, 27, of trying to assassinate President Ford in Capitol Park last Sept. 5.

Greeted in Boston by busing foes

Wallace opens campaign

By REMER TYSON
Knight News Service

BOSTON—Alabama Gov. George Wallace Friday came to this city, torn over the emotional school-busing issue, to kick off his third straight campaign for president.

The first event of his 1976 campaign was a presenation to him of a red T-shirt with white lettering that proclaimed: "South Boston is Wallace Country."

The symbolic shirt was presented to Wallace as he got off his airplane, at Logan Airport, by Robert McGrail, a member of the Boston antibusing organization named Restore Our Alienated Rights.

Wallace was greeted by about 50 Bostonians, mostly ROAR members.

At an airport press conference, however, Wallace tried to dispel the notion that he was a single-issue candidate basing his 1976 campaign on antibusing sentiment.

"I'm not a one-issue candidate," Wallace told newsmen. "Of course, I'm against busing."

Wallace said that his 1972 presidential campaign was primarily concerned with economic reform and a better tax break for "the great middle class."

Economics and big government will be the key issues in his campaign this year, he said.

"The federal government, in taking over all the phases and aspects of peoples' lives, eventually gets to controlling everything," Wallace said, "from their unions to their businesses, to their farms and also their school children and their pocketbooks. I think that is the main and overriding issue of 1976."

Wallace said, if elected president, he would uphold federal court orders including those concerning busing.

"But if I was the president of the United States," Wallace said, "I certainly wouldn't have the Justice Department on one hand asking for certain type orders in the courts and on the other hand saying I was against a part or a particular phase of programs, say busing."

Because of the controversy centered in busing, Wallace picked the only state that Democrat George McGovern carried in 1972 to crank up Wallace's latest campaign for president.

Wallace was reserved about predicting how well he might do in Massachusetts' presidential primary March 2.

He said he would have difficulty overcoming the adverse "propaganda" that has been spread by the liberal media about him in Massachusetts.

But his staff is expecting him to run among the top candidates.

Pollster Pat Caddell, who did public opinion surveys for McGovern four years ago, disclosed a poll this week that shows Wallace running second to Sargent Shriver, the 1972 Democratic vice presidential candidate and the late President John F. Kennedy's brother-in-law.

The poll showed that Shriver had 18 per cent, Wallace 11 per cent and other candidates with lesser percentages. The poll showed that 41 per cent of Massachusetts voters are undecided.

Byrd runs to give his state 'impact'

New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — Sen. Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia became the 11th announced candidate Friday for the Democratic presidential nomination in an effort, he said, to give his state "greater impact" at the party's nominating convention in July.

The 56-year-old Byrd, who is the Senate's assistant majority leader, announced as expected that he would enter the West Virginia presidential primary on May 11 as well as seek reelection to a fourth term in the Senate.

Byrd's aim, it appeared, is to hold West Virginia's 33 delegates, plus any others he might pick up, for brokerage purposes at the nominating convention in New York City.

When a reporter expressed puzzlement over whether Byrd was running as a favorite son or as a national candidate, the senator replied with a tight smile: "Well, I'm a one-state candidate for the United States Senate. I'm a national candidate for the national ticket."

Reagan listed 1st on Mass. ballot

BOSTON (AP) — Ronald W. Reagan drew top billing on Republican presidential primary ballots in Massachusetts, and a political unknown—Robert L. Kelleher of Montana—drew first place among 12 Democratic hopefuls.

State Secretary Paul Guzzi selected by lot the ballot order for Massachusetts' March 2 primary immediately after the 5 p.m. Friday deadline for withdrawals.

The Republicans will have two candidates—Reagan and President Ford. Five other suggested candidates, including Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, withdrew.

Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace won second place on the Democratic ballot, followed by Ellen McCormack of New York, an antiabortion candidate.

They will be followed, in this order, by former North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, former Sen. Fred R. Harris of Oklahoma, Pennsylvania Gov. Milton J. Shapp, Indiana Sen. Birch Bayh, former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter, former ambassador to France R. Sargent Shriver, Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington and U.S. Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona.

Mrs. McCormack qualified for the ballot on a signature petition and also was added to the list by Rep. Charles F. Flaherty Jr. of Cambridge, chairman of the Democratic State Committee.

Kelleher, a lawyer from Billings, Mont., also was added to the list by Flaherty. Kelleher is an advocate of the British parliamentary form of government as alternative to the United States' congressional system.

Successful candidates in the state primary are entitled to a proportional number of committed delegates to the Republican and Democratic National Conventions.

Earlier, Guzzi and state political leaders had proposed that 23 candidates be placed on the ballot.

Withdrawals were received on the Republican side from Rockefeller, former Texas Gov. John Connally, Commerce Secretary-designate Elliot L. Richardson and Maryland Sen. Charles Mathias.

Democratic withdrawals were from Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, Sen. Frank Church of Idaho, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine and Ralph Nader, consumer specialist.

Primary wins by Ford predicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's campaign director Friday predicted outright victory for Ford in the nation's first five presidential primaries while claiming they are some of challenger Ronald Reagan's strongest states.

Howard H. (Bo) Callaway told a meeting of more than 60 top Ford campaign officials from around the country that the President would beat the former California governor in New Hampshire, "Reagan's best northern state;" Florida, "his best southern state;" Illinois, "his home state;" Massachusetts and North Carolina.

Those primaries occur once a week from Feb. 24 through March 23.

After winning those, said Callaway, "we will have once and for all established that this President has a national constituency, and no longer can people say his only constituency is Grand Rapids."

Callaway avoided any criticism of Reagan in his public comments to the regional and state Ford chairmen and chairwomen. The group met later in closed sessions for more specific briefings on campaign strategy, tactics and the new federal election law.

Callaway told the campaign workers that in case his victory predictions are wrong, the Ford forces are "dug in for the long haul" and the later trail of primaries through states like Ohio and Michigan, "our natural states."

In a meeting with newsmen, Callaway denied he had tried to influence the Justice Department to delay a retrial of former Florida Sen. Edward Gurney until after the Florida primary.

He said he told the White House the trial of Republican Gurney could have a political impact and asked: "Is it appropriate to do anything about it?"

"They said it was not, and I said fine," Callaway said. "It was the proper decision."

African unity meeting

Amin neutral on Angola

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — President Idi Amin of Uganda said Friday the Africans' first priority is to stop bloodshed in Angola and oppose any outside intervention there.

Amin, arriving on the eve of a summit conference of the Organization of African Unity, told reporters it was not up to the organization to endorse any of three factions in Angola.

"It is not for Africa to dictate to Angolans what is to be done by Angolans," he said.

Amin is the current chairman of the OAU and will preside at the emergency meeting of chief executives.

COMMENTING on intervention, Amin said:

"We have not come here to discuss Russia, Cuba or anybody. Any force in Angola — South Africa, Europe, Russia — they are killing Angolans. We condemn everybody, even black Africans, if they are involved."

Amin, wearing a blue air-force uniform with a pistol on his hip, also said he was "very, very happy" with American policy on Angola after he received a letter from President Ford asserting that Washington would not interfere in the former Portuguese colony's internal affairs.

Among dignitaries arriving was Osmany Cienfuegos, secretary of the Cuban cabinet, who led a five-man delegation from Havana. He said he was in Addis Ababa only for bilateral discussions with Ethiopian officials, but the Cubans wore badges entitling them to visit the OAU conference center.

SEVERAL thousand Cuban soldiers are reported in Angola fighting with the Soviet-backed faction.

The OAU has before it two applications for recognition as the legitimate government of Angola, the oil- and mineral-rich west African territory set free by Portugal two months ago.

One is from the Popular Movement (MPLA), whose People's Republic of Angola is supported by the Soviet Union and Cuba. The other is from the National Union (UNITA) and National Front (FNLA), who have formed a battlefield alliance as the Democratic Republic of Angola and have received American and South African aid.

More than 20 African states have recognized the MPLA, and many diplomats predict the OAU will seat MPLA delegates at its conference. Some, however, said the question is so divisive that the three-day summit might not even bring it up.

A NUMBER of African nations have called for coalition government in Angola, but the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug reported Friday that MPLA leader Agostinho Neto has rejected the idea.

Tanjug said Neto told Yugoslav Ambassador Nikola Sosic, who presented his credentials in the MPLA capitol of Luanda, that the coalition idea was a propaganda move aimed at causing "permanent disputes and upheavals among the Angolan people."

UNITA and FNLA spokesmen said they were ready to heed Amin's call for a cease-fire today if the MPLA agrees. A half-dozen other cease-fires have been ignored or have lasted only a few weeks since heavy fighting began last year.

Jews cancel visits to Brazil

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — Some 1,000 American Jews protesting Brazil's United Nations vote to brand Zionism racist have canceled hotel reservations here, two large hotels say. Jewish groups recently launched a similar tourist boycott against Mexico.

Spokesmen for the hotels, the Sheraton and the Intercontinental, said they each had notices of 500 cancellations.

The head of the government tourism agency Embratur, Said Farhat, said the cancellations by American Jews was a passing phenomenon.

"We've heard of about 2,000 cancellations at the most," he said. "This is a limited phenomenon for a country with 140,000 hotel rooms."

Embratur has launched a $1 million campaign to attract tourists to Brazil in 1976.

Jewish groups in the United States are boycotting Mexico because of its vote on the Zionism issue. The Mexican Travel Agents Association in Mexico City says 68,000 individual cancellations have been made in the Pacific resort of Acapulco and another 60,000 in Mexico City. One industry source in Mexico estimated the loss at $4 million to $5 million. Mexico earns about $2 billion a year from tourism.

Tomas Mendelsohn, sales manager for the Sheraton Hotel in Rio de Janeiro, estimated the financial loss for 500 cancellations at about $52,000.

In New York, the Jewish organization B'nai B'rith said it has dropped tours that included stops in Rio de Janeiro. The series of trips began a year ago and was to have run until March 31.

A B'nai B'rith spokesman said 10 to 12 departures were affected and these would have involved 600 persons. He added that the tourists would have stayed at the Sheraton and Intercontinental hotels.

B'nai B'rith said a series of direct flights to Rio de Janeiro was being planned for this year for 1,000 persons but was scrapped when Brazil voted for the Zionism resolution.

B'nai Zion, a Jewish fraternal organization based in New York, said it canceled three tours to Rio for February, March and April. A spokesman said about 150 persons would have gone on each flight.

According to Embratur, 580,000 tourists came to Brazil last year and spent about $400,000.

Farhat expressed the view there would be no widespread boycott of Brazil by Jewish tourists.

Dunlop aides deny he quit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Labor Secretary John Dunlop was reported Friday to be still considering quitting his Cabinet post but aides said he had reached no firm decision.

Dunlop spokesmen denied published reports that the secretary had decided to quit. They said he still was discussing his future with management and labor leaders.

The walkout of labor leaders from the President's construction advisory committee, however, prompted some observers to say that Dunlop has been left with little choice except to resign.

President Ford was described Friday as regretting the action by the nine labor leaders, who were angered over Ford's veto of a bill expanding the picketing rights of construction unions.

White House press secretary Ron Nessen also stated that Ford had received no indication that Dunlop would be leaving the Cabinet.

W. J. Usery, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service and the man whom Ford reportedly would nominate for the Cabinet post if Dunlop quit, said, "to my knowledge he has not advised the President he will resign."

"There's been a lot of discussion about it," Usery said of reports that he would succeed Dunlop, "and until he does resign, certainly I will not comment."

The walkout by the nine labor leaders from the President's Collective Bargaining Committee occurred because they felt Ford double-crossed them by saying he would sign the picketing rights bill and then reversing his position and vetoing the measure.

"I fear that the shrill and emotional pressures of the past few months have now destroyed for a period the possibility of continued labor-management cooperation at the national level on a construction industry-wide basis," Dunlop said in a statement.

December retail sales show 3% gain

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sales by the nation's retail stores climbed 3 per cent in December, the Commerce Department reported Friday.

Commerce said the push came primarily from an 11-per cent advance in sales by automotive dealers. Department store sales for the month rose 6 per cent.

The December advance left the monthly volume of retail sales at $52.1 billion, or about 15 per cent above sales for the same month last year.

Commerce estimated total retail sales for the year amounted to $584.8 billion, a 9-per cent advance over 1974.

The biggest increases in sales over the year were among grocery stores and service stations, 10 per cent each; restaurants, 14 per cent; and automobile dealers and department stores, 9 per cent each.

Prime rate dips to 7% over U.S.

NEW YORK (AP) — More than a dozen banks across the country lowered their prime lending rate a quarter point to 7 per cent Friday.

Taking on the unaccustomed role of industry trend-setter a day earlier, Chase Manhattan Bank had already lowered the rate charged on loans to top-rated business borrowers to 7 per cent.

Early Friday, First National City Bank, the nation's second largest and usually the bank that leads the way for the industry in prime rate changes, dropped its rate to 7 per cent and was promptly followed by banks of varying sizes across the nation.

Eight banks on the West Coast lowered their primes to 7 per cent, among them San Francisco's Bank of America, the nation's largest bank.

In New York, Chemical Bank and Manufacturers Hanover followed Citibank and Chase's example.

Several Midwestern banks in St. Louis, Pittsburgh and other cities also joined in the reduction.

The prime rate does not directly influence consumer or mortgage lending rates, but often provides a clue to where those rates are headed.

Banking analysts expect the new 7 per cent rate to spread further throughout the industry.

Some believe the rate will drop to 6¾ per cent and lower in the coming weeks since the Federal Reserve seems to have taken steps in the money market lately aimed at easing up on credit conditions.

Audit ordered in food stamp crisis

By MICHAEL SATCHELL
Washington Star

WASHINGTON — Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, reacting to disclosure of the misuse of millions of dollars in the food-stamp program, has ordered an immediate audit of the nation's 6,700 vendors that sell food stamps to the public.

This swift official reaction was matched by an immediate response from several middle-level employes of the program. They charged that "lapping" by vendors — the free use of government money — has been going on for years.

Program administrators knew of the abuses, the employes said, but the rule was: "Keep it quiet; don't rock the boat."

THE HARSH assessment of the division's leaders by rank-and-file employes was echoed by a high official of the Agriculture Department. "They just don't have good people in key positions," the official said.

The department's unprecedented investigation will occupy some 200 auditors and investigators and will take about three months to complete, officials indicate.

Neighborhood credit unions, check-cashing outfits and other small businesses that sell the stamps have been targeted as the first priority, with banks and post offices to follow.

Vendors took in $2.6 billion cash during the last fiscal year, and the potential for the illegal use of government funds runs into the hundreds of millions of dollars.

Food-stamp employes will be switched from other assignments in order to complete the investigation, which will include an inventory of how many food stamps the vendors are holding and whether they have been using receipts from their sales for their own purposes instead of depositing the money in the Federal Reserve banks.

"BUTZ IS angry— he wants the mess in the food-stamp division cleaned up fast," a high Agriculture Department official said.

The Washington Star reported that a preliminary check of 18 vendors had uncovered $8.7 million in undeposited receipts from the sales of the stamps. The vendors had been holding onto the accumulated receipts for several months instead of depositing them within 24 hours as required by law.

Auditors investigating these 18 vendors are anxious to learn what the money has been used for, and how much will be recovered. In two cases, sources say, credit unions used the money to make loans, and others paid salaries and other operating expenses with the money.

A St. Louis check-cashing chain was found to have over $2 million in undeposited funds collected over 6 months, and $835,000 of that sum is still missing. The Federal Bureau of Investigation is investigating, and grand-jury action is pending.

TWELVE of the 18 offenders identified by the Agriculture Department are located in Washington. They include a church, a furniture store and credit unions. Together, they were found to have $3.6 million in undeposited receipts when auditors checked their books in November and December.

Disclosure of this latest in a series of major problems within the program also has spurred the department's Food and Nutrition Service to begin hurriedly a long-planned program to computerize the returns on stamp sales and cash deposits, a move that should improve accounting procedures considerably.

Middle-level employes in the food-stamp division insisted that it is rife with cronyism and nepotism and is a haven for incompetents, and that much of the blame for turning food stamps into the worst of the nation's welfare programs lies with poor leadership within the division.

CAUGHT in the middle of the turmoil is Richard Feltner, an assistant secretary of agriculture whose responsibilities include overseeing the Food and Nutrition Service. Both high- and middle-level opinion on Feltner is that he is an honest and competent man who is trying extremely hard to reform the stamp program.

"The current investigation has brought to light the possible existence of (lapping), but we have intensified our efforts to see what we need to do throughout the entire system to make sure this doesn't happen again in the future," he said.

Major inner cities losing manpower training funds

By PAUL DELANEY
New York Times Service

ST. LOUIS — Fourteen of the 15 largest municipalities in the U.S., including Los Angeles, have lost manpower-training funds under the Comprehensive Education and Training Act, compared with the amounts they received for the same purpose before the enactment of the law in December 1973.

This was disclosed in a report on the act by the Department of Labor. It was the first acknowledgement by the department that there had been a significant drop in funding of job-training programs for the nation's inner cities.

According to the report, more of the funds now are going to suburban and rural areas.

The loss of funds by the inner cities has been a major complaint of mayors, other city officials and civil-rights leaders.

THE STUDY did not name the cities or the amounts they lost, but a department official said in interview that Los Angeles' funding dropped from $24.6 million in the fiscal year 1973-74 to $21.1 million in the present fiscal year.

The official, who did not want his name used, said other examples were: New York, which dropped from $70 million n fiscal 1973-74 to $56.7 in the present fiscal year; Chicago, from $41 million to $33.2 million; Philadelphia, $15.4 million to $12.5 million, and Washington, $17.2 million to $13.9 million.

The report said that "of the 15 largest cities in the United States, as identified in the 1970 census, 14 have funding levels which are significantly less than their earlier year's funding levels."

THE NINE other cities among these 14 are Detroit, Houston, Baltimore, Dallas, Cleveland, Indianapolis, Milwaukee, San Francisco and San Antonio.

Here in St. Louis, which has also lost funds and is typical of the cities suffering losses, Mary Canada, deputy director of the Office of Manpower, said the city had received $7.8 million in the fiscal year 1973-74 but only $6.5 million the next year and $6.4 million in the current fiscal year. She said she expected no change in the trend.

Only San Diego showed a gain in funds, going from $4.1 million before the law was enacted to $4.5 million, the official reported.

The report said that the relative shift away from urban areas was due, in large part, to the fact that the new law, for the first time, provided manpower funds for areas with high unemployment, as opposed to areas with high rates of poverty, which was the chief criterion under the old program. Thus, suburban and rural areas, which had not benefited much from manpower training funds, were eligible for more money because they had high unemployment.

"THE BIGGEST losers in the drop in funds have been community action programs," Mrs. Canada said. "The money is spread out more and now goes to rural and suburban areas. The money is definitely being taken from the city, where the need is, and given to areas of lesser need."

The departmental study questioned whether the new law was serving adequately the people it is supposed to aid. It said that prime sponsors — those governmental units receiving the funds — might be misdirecting training efforts by not providing the skills needed by local businesses. Further, the focus so far has been mainly on providing jobs for laid-off municipal workers.

The new law requires that the money be spent "to the maximum extent feasible" on "those most in need," but it does not designate who is in need; it leaves this up to local officials to determine.

But, the report said, the relative shift of funds to suburban counties and smaller cities and rural areas may have "resulted in broadening the target population base of manpower programs."

IN ANOTHER portion of the report, the study questioned whether the local sponsors "are too fragmented" to provide area-wide planning and coordination.

The report also said: "It is uncertain whether the training conducted by C.E.T.A. prime sponsors meets the standards expected by local business and industry. It appears that insufficient effort has been made to adapt the areas of training or the content and quality of training to the expectations of local employers and the needs of others in the client community."

THE REPORT confirmed studies made by other, independent sources, including an analysis by the National Manpower Policy Task Force, a private organization that studies manpower programs, and an investigation by the New York Times last September.

Among the findings in the department's report were the following:

—The effectiveness of the first year's operation under the act was hindered by "competing national priorities" of providing training for the disadvantaged and creating public service jobs to aid municipal workers laid off during the recession.

—Of 431 prime sponsors, only 30 had previous experience in the operation of manpower programs.

—Use of citizen advisory councils, mandated in the act, has been ineffective. The councils were to help to develop training plans in their areas as a form of citizen participation.

—Training programs to aid veterans failed because military training could not readily be used for civilian employment.

The report concluded that more time and a period of stability were needed to give the act a chance to work. Mrs. Canada agreed.

"It's a good piece of legislation, overall," she said. "It will take time to make it more efficient—that is, if they don't tamper with it too much."

U.S. releases Agnew papers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department on Friday turned over to a federal judge the first batch of papers from its secret files in the 1973 Spiro Agnew investigation.

Delivery of the papers was in response to an order by U.S. District Court Judge June Green that the papers be given to her for determination on whether they can be made public.

"The order has been complied with," said one of Judge Green's law clerks in late afternoon.

The Justice Department was sued by two George Washington University law students who demanded to see the papers under the Freedom of Information Act.

The department resisted on grounds that some of the documents might hinder current investigations in Maryland, or might prejudice the rights of innocent persons.

FTC rules on used-car sales leave pitfalls

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press

The Federal Trade Commission is trying to take some of the risk out of buying a used car, but plenty of pitfalls remain for unwary consumers.

Industry and government experts generally agree that the best way of getting your money's worth is to read all the fine print and know a fair amount about cars — or take along a friend who does.

Sales of used cars have increased as the economy suffered and franchised dealers reported that they sold 12 used cars for every 10 new cars during the first 10 months of 1975.

That doesn't count the cars sold by independent dealers. Nor does it include used cars that change hands in private transactions.

IT IS DIFFICULT TO figure out exactly how many people are buying second-hand autos, because the same used car may be sold and resold during the course of the year.

An FTC spokesman said that an estimated 12.5 million used car sales by dealers are reported every year. Estimates of used car sales on a private basis range from 12 to 38 million, the spokesman said.

Several states have their own laws to protect used car buyers, but the only federal legislation in effect, according to the FTC, is a statute requiring dealers to give an odometer statement, providing the mileage of the car if they know it and the fact that it is unavailable if they don't know it.

The commission has proposed rules, still subject to public comment and hearings, that would require dealers to disclose whatever they know about things such as actual mileage, the nature of prior use and any major repairs performed in reconditioning.

The rules also would prohibit a dealer from making unsubstantiated claims. "You can't say, 'This car just had a motor job,' if you know it didn't," the FTC spokesman explained.

VIOLATIONS OF THE proposed rules — which could take up to 18 months to implement — could bring fines of up to $10,000 a day.

But the proposed rules apply only to dealer sales, not to the millions of private transactions. And the FTC spokesman, while agreeing that "defects are a frequent problem," said the rules would not necessarily require even a dealer to disclose all defects in a car.

An FTC staff recommendation, not issued as a proposed rule, but subject to public comment and possible inclusion in the final regulations, would give buyers the right to have a used car inspected by an outside mechanic. The staff recommended that dealers have the right to send an employe with the customer for the inspection.

"Those who wanted it (information on defects) would pay for it," the FTC spokesman said.

Dealers generally said such a plan would add to used car costs and they expressed fears about the quality of inspection. "It's totally impractical from an expense viewpoint," said a dealers' spokesman.

What can a consumer do to insure he gets a fair deal?

"It's the old relationship of a reputable dealer and the guarantees he would give," said Charles Neely of the 5,000-member National Independent Auto Dealers Association. "There's an old saying in the jewelry business: 'If you don't know your jewels, know your jeweler.' The same thing is true of buying anything. If you don't know used cars, know your dealer. Check on his reputation in the community."

A SIMILAR VIEW CAME from Frank McCarthy of the National Automobile Dealers Association (NADA), which has some 20,000 members — franchised, new-car dealers who generally handle used autos as well. "You ought to deal with a reliable businessman, somebody who's been in business for a while," he said.

(Both dealers groups have voluntary codes of ethics.)

Neely also suggested that buyers check the details of any warranty, that they test drive the car and, if possible, bring along a friend who knows something about automobiles.

What do dealers think of the FTC proposals? "I think they're trying to do the best they can ... (but) I think they're to a great degree regulating American business out of business," Neely said.

He said FTC safeguards can boost costs and added: "The idea of the independent dealer selling used cars is to provide transportation for the blue collar workers ... for the young person just starting out ... or for the family who is buying a second or third car."

William E. Hancock, president of NADA, said the rules are "too imprecise for fair and equitable application by a dealer or salesman in representing the quality, performance, reliability or lack of mechanical defects of a used car..."

U.S. undecided on revising meat grades

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court Justice Harry A. Blackmun gave the Agriculture Department a green light Friday to put proposed revisions in meat-grading standards into effect.

A department spokesman said no decision had been made, however, on whether to do so or to await action by the full court.

Blackmun denied the application of the National Association of Meat Purveyors and other food-industry groups for a stay of a lower-court order approving the revisions.

ALTHOUGH the Meat Purveyors could refer the matter to one of the other justices, their attorneys said they have no plans to do so.

Still pending before the court, however, is an appeal in which the Consumer Federation of America and other consumer groups are seeking full-scale review of the lower-court decision.

The Meat Purveyors said they also plan to file for a full review of the decision, which was handed down last Nov. 14 by the U.S. Circuit Court in St. Louis.

Harold Carter, an assistant legal counsel for the Agriculture Department, said the department still had its course of action under study.

HE SAID there was nothing to prevent the department from putting the new regulations into effect immediately but that it might wait until the full court has either decided the appeals or declined to hear them.

Consumer groups and some elements of the food industry have complained that the new regulations would result in meat which is less palatable being marketed as prime and choice grade. The meat packers have also contended that the proposed rules would make grading more costly.

Harth warms to Walton work and Previn's baton

By DAVID LEVINSON

William Walton's violin concerto is a big, romantic showpiece for a great violinist — it was written in the late 1930s for Jascha Heifetz — and Sydney Harth made the most of its riches when he played it with the Los Angeles Philharmonic Thursday.

Harth is the orchestra's concertmaster, and he is an extraordinary one, whose spirit probably has as much to do with some of the orchestra's successes as the conducting of Zubin Mehta. Harth is also a soloist of sterling qualities, and in the Walton he had a vehicle that is exactly right for his virtues, which are richness of tone, precise technique and bold command of the architecture of a piece. It is rare for passion and precision to mesh so handsomely as they did in this performance.

WILLIAM WALTON'S music never really caught on in this country, and that is probably to the credit of American musicians and audiences, for his music tends to the flashy and the superficial. The British, who are inscrutable musically, find it moving, and Harth was fortunate to have a British conductor on the podium.

The British conductor was Andre Previn. He has not always been a British conductor. He was born in Berlin, became an eclectic jazz pianist in America when he was 17 and is now a conductor in London.

Previn's jazz piano technique was formidable, and in his earlier jazz days he did some pretty things with it (later, he sank into trivial flashiness). He is now a model British conductor: restrained, musicianly, firmly in command. He provided Harth with an impeccable accompaniment in a work that is orchestral in conception and that demands a virtuoso orchestra and a powerful conductor as well as a virtuoso soloist.

THE PURELY orchestral works on the program — which will be repeated at the Music Center Pavilion at 2:30 p.m. Sunday — were Haydn's Symphony No. 35, in B-flat, and Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 4.

Restraint served the former well. Previn's interpretation was on the dry side, and almost without drama, but it was sensitive.

Restraint did not serve the Tchaikovsky well. The symphony's splashy neuroticism and technical display suffered in Previn's well-mannered presentation with its moderate tempos.

Popularity of houseplants shows little sign of fading

WASHINGTON — Is man's best friend now the houseplant?

It doesn't bark, leave hair on the sofa, rip up furniture, howl in the night, rub against an unwilling leg, or want to have its ears scratched.

A houseplant can't fetch the newspaper off the front lawn or play with a ball of yarn. But if population proves popularity, houseplants have it all over dogs and cats.

That's one idea that comes from the nation's sudden obsession with leafy greenery, a craze that has turned 1975 into the Year of the Houseplant, and 1976 probably even more so, the National Geographic Society says.

IN 1974 Americans bought $111 million worth of houseplants, according to the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists. That's an increase of 64 per cent over the year before, continuing a green population explosion that started in 1970.

When all the leaves are counted, 1975 is expected to show that more houseplants than ever have won hearts and homes. Houseplant people have even greater hopes for 1976.

Dr. Henry Cathy of the Department of Agriculture sees at least three causes of this greening of America: disgust with today's plastic world; a yen to get back to nature, satisfying an inborn ruralness in almost everyone; and hanging baskets.

HE SAYS America's houseplant hiatus in the first half of the century coincided with the building of houses with windowsills too narrow for setting pots on. Then the hanging basket was rediscovered and houseplants again could have a permanent place in the sun.

Once houseplants seemed only companions to maiden aunts in Victorian parlors. There were cascades of ferns, spear-thrusts of mother-in-law's tongue, and dusty rubber plants.

Now even the "biggest aspidistra in the world" would be upstaged by the profusion of plants, both exotic and ordinary, taking over offices, shops, and stores, as well as living rooms and kitchens.

"Today you can bring home New Guinea," says an amazed botanist, ticking off dozens of tropical plants sold in neighborhood supermarkets and hardware, drug, appliance, and even liquor stores.

NEW LEAFS, Green Thumbs, Gay Blades, Good Earths, and other similarly named plant boutiques — so called to differentiate them from florists also selling cut flowers — are mushrooming everywhere.

Some plant stores offer hospitalization for sick philodendrons and the like, and at least one girl with a sympathetic potside manner makes house calls.

Many believe the best way to bring a healthy flush of green to a favorite plant is to speak kindly to it, maybe sing a little, and shield it from thoughts of violence and from dogs.

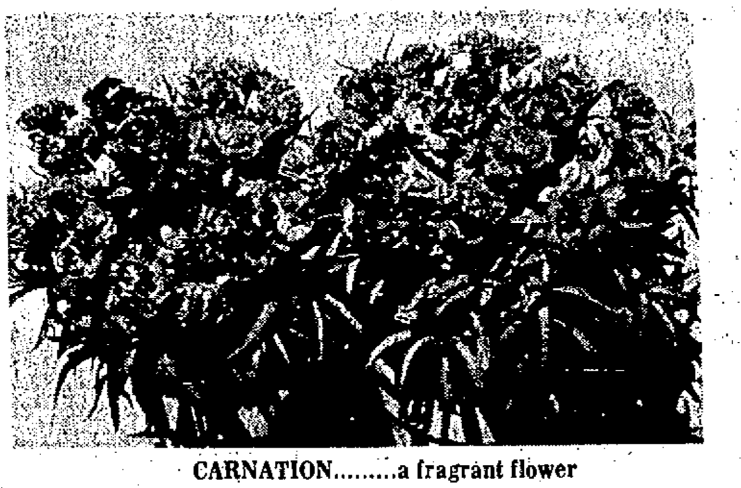
You're invited if you can find it

WASHINGTON (AP) — Several thousand persons invited to attend regional hearings on President Ford's proposals to make government departments more responsive to consumers wound up being asked to the wrong meetings.

A spokesman for the Office of Consumer Affairs said Friday that the problem had "something to do with the machine" mixing up zip-code listings.

GARDENING

By JOE LITTLEFIELD



CARNATION.........a fragrant flower

A new hybrid carnation Juliet won the bronze medal award All America Selections. The old-fashioned fragrant red-flowered plant grows about a foot high and spreads to around 14 inches in diameter. It can be grown as specimen plants in pots, too.

Gardener can easily grow carnations providing he sets out the plants at the proper depth, is hard-hearted in snapping out the tops several times, and heartlessly cuts down into the leafy branch growths as he cuts the blossoms for table decoration.

PROPER planting can be handled two ways. Naturally, poor soil should be prepared by mixing it with some organic amendment plus bone meal or flower-fruit fertilizer in the hole and again with soil over it.

The top of the root ball must be a quarter of an inch above the surrounding soil level, if the plant is set out in a heavy clay soil. This is done to avoid water standing around the base of the trunk.

Carnations, Pinks, Sweet Williams of the Dianthus family all hate to have water standing around their trunks, because the plants rot off at that area.

Many good gardeners who set out carnations ffor the first time wonder why they can't grow them successfully. They can grow lovely camellias, rhododendrons, azaleas and have good results with cymbidiums, but not carnations — unless they realize why carnations rot off if water stands around the plant trunks.

Plants may be set level with the surrounding garden soil in a well-draining type of soil.

A furrow at the inside edge of the plant hole helps prevent water from standing around the base of the trunks.

NOW comes the important training to force carnations to produce many more branches. Most new carnations purchased at nurseries usually have only one branch. The six-inch branch top should be snapped off. This doesn't mean the individual leaves, but a portion of the branch itself.

Snapped off thusly, it will usually produce two new branches. Those branch tops, too, should be snapped off when they're about six inches long. Each snapping doubles the amount of growth.

The other equally important factor in forcing new growth for future flowers is to cut the branch down into the leafy growth. Such cutting forces additional growth. Most important of all, the plant stays bushy, and not gangling and sprawly.

CYCLAMEN have no fragrance but they put out lots of flowers. Christmas gift plants such as cyclamen, azaleas, poinsettias, and other indoor house plants need to be watered more carefully. First of all, the fancy wrappers around the pots tend to keep the clay pots moist longer. Also those containers must have a hole in the bottom to allow drainage.

Gift plants soon become sickly due to too much moisture and possible excessive shade. Plants should be in an area where they get lots of indirect light.

A cyclamen can be kept indoors if gardener keeps the plant in a cool room, and doesn't let it go dormant, but keeps it watered and lightly fed at monthly intervals with a flower-fruit fertilizer.

Azaleas and poinsettias should be planted in the garden. The poinsettias need protection from frost.

CLUB NOTES

The Naples Island Garden Club will meet at the Gloria Dei Lutheran Church Tuesday, at 12:30 p.m. Members and guests will leave from the church for a tour of El Dorado Park. Everyone is requested to bring a sack lunch. Liquid refreshment will be provided.

The Long Beach Parent Chapter of the American Begonia Society will meet Sunday at 1:30 p.m. in the Community Room of the Coast Federal Savings and Loan Association Building, 6241 Spring Street. The speaker will be Gil Estrada, a member of the Begonian staff. He will show slides and discuss begonias. Refreshments will be served and visitors are welcome.

Old Farmer's Riddle: What do elephants have that no other animal has? (Answer below.)

Ask the Old Farmer: I'm a third generation Florida "cracker" and I wonder why some southerners are called crackers? I've never understood the meaning. F.J., Orlando.

Cracker originally described the "poor white trash" of the South, indicating a crook. To "crack a crib," or burgle, is very old English slang.

Home Hints: Tack an end of your tape measure to an empty thread spool. Roll it up and attach a snap fastener to close it. Riddle answer: Baby elephants

Farm population still on decline

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's farm population continued to shrink between 1970 and 1974, with young people and blacks leading the decline, the government said Friday.

The farm population declined by an average of 1.2 per cent per year in the four-year period, according to the report by the Census Bureau and the Agriculture Department.

Preliminary figures also indicate a sharp drop of 8 per cent between 1974 and 1975 in the overall farm population, but officials said one year's figures were not enough to indicate a trend.

In 1970 there were 9.7 million people living or working on farms, compared with 9.3 million in 1974 and 8.9 million in 1975.

Blacks and other minorities on farms showed an annual drop of 9 per cent in the 1970-1974 period, officials said, declining in number from 938,000 to 655,000.

Vera Banks, an Agriculture Department statistician, said the reason for this decline was not clear, but she noted that automation in cotton harvesting and the recession hit poor black farmers first.

Members of farm families below the age of 14 dropped 20 per cent from 1970 to 1974, the report said, while those over 14 remained about the same.

Mrs. Banks said growing numbers of older farm workers were taking advantage of retirement benefits, for which they were not previously eligible.

She said there has been some migration from farms to urban areas, but the most significant factors are increased retirements and a decline in the birth rate among farm families.

The report said that there were 107 males for every 100 females on farms, while in the general population there were only 93 males for every 100 females.

FDA again eyes controls on DES

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration said Friday it will once again try to forbid use of the drug DES to fatten livestock because of fears that cancer-causing residues are carried in meat for the marketplace.

DES, or diethylstilbestrol, is a synthetic version of the female hormone estrogen. Doctors sometimes prescribe it for women suffering menopausal or other gynecological difficulties, while farmers and feedlot operators have used it widely for two decades to make their cattle and sheep gain weight more rapidly.

The FDA's proposed ban would not apply to human medical uses, although the drug is under considerable fire in that regard as well. The agency does intend, however, to require a cancer warning label on DES prescriptions as well as other estrogen products.

DESPITE federal rules designed to guarantee that no trace of the drug is left in livestock prior to slaughter, the FDA said that improved detection methods demonstrate that residues occasionally show up anyway in the animals' livers and kidneys.

And that, contends the FDA, is reason enough for an outright ban on the use of DES in livestock.

Laboratory studies have long established that DES can cause cancer in test animals when fed in large doses.

Those results prompted the FDA to originally ban DES in livestock three years ago, but the move was overthrown by a federal court on grounds that the agency hadn't given the manufacturers a fair chance to argue their case.

"Today's proposal," said an FDA spokesman, "gives manufacturers of DES 30 days to request a hearing. If no request is received, FDA will at the end of the 30 days finalize withdrawal of the drug. If a hearing is requested ... it will be held as soon as possible."

LEGISLATION is now before Congress that would not only ban DES for livestock but sharply reduce its medical uses to emergency purposes — and only with signed consent of the patient.

The drug is now authorized for such things as easing estrogen deficiency in menopause or after a hysterectomy, for shrinking milk glands after pregnancy, for easing internal itching, for breast cancer and cancer of the reproductive organs of both men and women.

Though not legally marketable for the purpose, it is known that some doctors prescribe DES as a "morning after" birth control drug. Both the FDA and congressional advocates say they are willing to authorize such use only in extreme circumstances, such as rape and incest cases.

The FDA argues, however, that such controls should be kept under its administrative realm — primarily through labeling requirements, while Congress is considering criminal strictures.

The FDA had served notice a month ago that it would move ahead on its own, meanwhile, to ban DES in livestock.

SINCE the prior ban was upset by the courts early in 1974, the agency said there have been "continued finds of DES residues" in butchered cattle and sheep.

That wasn't supposed to happen under the current requirement, previously regarded as adequate by Agriculture Department scientists, that producers withdraw the drug from any animal at least 14 days prior to slaughter.

But new and "highly sensitive" detection devices used by the Agriculture Department have found the illegal residues in 36 out of 4,371 animals tested, a rate of about eight-tenths of one per cent, since DES was reinstated, said the FDA.

The FDA noted that, under previous — and still official — detection methods, the residue would have been found in only one of the 36 animals that had it. The agency therefore said it would order the old system of testing revoked.

According to the Agriculture Department, no traces of DES have been found in the muscle tissue or red meat of animals, only in livers and occasionally in kidneys.

Parcel post stopped again to Turkey

WASHINGTON (AP) — Parcel post service to U.S. military bases in Turkey will be suspended again today, the Postal Service announced Friday.

Service was first suspended at Turkey's demand after Congress voted a cutoff in military aid to Turkey in February, another federal source said.

The aid embargo was partially lifted in October, and the Turkish government agreed in November to permit parcel post service for the holiday season.

That allowed Christmas packages to get through to U.S. servicemen and women stationed in Turkey. The source said the United States was not sure at the time whether the relaxation was temporary.

But Turkey demanded that the suspension be resumed, the source said, adding that the Turkish government gave no specific reason.

FDA eyes ban on Red No. 2 food dye

WASHINGTON (AP) — Red Dye No. 2, the nation's most widely used food coloring, apparently causes cancer in laboratory rats that consume high dosages of the dye, according to a new study.

If the study is accepted by the Food and Drug Administration, it could result in a nationwide ban.

"It appears that feeding ... Red No. 2 (to rats) at a high dosage results in a statistically significant increase in a variety of malignant neoplasms (tumors)," Dr. David W. Gaylor said in a memo accompanying an analysis given the FDA.

Gaylor is chief biostatistician at the National Center for Toxological Research.

The dye is used in foods, drugs and cosmetics. But it generally is listed on products as food coloring rather than as Red Dye No. 2 and consumers would have no way of knowing what kind of dye they are consuming.

Fourteen of 44 rats given high dosages of the dye develped a variety of malignant tumors, according to the study. Of the group of 44 rats given low dosages, only four developed cancers.

The General Accounting Office said in October that the FDA has postponed a decision on the dye's safety 14 times since 1963 at the request of the food or cosmetic industries.

The GAO recommended that the government move quickly either to assure that the dye is safe or to take it off the market. Gaylor's analysis is one of the studies undertaken for the FDA's evaluation of the dye.

The FDA is expected to review the findings within 10 days.

If Gaylor's research is correct, said Dr. Lloyd Topper, chairman of the FDA's toxicology committee, "then it would seem the (FDA) commissioner's course is to ban" Red No. 2.

FDA Commissioner Alexander M. Schmidt said two weeks ago that he was unaware of any evidence that the dye caused cancer in test animals. He reportedly was unaware of Gaylor's findings when he made the statement.

Book Reviews

'The Best of Sail' a must for marine buffs

The Best of Sail. Text by Basil Lubbock. Illustrated by Jack Spurling. Introduction by Alan Villiers. Grosset and Dunlap, $35.

A panorama of the finest sailing ships from 1850 to World War I, this collection of brilliant paintings by Jack Spurling, reproduced from the covers of the famous British magazine Blue Peter, is a delight for the maritime buff. Basil Lubbock's lively text encompasses the history, lore and legend, and the drama of the sailing ship. — N.

The Fate of a Nation: The American Revolution Through Contemporary Eyes. By William P. Cumming and Hugh Rankin. Phaidon (Praeger), $25.

The excitement of a new nation being born, the passion of political controversy, the roar of battle, all are woven into a fascinating whole in this beautifully illustrated volume based on battle reports, letters and jornals of the American Revolution. — N.

Hollywood Players: The Forties. By James Robert Parish and Lennard DeCarl. Arlington House, $25.

Two film historians add a superb volume to Arlington House's parade of first-rate movie histories and biographies. The war years saw Hollywood producing some of its best escapist pictures and realistic war films, and the authors have picked out 83 of the most noted actors and actresses of the time, detailing their personalities, lives and films, and probing, warts and all, the Hollywood system. There are nearly 300 superb illustrations. — H.

John Sloan: Paintings, Prints, Drawings. By David Scott, Watson-Guptill, $29.95.

John Sloan (1871-1951) was one of America's most brilliant painters, perhaps best known for his realistic scenes of city life. He was a leader of The Eight, stigmatized as the Ashcan School because of its opposition to academism. David Scott gives us the most thoroughgoing survey of Sloan's work we have had, with 120 black and white reproductions and 48 full color plates of Sloan's work in every genre, including his powerful social protest drawings. — H.

Hollywood's Hollywood: The Movies About the Movies. By Rudy Behlmer and Tony Thomas. Citadel, $19.95.

A unique book about Hollywood — a panorama of the 200 movies that have been about the movies, the movie colony, its romances and its scandals. Long before "A Star Is Born" there were pictures like "Merton of the Movies," to name just one. Serious films and spoofs, they're all here, going back to 1908. The big volume is elaborately illustrated. — N.

Art in Vienna 1898-1918. By Peter Vergo. Phaidon (Praeger), $27.50.

At the turn of the century art in Vienna had become stagnant. Then came the Secession group, radical, brash, explosive, and art was a whole new ballgame in Vienna. Painters like Klimt, Schiele, Kokoschka, men like Adolf Loos, Otto Wagner and Josef Hoffman in architecture and the applied arts soon made Vienna a great art center again. Peter Vergo's lushly illustrated account of a score of golden art years in Vienna is a treasure for the art lover. — N.

SCIENCE FICTION OF THE 30's. Edited with historical commentary by Damon Knight. Bobbs-Merrill, $12.50.

The 1930's were truly a golden age of science fiction, and fans of the genre will find a great many pleasurable moments in the 18 stories selected by Damon Knight, tales by such science fiction masters as Murray Leinster, Stanley G. Weinbaum, Frank Kelly, L. Sprague de Camp, Lester del Rey and Manly W. Wellman. These writers were giving a good account of such things as moonships, space suits and lasers quite some time before scientists made them into realities.

The illustrators of the tales were depicting these matters with amazing prophetic similarity. Original illustrations for these new forgotten stories appear with the tales in the Knight collection. Knight gives us a fascinating account of science fiction's development.

INSIDE MONTE CARLO. By Stanley Jackson. Stein and Day, $12.50.

Once there were a handful of goats and a few olive trees on a barren rock called Monaco. Then in 1862 Francois Blanc built a casino there. Today Monte Carlo the playground of the famous and infamous. Somerset Maugham called it "a sunny place for shady people." Stanley Jackson's "Inside Monte Carlo" is an entertaining social history of the gambling principality where Kaiser Wilhelm II lost 100,000 francs with his "infallible" system and never came back, and Sarah Bernhardt lost a fortune in three hours.

CREATIVE EMBROIDERY: A Complete Guide. By Anne Spence. Viking Studio Books, $14.95.

As is the case with all Viking Studio books, "Creative Embroidery" is a work of art in itself. It is immensely practical as well; Anne Spence discusses every step connected with creative embroidery, from color design to fabric preparation; techniques, stitchery, mounting and lining. As a bonus there's a section on allied crafts.

THE MODERN FIREPLACE. By Jacques Debaigts. Van Nostrand Reinhold, $30.

This bounteously illustrated handsome book will benefit architects and homeowners alike, with its innumerable examples of different shapes and of integrating the fireplace into modern interiors. There are 98 color illustrations and 69 in black-and-white, besides 76 plans and 14 figures. Jacques Debaigts is a noted French interior architect and interior decorator.

LAGUNA NIGUEL
— WATCH FOR OPENING

No funds for L.B. building

From Our State Bureau

SACRAMENTO — No construction funds are included in Gov. Brown's 1976-77 budget for the state building waiting to be built in Long Beach, but the spending plan does offer criteria to guide the building's planners.

"The design of new state office buildings must be responsive to at least five concerns: human, environmental, cost, social and community," the budget states.

"TO BE humanly responsive, facilities will be smaller-scale, less institutional, using softer and warmer materials and integrated with usable and inviting open spaces.

"To be environmentally responsive, architects must recognize that the era of cheap energy is over and use common-sense designs for local conditions and climate which would minimize the need for energy-intensive, polluting systems. For example, designs should use recessed, shaped and operable windows, sheltered arcades and breezeways, shaped courtyards and extensive landscaping.

"To be cost-responsive, careful architectural design can realize up to 80 per cent reduction in energy-operating costs by using less monolithic materials and avoiding glass and steel towers.

"To be socially responsive, smaller increments of construction mean more adpatability to future uses, greater participation by smaller contractors through unit bidding, and more state encouragement of affirmative action in the building process.

"TO BE community-responsive, state offices in downtown locations would intermix state and private uses in single buildings and promote diversity of use through time.

"Design can be kept direct, personal, and small-scale so it is responsive to change and correction, because now, both humanity and nature have become victims of institutionalized bigness. Many systems are best designed around the most coherent, smallest and most independent components possible."

The language is from the new state architect, Sim Van der Ryn.

In the current fiscal year, $354,000 was appropriated for preliminary working drawings for the Long Beach state office building. Finance Director Roy Bell said it was not expected that construction could be begun before the 1977-78 fiscal year in view of the state's financial situation.

$25 million for parks proposed

From Our State Bureau

SACRAMENTO — Gov. Brown has proposed that $25 million in state funds be used to trigger development of urban parks.

"It is planned," Brown said, "that legislation will require that local government provide minimum matching amounts for all acquisition and development projects, and require them to assume operational responsibilities for all projects."

He did not elaborate on how much was meant by "minimum matching funds."

The program, he said, "is designed to meet the demand for more outdoor recreation opportunities in the more populated areas of our state, where 85 per cent of the people live and where a 30 per cent deficiency in open space and recreation areas exist."

He proposed that the state allocate another $50 million to the project during the next two fiscal years.

Also in his 1976-77 budget proposal, Brown suggested that the state provide $2 million to Los Angeles County and $2.2 million to Orange County to help finance county park operations.

No new funds were proposed for acquisition, construction, or other development of Los Angeles or Orange County beaches, but the budget did include an increase of $173,960 over the current fiscal year for increased staffing at Bolsa Chica State Beach.

BUDGET

The University of California received $57 million less than the $701 million it asked for, and the California State University and Colleges received $49 million less than the $675 million it said it needed.

But the item certain to be the most controversial when the Assembly and Senate budget committees start hearings on the proposal next week is the $65 pay-increase proposal for all state employes except highway patrolmen.

The powerful California State Employes Assn. was expected to firmly oppose the proposal, and Brown indicated, during a press briefing, he was ready to battle vigorously in its behalf.

"If inflation is the reason — apart from merit and step increases — to give a pay increase, then it seems logical to help the most those hurt by inflation the most," he said.

Lower-income state employes must spend most of their salaries for food and other necessities, he said.

But high-income employes, including university teachers and administrators, doctors, attorneys and judges, are not expected to be pleased at a salary increase of 4 percent or less, which is what the $65 a month or $780 a year would amount to.

Highway patrolmen last year succeeded in persuading the Legislature and the governor that their salaries should be tied in with other law-enforcement salaries, so their increase will average about $125 a month.

Along with his salary proposal benefitting the lowest-paid state employes, the governor also suggested that the incomes of all Californians earning $5,000 or less, or $10,000 in the case of a joint return, be free from taxation.

Presently, salaries under $4,000 and $8,000, respectively, are exempt. The proposal would cost about $50 million but would be offset by the tax revenues from the many Californians expected to move into higher tax brackets as a result of the economic upturn.

"The 1973-75 recession is over," the budget document stated.

"We are coming out of the deepest recession since the thirties," Finance director Roy Bell said. "Such recoveries usually last at least two years.

"We anticipate that for the first time in several years a wage earner's increased income will exceed the cost-of-living increase."

Despite the optimistic outlook, the budget for the Department of Benefit Payments — it used to be called "welfare" — is up by $369.4 million. The actual case load of needy families is down, an aide to Bell explained, but cost-of-living increases and large increases in aid to the aged, blind, and disabled account for the large budget hike.

"The Legislature has about five months to act on the budget.

DOCTORS' SLOWDOWN

pinching larger, metropolitan facilities.

But if community hospitals were faltering, Tripi said heavy caseloads were putting a strain on the county system.

He said officials at County-USC Medical Center and Harbor General Hospital—two of the county facilities most swamped with admissions of patients who otherwise might have gone to private hospitals—were sending some patients to Rancho Los Amigos Hospital in Downey and Long Beach General Hospital in an effort to ease the load.

The eight county hospitals together have a "budgeted bed capacity" of 3,761, Tripi said. He said that number can be stretched by about "1,000 licensed beds" if needed.

IF THAT happens, he said, the county will temporarily hire trained medical personnel to augment the already weary county hospital staffs.

He said medical workers who have been laid off could qualify for the temporary jobs and urged interested persons to call officials at a special 24-hour "hotline" set up to screen prospective temporary employes. The number is (213) 974-7951.

Tripi warned, however, that the "hotline" has been set up to screen qualified applicants and that calling officials does not mean an automatic job. He said when additional employes are needed, applicants will be referred to various county hospitals for further processing.

He said persons likely to be hired include doctors, dentists, registered nurses, X-ray and lab technicians, ambulance attendants, orthopedic and surgical technicians, nurse anesthetists, pharmacists, occupational and physical therapists, critical care nurses and surgical nurses.

Ford calls summit on intelligence

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford has called his top foreign policy, national security and White House advisers to a meeting today to discuss recommendations he will propose to Congress for changing the nation's intelligence operations.

Ford has been working on the reorganization for more than a year in the wake of disclosure of irregularities in intelligence operations of such agencies as the FBI and CIA.

Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Friday that Ford and the advisers probably will work out a timetable at the session for presenting the recommendations to Congress.

But no announcements are expected today because it is a very sensitive and highly classified area, Nessen said.

The session this afternoon is expected to last as long as two hours or more, Nessen said, and will include a discussion of foreign intelligence issues, including oversight and restrictions, organization and management, the relationship between the executive and Congress on intelligence-gathering matters and other items.

The Senate intelligence committee, meanwhile, is drafting a bill that would create a new congressional committee which would have to be informed before any U.S. intelligence agency could undertake a covert action.

The bill is expected to meet White House opposition. Administration officials who have seen the preliminary bill say it would seriously erode the president's power to conduct foreign policy.

Kissinger still target

RESTON, Va. (AP) — Retired Adm. Elmo R. Zumwalt Jr., former chief of Naval Operations, Friday continued his attack on Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger who, the admiral said, has "badly misled the public" about Soviet behavior.

In a speech to a meeting of Associated Press Virginia newspaper executives, Zumwalt said, "By failing to report accurately Soviet behavior contrary to both the concept and the specific agreements of detente, including SALT (Strategic Arms Limitation Talks), he (Kissinger) has created a euphoria concerning the state of the relationships existing between the USSR and the U.S."

Zumwalt, an undeclared candidate for the Senate from Virginia, said "by striving to deal with the symptoms of the disease in Angola instead of dealing with the disease (Soviet policy objectives) itself, in Moscow, Kissinger insures that the disease will flourish — i.e., that misbehavior will increase and proliferate to other areas and other policy interests, unchecked by realistic U.S. public opinion."

Chinese leaders reported meeting

By FOX BUTTERFIELD
New York Times Service

HONG KONG — Foreign diplomats in Peking reported Friday that there was a large gathering in the Great Hall of the People following the death of Premier Chou En-lai, touching off speculation that China's leaders may have already begun discussions on filling the vacancies created by his death.

Chou, China's long-time senior administrator and the country's most skilled diplomat, died of cancer Thursday at 78.

Chou's funeral Jan. 15 will be private, according to Hsinhua, the Chinese press agency, "in accordance with China's custom and protocol reform."

Analysts here noted that China's top officials usually hold private memorial services for their dead colleagues. The practice in part may reflect a desire for simplicity, in keeping with China's revolutionary traditions.

ALTERNATIVELY, the Chinese may have felt unable to handle the flood of foreign dignitaries who would like to attend the funeral. The decision to bar foreigners, despite Chou's international stature, could also be a reflection of China's long tradition of ethnocentrism.

Chou's death, following the deaths in the last nine months of two other members of the nine-man standing committee of the politburo, has left several major posts open. Chou himself was premier, the first ranking vice-chairman of the party and a member of the politburo standing committee.

Three of the nine standing committee posts are now unfilled, while two of the six surviving members are in their 80s and two in their 70s. Moreover, Wang Hung-wen, who is now the second-ranking figure in the party hierarchy after Chairman Mao Tse-tung and the only top leader under 60 years old, has been in something of a political eclipse this year.

THERE WAS no confirmation from Peking what the meeting at the Great Hall of the People was about. Chinese practice is not to announce party or government congresses until after they are over.

But analysts earlier reported that two members of the politburo from nearby Kwangtung Province did not take part in regular New Year's day festivities in Canton and might therefore have gone to Peking knowing Chou was dying. The two were Wei Kuo-ching, the newly named first party secretary of Kwangtung, and Hsu Shih-yu, the military commander.

A meeting of the politburo would normally proceed a full meeting of the Central Committee, which in theory should approve new party appointments.

Occasions like funerals, where the top leaders gather in Peking, have often been used by China to convoke party meetings.

Chou's death led to no noticeable disruptions in China or here in Hong Kong, and Peking seemed determined to carry on with business as usual. That seemed to be a form of tribute to Chou's success in rebuilding a strong, if not fully unified, Chinese leadership following the turmoil of the Cultural Revolution.

FLAGS flew at half-staff in Peking and over British government offices and banks in the colony here. But that was one of the few outward signs of Chou's death. Chinese radio stations maintained their regular scheduled programs.

Attention now shifts to whether the interim leadership team Chou seemed to put together at the National People's Congress last January and the policies of stability and economic growth which he espoused will continue after his demise.

Foremost in this transitional group is Teng Hsiao-ping, the ranking deputy premier who has been administering China's day-to-day affairs over the past year. He now becomes the obvious, if by no means the certain, choice to succeed Chou as premier.

Teng has moved rapidly to consolidate his power over the last half year by appointing a large number of his own followers or like-minded party veterans to key provincial posts. But Teng, who was denounced during the Cultural Revolution as a "demon" and a "freak" and then purged, presumably has many enemies.

ANALYSTS here are watching the funeral arrangements and possible party meetings carefully to see if they offer up any clues to Teng's fortunes. He is now only the fourth-ranking member of the party, after Mao, Wang, the youthful Shanghai radical, and Yeh Chien-ying, the 78-year-old minister of defense.

With Mao's own health frail, Wang would, by protocol, be expected to preside over the memorial service, as he did last month for the late party leader Kang Sheng. But if Teng should preside, it would be an indication that he was showing what an analyst here termed "real muscle."

L.A. River now least-favored RTD-line route

By DON BRACKENBURY
Staff Writer

The route down the Los Angeles River, which unofficially has always been considered the one for any rapid-transit line to Long Beach, now appears the least favored of three alternatives being considered by the City Council's transportation committee.

A route down the west city limits, following the rights-of-way of the Union Pacific Railroad and Terminal Island Freeway, seems the first choice, based on preliminary city staff reports and committee discussion Friday.

Even a suggested route which would run as a subway beneath Long Beach Boulevard south from Willow Street was preferred to the river route.

The committee authorized the staff to continue working with the Southern California Rapid Transit District, which Wednesday voted to apply for $4.4 million in federal aid for preliminary studies of the "starter line" between Long Beach and downtown Los Angeles.

The three committee members present, Chairwoman Renee B. Simon and Councilmen Don Phillips and Wes Carroll Jr., voted, however, to recommend that the City Council urge the RTD to study the entire transit "corridor" from Long Beach to Canoga Park, not just the Long Beach-Los Angeles segment.

Los Angeles County Supervisor Baxter Ward expressed concern Thursday that if the RTD sticks with its decision to study only the Long Beach-Los Angeles segment, it will not get the federal funds.

The transportation committee also agreed to meet weekly for the next few weeks to keep abreast of developments.

As the proposed transit line approaches Long Beach, it would follow the old Pacific Electric right-of-way until it reached the Long Beach Freeway near Dominguez Street. From this point, the three alternate routes are:

— Southwest along the Union Pacific Railroad right-of-way and later the Terminal Island Freeway right-of-way down the west city limits to approximately Anaheim Street, then southeast along the Southern Pacific right-of-way to the Los Angeles River and then downtown either on Third or Seventh streets.

— South on either the east or west bank of Los Angeles River to approximately the Shoemaker Bridge, entering the downtown area on either Third Street or Seventh Street.

— Continuing southeast on the Pacific Electric right-of-way to Willow Street, then south on Long Beach Boulevard to downtown, but changing from surface to subway at approximately Willow Street.

The major problem with the Los Angeles route, said King Cushman, city transportation consultant, is the expense of carrying the transit line beneath the bridge overpasses, but there also is a problem of access, because the river forms a "180-degree barrier."

In addition, said Cushman, if the route were brought down the east bank of the river, the required right-of-way and sites for stations would require elimination of a large number of residences.

"Going down Long Beach Boulevard underground has got to be so expensive, it would be unreal," commented Carroll.

Cushman agreed and said construction estimates for such a subway range from $25 million to $50 million per mile. The federal Urban Mass Transportation Administration favors a "minimum of subway" construction in any project, he said.

The route down the west city limits would, for the most part, be over land now vacant, helping curb costs, and would be of value to the proposed West Long Beach Industrial Redevelopment Area, he said. In addition, it will provide easier links to the Wilmington-San Pedro areas.

Speaking for the Planning Commission, Ellis K. "Bud" Crow said it does not favor a river alignment, and called the westerly route "a low-cost alternative."

"We believe very strongly that this transportation system, if built, will have very strong impacts on Long Beach — land use, value, social and, of course, transportation impacts," Crow said. "Those impacts will be very long-lasting."

"The initial cost of the system may, in the end, turn out to be the least important to the people of Long Beach," Crow said. "The long-range impacts may be the most important."

Cushman told the committee he expects the initial analysis of the alternate routes to be completed by the RTD and returned to the city by the end of February.

$10 million for campus work eyed

From Our State Bureau

SACRAMENTO — Construction funds totaling more than $10 million have been proposed for Long Beach-area universities and colleges in Gov. Brown's 1976-77 state budget.

California State College, Dominguez Hills, is the largest single recipient, with $4.9 million allocated, including $4 million for construction of a physical education facility. Other allocations include $318,000 to equip a classroom office building, $289,000 to equip the theater arts building, and $325,000 to construct parking facilities.

Colleges in Orange County were allocated a total of $4,356,600, with Golden West College to get $1.8 million to finance working drawings and construction of a 22,322-square-foot classroom, laboratory, and office building.

Orange Coast College is to get $2.2 million for construction of a chemistry building and $369,100 for an addition to its business education building.

The University of California campus at Irvine will receive $1,061,000 if the governor's budget is approved. The funds will be used for a variety of construction projects, including $290,000 for planning and construction of surface parking facilities.

The state funded $7.4 million worth of projects at Long Beach State University during the current fiscal year, but for 1976-77 the school will receive only $629,750 for capital outlay.

The budget includes $31,900 for an addition to the auto technical laboratory at Los Angeles Harbor College.

Except for the allocations proposed for Golden West, Orange Coast, and Harbor, no new construction funds were budgeted for community colleges in the area.

PETER MARSHALL
Police Benefit Emcee

POLICE VARIETY SHOW JAN. 30

A $10-per-ticket variety show to benefit a Long Beach Police Officers' Memorial Fund almost drained by the recent slayings of three officers will be presented Jan. 30 in the Arena, with Peter Marshall of TV's "Hollywood Squares" serving as emcee and performing.

Marshall, who announced the benefit Friday, said he was arranging for other television and motion picture personalities to appear with him.

Killed in the line of duty recently were Officers Bob Birdsall, shot Sept. 15; Franke Lewis, Dec. 13, and Gary Elkins, Jan. 1.

Funeral and other expenses, including scholarships for eight surviving children, drained the fund, said Bryan (Whitey) Littlefield, memorial chairman.

Some 550 Long Beach businessmen already have bought tickets, which are expected officially to go on sale Thursday at all Southland ticket agencies, Littlefield said.

LONG BEACH ANTIQUE SHOW: FUN TO LOOK EVEN IF YOU CAN'T AFFORD ANY

Inflation not stopping buyers

Antique show opens in L.B.

By JOANNE NORRIS
Staff Writer

Like every other commodity from medical malpractice insurance to marmalade, antiques and their younger sisters, the collectibles, have grown fat in the price-tag department.

But unlike other expensive items, antiques are fun to look at even if you can't afford to buy.

SOME 110 dealers from as far away as Beaver Dam, Wis., and Philadelphia currently are treating the public to the fun of looking during a four-day antique show at the Long Beach Arena. There is everything from a framed collection of Sonja Henie paper dolls to priceless cut glass and silver.

The 24th annual show and sale, which began Thursday and continues through Sunday, has more than $3 million worth of decorator and collector items for display and sale, according to Mark Sekulich, who produces the show with his son David.

Sekulich said although things cost more this year, people nevertheless are spending more.

Oak furniture has doubled in price in the past two years, Sekulich said. And dolls and jewelry may have increased even more. A 15-inch Shirley Temple doll, which probably cost about $9.95 back in 1938, is priced in the show at $130. Older dolls, which a few years back cost $250, have gone as high as $2,500, Sekulich added.

ROLLTOP desks, found four years ago for $350 or so, and two years ago for some $500, are going for from $850 to more than $1,000.

And so it goes.

More people are buying silver this year, according to dealers Penny and Bill Halladay of Palos Verdes who sell it. Cloisonne also is selling well.

Friday was a slow day for crowds, the Halladays reported. "The serious buyers come on Thursdays, the browsers on Sundays." Some buying is done on Saturday. "But if you don't make it on Thursday, you don't make it," Halladay said.

IN THE collectible department, visitors may find everything from ushers ribbons worn at a 1904 John Phillip Sousa concert to stock in defunct gold mines.

If ancient valentines are your thing, there are lots of those. And there's goodly pile of sheet music for tunes of the 20s and 30s.

As for "genuine" antiques, — items 100 years old or more — the show has very few, according to Sekulich. But it is no exception. "No show has just antiques anymore except in England where they won't let you put in anything less than that. "Besides," he added, "both Los Angeles County and city have revised their standards for antiques down to 50 years."

That new standard would hardly cover one plate gracing a display. It is from the 1972 Olympics.

IT MAY be an exception, however, as, even among collectibles, most items appear to be at least "middle-aged."

And no matter. Young or old, the varied assortment seems to be drawing the crowds.

Perhaps a sign in one of the displays is appropriate. "WARNING," it read. "ANTIQUE POX. VERY CONTAGIOUS."

Oldest policeman gets service award

Sgt. Robert N. Houghton, the oldest active police officer in the United States, was one of 74 Long Beach city employes honored Friday night at the city's annual service awards dinner, held aboard the Queen Mary.

Houghton joined the Long Beach Police Department in 1920, 12 years after it was formed.

"Chief of Police J. L. Butterfield gave me a hat and a badge and told me where to buy a gun and handcuffs," he said.

Houghton, 76, who completed 55 years service with the police department last Aug. 20, said he has no plans to retire.

City Manager John R. Mansell said Houghton has served on a major U. S. police department longer than any officer in the nation's history.

His first police assignment, in 1920, was walking a beat, without a partner, in the Pike amusement zone on the graveyard shift. His first jail-registry entry was for the arrest of a drunken man.

Houghton was responsible for installing Long Beach's first traffic signal, at the corner of Broadway and Pine Avenue, in 1927 — the year Charles Lindbergh flew the Atlantic.

He has worked in the department's patrol, traffic and detective divisions and, since 1962, has been a day booking sergeant.

SGT. ROBERT HOUGHTON

City employes honored for completing 25 years service with Long Beach included City Engineer Tom Marchese and Finance Director Warren Heistand.

Three women were among the 25-year-award recipients. They are June Willer of the department of administrative management, Harriet Abrams of the city clerk's office, and Rosemary Feldman of the recreation department.

The police department had the largest number of 25-year-award recipients, 27, including two brothers — Deputy Chief of Police Willis Platt and Sgt. Robert Platt.

Demo vacancy meeting set

The Long Beach area's 58th Assembly District Democratic County Committee will meet at 9 a.m. Sunday in Ben's Family Restaurant, 2955 Bellflower Blvd., Long Beach, to fill a committee vacancy created by the resignation of Pamela J. O'Leary.

Ron Nelson, chairman, said any registered Democrat living in the communities of Long Beach (east of Cherry Avenue), Lakewood, Hawaiian Gardens or Signal Hill who is interested in serving the remaining year in this position may phone 437-6103 or 430-1224 for further information and should attend Sunday's meeting.

The committee will also consider a proposal for electing members at next June's primary to represent designated subdistrict areas by arranging candidates on the ballot according to residence addresses.

Sullivan drops off Civil Service panel

Former Long Beach City Councilman Emmet Sullivan, 68, has resigned as a county Civil Service commissioner in the wake of accusations by Supervisor Ed Edelman that Sullivan displayed bigotry.

Disclosure of Sullivan's resignation was made Friday by Supervisor Kenneth Hahn, who said he met with Sullivan last week and that Sullivan denied Edelman's charges.

By resigning, Sullivan avoided a public airing of the charges against him. Under a new state law effective Jan. 1, hearings for appointments of certain county officers, including the Civil Service commissioners, must be conducted in public instead of in executive session.

The controversy surfaced Dec. 23 when Supervisor James Hayes moved in executive session to reappoint Sullivan for a second six-year term on the three-member commission.

Edelman then charged Sullivan was bigoted against blacks, Chicanos and Jews. Also, he said, Sullivan often fell asleep at hearings, and his apparent deafness created problems.

Sullivan denied the allegations, but the matter of his reappointment was placed in limbo. Shortly after the charges surfaced, Civil Service Commissioner Ernest Sanchez defended Sullivan, saying the charges were inaccurate.

Hahn told reporters he felt Sullivan wanted to simply avoid airing of the controversy in public. "I guess he just wanted to quietly fold his tent," Hahn said.

Sullivan told newsmen he did not want to prolong the dispute and had decided to withdraw after discussing the matter with his wife and friends.

Brown predicts fall in L.B. oil revenue for 1976-77

From Our State Bureau

SACRAMENTO — Oil revenue from the Long Beach tidelands is expected to total $66 million during the 1976-77 fiscal year, according to Gov. Brown's state budget proposal.

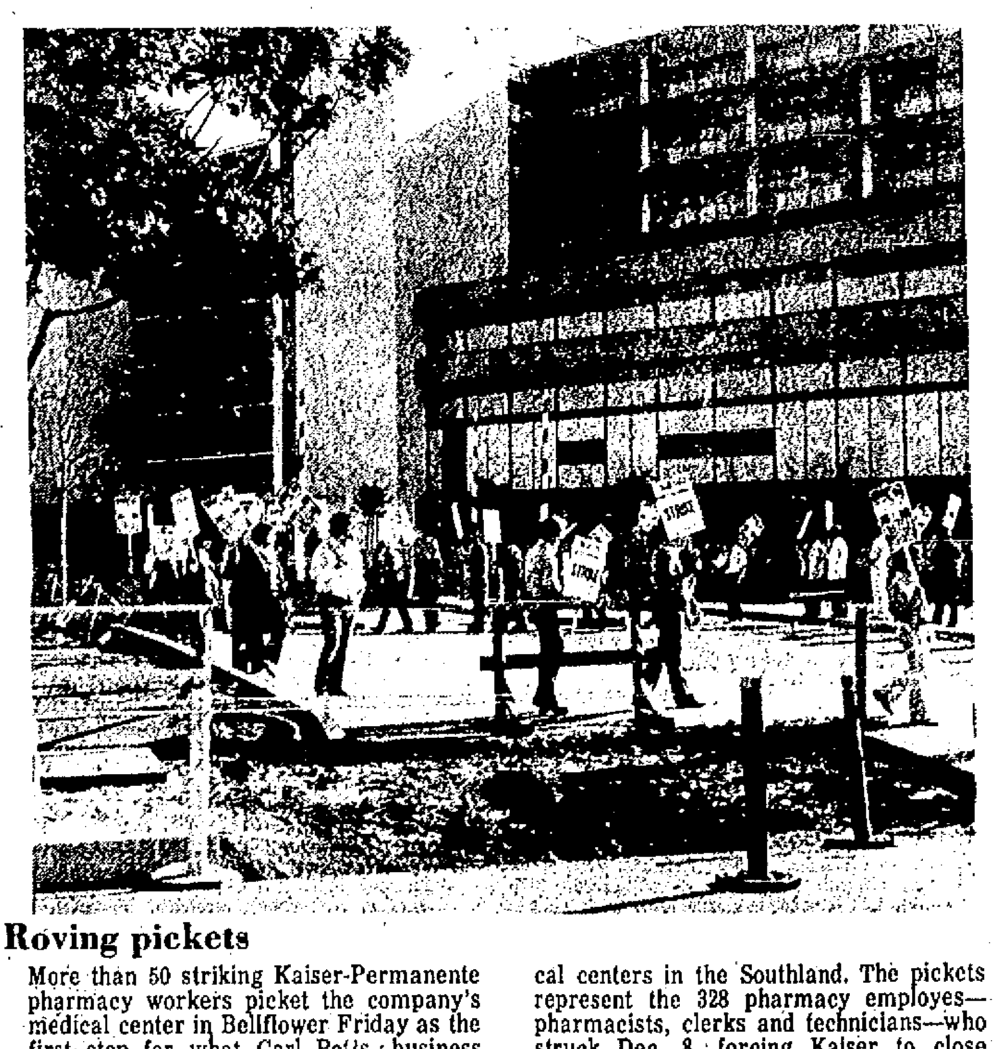
The revenue is down more than $15 million from the $81.5 million expected for the current fiscal year. The field, California's richest, produced $98.5 million in 1974-75.

Average daily production from the field is 108,000 barrels of oil and 25 million cubic feet of natural gas.

The City of Long Beach, as steward for the state, has filed an antitrust suit against the consortium of oil companies developing the tidelands. No conclusion of the litigation is expected for years, but if the city wins the state would get substantial addition revenues.

State Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger has also filed an antitrust action against most oil companies doing business in California.

In the 1976-77 budget proposed by the governor, the Department of Justice is allocated $1.3 million for antitrust activity, an increase of about $400,000 over the 1975-76 figure.



Roving pickets

More than 50 striking Kaiser-Permanente pharmacy workers picket the company's medical center in Bellflower Friday as the first stop for what Carl Potts, business agent for Retail Clerks Union Local 324, described as a caravan that will demonstrate at all seven of Kaiser's major medical centers in the Southland. The pickets represent the 328 pharmacy employes—pharmacists, clerks and technicians—who struck Dec. 8, forcing Kaiser to close pharmacies at its 18 outlying clinics and staff those at the major medical centers with supervisory personnel.

Rental, condominium units lead as...

Long Beach '75 building hits $85 million

By DON BRACKENBURY
Staff Writer

Residential construction in Long Beach, particularly rental and condominium apartment units, boomed in 1975, according to permits issued by the city's Department of Building and Safety.

Edward M. O'Connor, director of building and safety, said Friday the city issued 191 permits for construction of 733 residential units, with a combined value of $19.5 million.

During 1974, O'Connor said, there were 142 permits issued for 662 units whose combined valuation was $12.9 million.

Of the 191 residential permits issued last year, 24 were for apartment buildings containing a total of 540 units and valued at $12.1 million. Comparable figures for 1974 were 34 permits for 336 units, valued at $6.9 million.

TOTAL CONSTRUCTION value of the 19,044 permits issued by the Department of Building and Safety in 1975 was $85.1 million.

This was a sharp decrease from the $111.7-million total for 1974, but O'Connor said the prior year's valuation received a major boost from the $42.2-million permit issued in November for construction of Pacific Terrace Convention Center.

The 1975 total included 9,298 building permits valued at $68.7 million, 4,184 electrical permits for $10.2 million, and 5,562 plumbing permits, valued at $6.1 million.

Alterations and additions to existing structures accounted for 7,150 of the permits issued and $16.4 million of the total valuation, O'Connor said.

In other general categories of construction, the city issued 14 permits for hospitals or other institutional buildings, with a combined value of $8.3 million; 13 permits for public works or utilities, valued at $9.3 million; and 41 permits for commercial structures, with total value of $5.2 million.

AMONG THE MAJOR residential developments taking out permits during the year were: 21 duplexes, valued at $1.8 million, to be built by Long Beach Construction Co. in its Los Cerritos development; a 200-unit, $4.3-million project of Baptist Gardens at 1011 Pine Ave.; and a 60-unit, $2.3-million condominium structure by C. Robert Langslet at 4835 E. Anaheim St.

Three permits were issued to the city for additions or remodeling at Memorial Hospital, 2800 Atlantic Ave., at a cost of $4.9 million, and Robert Jallier was given a permit for construction of a $1.2-million, 168-unit board and care facility at 1046 E. Fourth St.

Major industrial projects included two permits to Edison Co. for remodeling of its generating plant at 2665 W. Seaside Blvd., at a total cost of $3.4 million; a permit valued at $2.3 million for the Los Angeles Department of Water and Power to install storage tanks at 6801 Westminster Ave.; two permits to the city for construction of a coke storage building at 1301 Pier G Ave. at a cost of $3.1 million, and a $1.1-million permit for construction of water tanks by THUMS Long Beach Co.

SCal businessmen showing optimism

Western businessmen are optimistic about the economy for the first quarter of the new year, according to the latest Western Business Forecast taken by the Prudential Insurance Co.

When Prudential asked businessmen in the West to compare their anticipated economic activity for the first three months of 1976 with their fourth-quarter 1975 activity, 63 per cent said they thought the first quarter would be better, 14 per cent saw it the same, and 23 per cent saw a decline.

IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA-Arizona-Nevada region, businessmen are more optimistic than those in the West. Sixty-six per cent of those polled in this area look for an increase in their economic activity during the first three months of 1976 when compared to the past three months, while 12 per cent expect no change and 22 per cent anticipate a decrease.

When making a 1976 to 1975 comparison of first quarter business, service is the most optimistic industrial category. Eighty-six per cent of those polled look for their first quarter business to exceed last year's activity.

And the construction group showed the greatest increase in optimism. Fifty-nine per cent expect their first quarter business to be up — a 26-point jump.

America seen pacing world on uneven recovery road

International economic forecasters meeting in the Southland this week foresee in 1976 a definite end to recession, with the U.S. leading other industrialized nations up an uneven road to recovery.

There were two possible exceptions or qualifiers offered to accompany a generally positive reading as jointly prepared by a UCLA graduate school of management team and specialists from a firm of English business consultants.

— Extremely slow growth rates may be expected from Britain, plagued in recent years by inflationary and unemployment rates markedly higher than those of her trading partners.

— And there are strong differences of opinion concerning Japan's economy this year. On one hand, American observers foresee a massive increase in the gross national product (GNP), while a California-based Japanese banker says several economic difficulties at home will halve more optimistic predictions.

THESE AND other views emerged from a two-day session ending Friday at Westchester's Airport Marina Hotel in which UCLA economic forecasters moved for the first time into the international realm. Teamed with them were the managing director of London-based Economic Models Ltd., Michael Spicer, and members of his staff.

Providing an overview, UCLA project chief Dr. Robert M. Williams issued a series of separate-but-related forecasts:

"The primary thrust to the economies of the U.S. and most major countries will come from consumer spending, because at home and aboad the investment boom has cooled off... Industrial production will rise moderately in 1976 after falling sharply in 1975.. World employment will rise slowly but unemployment will remain higher than at any time since the 1930s.

"REAL GNP is expected to rise between five and six per cent in the U.S., Canada and Japan; between 4 and 5 per cent in France and West Germany; between 3 and 4 per cent in Belgium, Italy and the Netherlands; and only about one-half of 1 per cent in the United Kingdom.

"Inflation will continue, although at much lower rates than in 1974 and '75. Prices will increase 5 to 6 per cent in the U.S. and Germany, seven to 10 per cent in Japan, Belgium and France; and from 11 to 17 per cent in Italy, the Netherlands and Britain."

Williams said it is expected that volume of "U.S. exports will increase by about four per cent this year following a decline of nearly nine per cent in 1975. American imports will increase nearly 10 per cent this year compared with a decrease of 15 per cent last year."

This expected larger rise in U.S. imports is explained by a more rapid recovery rate in the U.S. as compared with its customer countries, he concluded.

SPICER, A Conservative member of the British House of Commons and chairman of that body's finance committee, said that "very broadly, and with the exception perhaps of the United Kingdom, the prospect facing the Western world is considerably brighter for 1976 than it was this time last year."

Queried by news writers, Spicer confirmed that recent economic conditions at home "have been unfavorable." And he held out little hope for immediate easing of situation given Britain's current severe inflationary trends.

Underlying the problem, he said, were the 20th Century's two world wars in which "Britain was more gravely damaged— in terms of human energy— that was imagined."

Asked about the joint British-French Concorde supersonic jet airliner, which may not be allowed to land at U.S. airfields, Spicer said such a negative action by this country "would have a very unfavorable reaction" in the plane's dual European homeland. "The money has been spent, and for better or worse, the ship is in existence."

PREDICTING a 6.1 per cent increase in Japan's 1976 GNP was Charles Stancomb, executive director for Economic Models, who said: "We

Industry Week

Production clouds seen

CLEVELAND — U.S. industry looks for higher demand, increased production and relatively stable prices in 1976, Industry Week reported Friday. But labor negotiations and a deteriorating trade balance could be clouds on the Horizon.

After a drop in shipments among the various metals ranging from 15 per cent to 30 per cent during 1975, resurgence to near 1974 levels is expected. Aluminum makers, for example, look for their third best year with shipments approaching 12.8 billion pounds. Other nonferrous metals producers see similar gains with output nearing capacity levels.

While no metals shortages are forecast this year, availability of steel may grow tight in 1977. Steel executives see shipments improving from 80 million tons in 1975 to 95 million tons this year. Raw steel production should rise from 117 million tons to 140 million tons with shipments challenging record 1973-74 levels next year, the magazine for managers says.

THE RISE in the basic metals industries and in consumer markets could also lead to better years for machine tool builders— some of whom expect orders to rise as much as 40% this year — and for electric utilities looking for a 5 per cent to 11 per cent growth in demand this year. That would follow no growth through 1974 and only 1.7 per cent growth through mid-December, 1975.

But growing consumer demand could adversely affect the U.S. trade balance this year. While the U.S. had a massive trade balance last year of $10 to $12 billion, the drop in imports relative to exports reflected the U.S. recession, says Industry Week.

The story this year may be last year's in reverse. While U.S. demand for imports will rise, sluggish economies elsewhere will dampen the demand for U.S. exports.

Contrasted with an expected 6 per cent real growth in the U.S. economy this year, forecasts for real growth in other major economies are: Japan and Canada 4¼ per cent; Germany 3¼ per cent; and France 3 per cent. Others are expected to grow less than 2 per cent.

ANOTHER POSSIBLE storm cloud in clearing economic skies are labor settlements, headed by Teamsters, who opened negotiations this week. Bargaining later in the year will involve about 4.5 million workers in the rubber, electrical manufacturing, automotive, and construction industries, notes Industry Week.

Officials hope, but do not really expect, that the high unemployment rate will have a moderating effect on the money demands — at least an effect such that they don't adversely affect prices.

The Teamsters' announced demands would boost trucking labor costs by an estimated 50 per cent — plus over three years and will be watched closely because, as one spokesman tells Industry Week, "it will have a hell of an impact."

U.S.-Canada rift termed 'minimal'

By RALPH HINMAN Jr.
Staff Writer

Assurances that traditionally friendly links between Canada and this country remain unbroken— although perhaps strained by recent disputes— were voiced this week in Los Angeles by the Canadian ambassador to the U.S.

And in a comment perhaps reassuring to internationally minded businessmen here, Ambassador Jack Hamilton Warren added that he does not believe there is a trend toward nationalization or expropriation of foreign industries in his country.

J.H. WARREN
Reassuring

Warren, in the Southland on a Bicentennial goodwill mission which included reviewing Canadian entries in Pasadena's recent Rose Parade, met with reporters prior to addressing a Los Angeles World Affairs Council meeting in the Hilton Hotel.

WHILE admitting differences cropped up recently, the 54-year-old career government official insisted that a historic friendship between peoples north and south of the border was not negatively affected.

Among major sources of contention are cuts this year in the quantities of Canadian oil exported to the U.S., and government takeovers of the Saskatchewan potash industry and two aircraft firms, including a U.S. company.

Canadian energy officials said in November that crude oil exports this year would average 500,000 bbls. daily, some 50,000 bbls. below 1974 levels. An end by 1983 to all oil exports then was predicted by the officials.

Below-ground supplies are being depleted rapidly, Warren responded, and "We can't see you what we don't have."

ASKED whether his government's policy or philosophy leans toward public ownership, Warren averred that "I could not share in any such view . . . there is no policy, no trend to nationalization."

Specifically asked about a U.S.-financed crude oil pipeline to be laid across Canadian Arctic wastes, Warren said a treaty presently is being hammered out safeguard the interests of both nations.

He was less than eager to discuss a takeover by the Saskatchewan government of a newly-developing potash industry in that prairie province. "Our provinces have a great deal of authority," he commented.

Diplomat Warren diplomatically declined comment on a statement dealing with Saskatchewan reportedly made last month over Canadian TV by departing U.S. Ambassador William Porter.

The American then called for a meeting between President Ford and Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau in an attempt to ease mounting U.S. resentment of Canadian policies. The Saskatchewan takeover was cited as an example.

TRUDEAU later said Porter stepped out of bounds in criticizing Canadian policies.

Canada's economy, closely tied to the U.S., "is only slowly moving out from recession," Warren said, noting that an "unacceptable two-figure inflation" and unemployment were recorded last year.

Nationalization of two foreign-owned aircraft companies, including a north-of-the-border subsidiary of the St. Louis-based General Dynamics Corp., is a manifestation of a new spirit of nationalism in which there is a "reaction to heavy U.S. investments" in the Canadian economy. "This is a strong, positive sense of Canadianism," he said.

"I should think that U.S. citizens, with the pride they have in their own history (of economic independence), should understand and sympathize with this feeling," he argued.

Home S & L's new office opens Jan. 19

Home Savings and Loan Association's new six-story office building at the intersection of Lakewood and Del Amo Boulevards, will open for business Monday, Jan. 19.

Vice president and manager Gilbert Peterson announced Home's plans for a grand-opening celebration scheduled for the week of Feb. 2-6. "We'll be ready to party after we make sure we've got the operational bugs out of our system," Peterson said.

The "How Sweet It Was" style grand-opening will salute the early, live-television years with personal appearances by "You Bet Your Life" star George Fenneman, Harry von Zell, long-time Home spokesman and star of the favorite "Burns and Allen" series for nine years.

Corporations misleading with 'inflated' statements

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—Sometimes when the patient is very ill he may develop a deceiving glow, a fever that to the untrained eye might be mistaken for ruddy good health.

Touche Ross & Co., the big accounting firm, suggests that corporate financial statements might be emitting that glow.

"How can U.S. corporations be reporting record sales and profits at a time when they are wracked with record problems of liquidity, debt and capital shortage?" it asks, and quickly supplies its answer:

"Because the profits they are reporting have little relationship with reality."

The dollar figures used are inflated, said Russell Palmer, managing partner, in launching a campaign this week to experiment with more meaningful accounting. Today's dollar cannot be compared with yesterday's, he said.

To illustrate: Nonfinancial corporations reported 1974 after-tax profits of $66 billion, compared with $38 billion in 1965, an apparent increase of 74 per cent.

NOW ADJUST for inflation; that is, use the same dollar to measure both years and thus obtain comparable results. Pick the 1958 dollar as a measure and you learn those earnings didn't rise — they fell, from an adjusted $37 billion in 1965 to around $21 billion in 1974.

One answer to such numerical misrepresentation may be to report a company's financial condition in current or real values rather than current prices, that is, with inflation wrung out. Palmer says we should seek to develop techniques.

"Reporting assets and liabilities at current values reflects true economic profits— not illusory profits, the kind any number of companies have reported recently, even while heading into bankrupty," he said.

Touche Ross isn't the first to make such suggestions, but it seems willing to throw more weight than the others into what it calls "Economic Reality in Financial Reporting," subtitled "A Program For Experimentation."

THE PROPOSAL, aimed initially at directors and senior corporate managements, and then at securities analysts, educators and accountants, seeks to experiment with current value accounting this year.

"The goals of accounting are to measure, record and communicate reality," the proposal begins, soon illustrating just how these goals are encumbered by persistent inflation.

Opinions divided on Japan

see the underlying strength of Japan as improving a lot this year. Data suggests the Japanese economy is much strongerthan people were saying just three weeks ago."

A contrasting position was taken by Nimei Akamatsu, a Sumitomo Bank of California senior vice president called in as a special consultant to the study principals. He said studies done by his firm in Japan indicated the percentage increase in real GNP will be closer to 3.8 per cent rather than the 6 per cent increase seen by the two Western observers.

"The main reasons for this are the huge government deficits still existing, and costs are continuing to push up the rate of inflation," Akamatsu said.

Old film back lot is state park

Associated Press

The scenic Century Ranch in the Malibu Hills, locale for some famous Hollywood movies, gained official designation as a state park Friday.

But officials are still pondering how to use two adjoining hunks of land: one ranch formerly owned by ex-movie cowhand Ronald Reagan and another ranch once belonging to comedian Bob Hope.

Actually, all of the property has belonged to the state for some time. The debate was over what to designate as a state park. Conservationists favored state park designation for all the properties but some local agencies wanted a recreational tag which would permit broader use such as constuction of public swimming pools.

Friday's decision by California Parks and Recreation commissioners represented a compromise. The central property in the area, the 2,700-acre Century Ranch, will retain its current rustic look by its state park designation. The 1,150 acres included in the ex-Hope and ex-Reagan ranches will be designated for usage at the commission's March meeting in San Francisco.

The new state park, at the same time, gained a new official name: Malibu Creek State Park. It has been the site Hollywood selected to depict such varying geographic settings as "Lost Horizon," "Planet of the Apes" and "The Left Hand of God," which starred Humphrey Bogart.

More time to get initiative OKd sought

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Supporters of a petition drive that failed to get a business-backed tax initiative on the June 8 ballot have sued to gain more time and have spending limits abolished.

The suit, filed Thursday in Sacramento County Superior Court, asks that the Committee for Two-Thirds Vote on Taxation receive an extension until May 5 to qualify the initiative for the ballot.

Attorney Vincent Thorpe, who filed the suit on behalf of the committee, also said the court was asked to invalidate the provisions of the Political Reform Act of 1974 that limit campaign advertising as a violation of constitutional freedom of speech guarantees.

The committee could spend $137,707 under the reform act regulations. It spent close to its limit but failed to gather enough valid signatures on petitions to meet the Dec. 26 deadline.

The suit is against the Fair Political Practices Commission, which was set up to enforce the reform act, Prop. 9, approved by voters in 1974.

Ford shows his interests in display of momentoes

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's politics and athletics are reflected in the collection of mementoes which crowd a private area near the Oval Office.

The President's collection includes items which reflect his interests and most are neither expensive nor pretentious.

Ford collects stamps, carved elephants, political cartoons, pipes, statuettes of skiers and assorted plaques, trophies and signed baseballs, footballs and basketballs.

Hanging on one wall is a hand-hooked rug of the presidential seal. Shelves hold the skier figurines and models of a Russian airplane and an American tank.

The hideaway area includes two rooms connected by a hallway to the Oval Office. One of the rooms includes eight footballs, a Redskins helmet, a basketball, three soccer balls, a baseball glove, a golf trophy and basealls signed by Stan Musial and Whitey Ford.

One wall is crowded with political cartoons, most of which poke fun at Ford.

Rape case figure cheered following release from jail

SALINAS (AP) — Inez Garcia was greeted with a shower of flowers and chants of "Viva Inez" after being freed Friday on $5,000 bail from the Monterey County jail.

The 31-year-old woman, convicted Oct. 4, 1974, of second-degree murder for gunning down 300-pound Miguel Jiminez, who she said held her down while another man raped her. She was sentenced to a five-years-to-life jail term and had been in prison for the last 14½ months.

Mrs. Garcia was bailed out only 20 minutes after appearing in Monterey County Superior Court for a bail-setting hearing. The State Court of Appeals, which overturned her conviction last month, ordered the trial court last Tuesday to set bail.

Mrs. Garcia's bail was posted by Carole Migden of Oakland, described only as "a friend."

Mrs. Garcia entered the courtroom handcuffed and shackled Friday. Her attorney asked Superior Court Judge Matt Agliano that they be removed, and he granted the request.

During the brief hearing, Mrs. Garcia's attorney, Susan Jordan, called her a "symbol of resistance across America" and asked that she be released on her own recognizance.

Prosecutor Arthur Braudrick asked that bail be $10,000, but Agliano set it at $5,000.

Braudrick said the state attorney general's office Friday petitioned for a rehearing of the the State Court of Appeals decision overturning Mrs. Garcia's conviction.

Monterey County Dist. Atty. William Curtis said he will seek a new trial in the case if necessary.

Curtis said he was disturbed with the greeting Mrs. Garcia received upon her release.

"I think it's very curious to see a murderess treated as a returning hero," he said.

The conviction was overturned on grounds that the trial judge, Stanley Lawson, erred in his supplementary jury instructions on the standard of "reasonable doubt."

The court found that Lawson's additional instructions made the criteria for proof of guilt "strikingly comparable" to a rule in the civil cases where a verdict can be based upon a preponderance of evidence. The court said burdens of proof in civil and criminal cases are "two wholly different, clearly distinguishable degrees of burdens of proof."

Mother claims Patty's ills are gynecological

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Jailed newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst is suffering from an ailment "gynecological in nature," her mother said Friday.

Asked about reports that her daughter's health is deteriorating in the San Mateo County Jail, Catherine Hearst told KPIX-TV that "Patty's problems are gynecological in nature due to the fact that she is run down by conditions in the jail.

On Thursday, Miss Hearst's attorney, Albert Johnson, said the heiress' health was deteriorating and she wasn't eating. Jail officials denied that assertion.

Mrs. Hearst said her daughter remains "cooperative with everyone in the jail, but she is depressed by her surroundings."

Miss Hearst is awaiting trial later this month on bank robbery charges. She is accused of participating in a holdup here on April 15, 1974 with members of the terrorist Symbionese Liberation Army.

People and ideas

Summer soldiers, etc.

MARK CLUTTER
RELIGION EDITOR

Summer soldiers are those who do their duty when the weather is pleasant. When the winter blizzards come they have a tendency to malinger or even desert.

Many of the "old-line" churches these days are observing the disappearance of summer soldiers — mostly without tears.

Back in the 1950s and 60s it was the "in thing" to be a Christian. Not much of a Christian, of course. One shouldn't let religion interfere with one's career — or with barbecue cookouts or cocktail parties. To make a small pledge and go to church when one couldn't think of any other Sunday morning fun was the correct and respectable thing to do.

Since about 1970 the summer soldiers have been dropping away. It is hard to understand just why. Some may be disillusioned by ecclesiastical deviations such as "God is dead" or rock guitars in the sanctuary. Some may be embittered by controversies such as that of the Lutheran Church, Missouri Synod.

But many, one suspects, found that soldiering is just too hard. A man can get hurt or even killed. A Cross is hard to carry.

A current report of the United Methodist Church in the United States shows that membership has dipped below the ten million mark. But attendance at worship services has increased and giving for all causes has shown a spectacular increase. The grand total of giving was more than $1 billion, an increase of $74 million for 1974.

Most old-line denominations report comparable figures. Fewer people are proving themselves more loyal and giving much more. Of course, inflation is eating into the financial situation.

Some churches are gaining converts. They seem to be the churches that make stern demands on their people. The Mormons are doing very well indeed.

CATHOLICS IN TROUBLE

Attendance at Mass has declined 21 per cent in a decade. The National Opinion Research Center in Chicago was asked to find out why.

The pollsters found that 48 per cent of the drop in church participation was due to the ban on birth control. Another 26 per cent was blamed on the church's refusal to allow divorce and remarriage.

The third reason might be even more significant. Twenty-six per cent attributed changing attitudes "toward the Pope as head of the Church."

The Church is also hurting for lack of recruits. Not many girls are dreaming of becoming nuns, and the seminaries are short of would-be priests, presaging greater hardships for an already overworked priesthood.

(Many non-Catholic seminaries are deluged with students, more than they can hope to find employment for.)

CHRISTMAS FOR ATHEISTS

A The Religion Editor belatedly received the December issue of the American Atheist. Most of the rather well-edited magazine is devoted to the subject of Christmas.

What do atheists think of Christmas? Mostly they like it!

There are some informative articles about the history of Christmas and its pagan antecedents. The pagans celebrated the winter solstice, the time when sun god began to return his light to a wintry world.

The atheists disapprove of the old Puritans who tried to outlaw Christmas. People, they feel, need festivals. One suggested there might be a non-Christian "Christmas" with a golden sun as its symbol.

It is doubtful that even atheists could truly enjoy a Festival of the Winter Solstice. Christmas, although related to such festivals, is a richly embroidered tradition woven of many cultural influences, sacred and profane. It is the Advent of the Light of the World, transcending mere sunlight.

Every culture needs festivals. Life in medieval times was often bleak and terrible, but the numerous holidays and Holy Days brought color and zest to people. Perhaps America could do with more festivals.

MISSIONARIES ARE GUESTS

Sen. Mark Hatfield of Oregon stirred up quite an ecclesastical storm when he revealed that the Central Intelligence Agency uses missionaries as sources of information. Many denominations have denounced this practice. Some threaten to dismiss missionaries who help the CIA.

The CIA is putting missionaries into an untenable and dangerous position. Most American missionaries are loyal Americans. As patriots they want to obey their nation. And those who have been in the field awhile know things the CIA would like to know.

But missionaries are also guests of foreign lands. They must obey the laws of the host nations. They must not engage in actions that could be considered warlike. Helping the CIA puts them under a shadow.

Missionaries are primarily soldiers of Christ. They go to other nations to win people to Christ. Any participation in foreign politics can destroy their mission. Some nations might even become angry enough to expel all missionaries.

PAGAN ALTAR IN THE HOME

"We are now at issue with a pagan culture that is surrounding us," said Cardinal Timothy Manning. "It already has its advocate, its surrogate, enthroned in every single home.

"That television is the mentor, the teacher, the giver of the values of this new paganism. These are presented to us at the touch of a hand or a knob."

Few intellectuals would disagree with the prelate. Even a "pagan" who had studied the humanities would be inclined to share the cardinal's dismay.

Hour after hour, channel after channel, the TV grinds out stuff that can only be called "cultural erosion." It provides "news" that doesn't report, comedies of manners that aren't funny, ads that tell you how to end indigestion and become a sex symbol, children's stuff that insults the intelligence of a five-year-old, ad infinitum ad nauseum. Even most of the many religious programs are a mockery.

This, of course, is not to damn television categorically. There are many excellent programs, but the intelligent viewer must be discriminating. Otherwise, he just becomes a zombie worshipping mindlessly before an electronic altar.

But, no matter what cardinals say, television is a permanent addition to civilization. Its impact is very much like that of the invention of printing. The whole pattern of society is being radically changed.

It is, among other things, a means of mass education. In spite of its obvious inadequacies, television has made people more knowing, cleaner, perhaps healthier, more aware of the world they live in.

Television is a relatively new invention. It was just beginning to get well started in 1950. Its future possibilities cannot be foreseen.

But it is sad that so many who plan the programs think of Americans as slack-jawed morons who will view anything so long as it doesn't require any thought.

In Gideon the Lord appeared to Solomon in a dream by night: and God said, Ask what I shall give thee. I Kings 3:5.

And she said, Let thine handmaid find grace in thy sight. So the woman went her way, and did eat, and her countenance was no more sad. I Samuel 1:18.

Put not your trust in princes, nor in the son of man, in whom there is no help. Psalm 146:3.

Many kinds of Christians share faith

Pastor reports on World Council in Africa

EDITOR'S NOTE: Rev. Galal Gough, pastor of the First United Methodist Church, recently returned from the Assembly of the World Council of Churches in Nairobi, Kenya. In this article he tells of his experiences in Africa and gives answers to some of the many questions church people have about the World Council and its mission.

By Rev. GALAL GOUGH

1) What was your most memorable experience at the World Council Fifth Assembly in Nairobi?

The closing worship service of the World Council was a tremendously meaningful experience — a spiritual "happening" which dramatized our unity in Christ, despite the diversity you would expect from representatives of 271 different denominations. The Russian and Eastern Orthodox participants sang the Call to Worship. Litanies, prayers and passages of scripture were read in Swahili, Portuguese, Latin, Hebrew, English, Greek, Korean and Indian sign language. But the electrifying moment came as the youth enacted a song, "Break down the walls that separate us and unite us in a single body."

As the youth moved out among the delegates, and throughout the assembly, with everyone singing, clasping hands and embracing others of every nation, many with tears flowing down their cheeks, it was truly an affirmation of the Assembly theme "Jesus Christ Frees and Unites." Then moving out into the Kenyatta Center Plaza, the worshipers formed a large cross, illuminated by the lights of the Kenyatta Tower, and the service concluded with prayers and the Christmas carol "O Come, All Ye Faithful." But I shall never forget singing "Break down the walls that separate us" and experiencing the unity we have in Christ in such a charismatic way.

2) You mentioned diversity at the World Council. How were these differences evident in Nairobi?

From the opening worship service, the many different denominations, traditions, races and national origins of the delegates were very obvious. As almost 3,000 persons from over 100 nations gathered in the Kenyatta Center Plaza, there was a spectacular array of African tribal dress, and crimson, purple, black and white ecclesiastical garb. A young Masai woman led the procession into the Assembly Halls carrying a large Bible in Swahili. A Kenyan rhythm choir followed, with African drums and their pulsating beat punctuating the songs. Worship was led by participants from six regions of the world, speaking in their mother tongues. In fact, the diversity was dramatized by the earphones and controls all of us had, which enabled delegates, theological advisors and visitors to dial the language of their choice. Never in Christian history had so many different denominations, 271 with 8 others requesting membership, met together at one time.

3) With so many different denominations and national backgrounds, were there conflicts at the World Council?

Actually, the confrontations many of the over 600 newspaper reporters expected — between black and white, the rich and poor nations, east and west — never materialized. Every lecture and report was debated, but in a Christian spirit. In fact, the atmosphere was so subdued, some reporters were openly disappointed. Probably the greatest tension was generated over the resolution to censure Russia for suppressing religious freedom. The Russian Orthodox delegates, who represent a very conservative and traditional theological stance, were openly concerned. They were afraid a harsh condemnation would mean they would be refused the right to participate in the World Council, and would thus be cut off from fellowship with Christians around the world. I sat in the visitor's section, right by the Russian delegation, and they impressed me as being representatives from a totalitarian state, who had to be very careful what they said. In the end, a milder resolution was passed, which put the Council on record against restrictions on religious liberty, but also reduced the likelihood the Russian Christians would be refused the right to participate in the World Council.

4) In coming back to the Unifed States, and reading the newspaper coverage here, did you feel people in this country had an adequate picture of what was happening at the World Council meetings?

With only one exception, I felt the articles I read in the major Long Beach and Los Angeles newspapers were accurate. But as one reporter told me in Nairobi, as he pointed to all the reports and printed lectures, "There is no way we can give comprehensive coverage to so many lectures, study reports and services." For instance, Bible study was a major emphasis, with thousands of people meeting across national lines in small groups of 15 persons. There were study sections on six major themes of Christian faith and involvement in the world. Perhaps the most influential lecture at the World Council, given by Bishop Mortimer Arias of the Methodist Church in Bolivia, was on evangelism and entitled, "That the World May Believe." This lecture reverberated all through the Council sessions, and evangelism was also the theme of the major report, "Confessing Christ Today." So, in the end, the World Council's Fifth Assembly at Nairobi will probably be known for an emphasis on Christian basics and evangelism. But I did not find articles covering these central concerns of the World Council.

5) You traveled almost half-way around the world to attend the World Council. What was the high point for you personally?

In addition to the worship experiences, one of the most meaningful aspects of the World Council was the opportunity to meet and visit with Christians from all over the world. In one 24-hour period I had prolonged conversations with Bishop Barnabus Dmijen Mondan at the Church of Bengladesh; Mrs. Nellie Mercado, executive director of the Methodist Social Service Center in Manila; Joseph Guelly, secretary general of the Sudan Council of Churches; and Bishop Dr. Peter Sarpong, a Roman Catholic observer from Ghana. Each lunch time I specifically sought to be with some new person each day, so I met, for instance, William C. Tung, general secretary of the Hong Kong Christian Council; Rev. Doyce M. Musunsa, general secretary of the United Church of Zambia; Richard Chikosi, editor of the Christian newspaper "Nmbowo" in Rodesia; Rev. Ichiro Ono, vice moderator of the United Church of Christ in Japan; and Armando Rodriguez, bishop of the Methodist Church of Cuba, to name a few.

6) Did you take a tape recorder, and were you able to record interviews with these Christian leaders?

Except for some taped sequences of the opening worship, and African drums and songs, I used virtually all my tapes to record lectures and to interview such theologians as Jurgen Moltmann, theology of hope advocate from Germany; John Mbiti and Desmond Tutu of Africa; Emerito Nacpil of the Philippines; Choan-Seng Song of Taiwan; and Bishop Mortimer Arias of Bolivia. Also, because the World Council was meeting in Nairobi, Kenya, I was able to interview Richard Leakey, son of famed anthropologists Louis and Mary Leakey. I hope several of these tapes will be the basis for articles in the future, so these opportunities to interview famous persons were a great privilege for me.

7) How did you happen to obtain an interview with Richard Leakey, and what is your impression of his work?

Leakey is Director of the National Museum of Kenya, and I first saw him while visiting the museum rooms devoted to human pre-history and paleontology. He was leading a delegation from the Somali Republic, and explaining to them human fossils discoveries dating back two and three million years. At that time I took some 40 pictures of early human skulls and fossil exhibits. Two days later I was able to interview Richard Leakey for some 50 minutes on tape. He explained how faults along the Rift Valley had brought to the surface layers previously several hundred feet below, thus exposing fossil remains of early human beings. As the excavations are now more systematic and intensive than in the past few years, he expects many additional discoveries of human origins in the next decade. On the basis of his excavations of ancient fossil sites, Leakey believes our human ancesters survived because they lived in groups, cooperated and shared. As a member of the United Nations Environmental Programme, Leakey is also deeply concerned about the issues of ecology and human survival today. I found him to be a thorough scientist and a remarkably concerned human being.

8) Were there other persons or events that played a key role in your experience during the World Council in Nairobi?

Certainly the hospitality of Bishop Lawi Imathiu of the Methodist Church in Kenya was a high point. As you know, he was here in Long Beach last October for a New World Mission, and a ministers' meeting with him was held at my church. So, when he saw me in Nairobi, being a member of the Kenya National Assembly, he invited me over to the House of Parliament for tea. He also invited me to a reception in his home for Methodist leaders from around the world. There were Methodist bishops there from Angola, Mozambique, West Germany, Cuba and the United States, and representatives from many other nations. Bishop Imathiu also arranged for me to visit the Union St. Paul Seminary in Limuru. So in all, I am most grateful to him for his kindness and for opening so many doors for me while I was Kenya.

9) How long were you in Kenya, and where did you stay?

The World Council Assembly was in session for 17 days, and I was in Kenya 19 days. I stayed throughout in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Gary Herbertson. Gary grew up in Lakewood, and is a United Methodist minister, released through a special appointment to work with the United Nations Environmental Program, with headquarters in Nairobi. Staying in a home provided more opportunity to get out into the community. For instance, I rode a bus 6 miles to the Kenyatta Conference Center each day, and was usually the only non-African on the bus. That gave me a chance to visit with English speaking Kenyans on the way, and I did learn some Swahili words, including "Jambo" which is the universal greeting there. But the Herbertsons made my stay in Nairobi very pleasant, and economically possible, since I thus eliminated hotel expenses.

10) Back to the World Council, what do you think were the major accomplishments?

It will be a long time before I am able to read all of the documents, and sift through all my experiences. But the worship experiences, Bible study, theological lectures and discussions with Christians from around the world made an unforgettable impression. First of all, I think the study sections, which dealt with major issues the church faces, made a valuable contribution. All of the delegates were on one of six, dealing with 1) Confessing Christ Today, 2) What Unity Requires, 3) Seeking Community, 4) Education for Liberation and Community, 5) Struggles of Injustice and Struggles for Liberation, and 6) Human Development. It is important for the Churches to gather together and grapple with the major issues Christians face in the world. Also, the World Council took stands, for instance, on a number of pressing issues, calling for an end to foreign intervention in Angola, making recommendations for peaceful settlement of Middle East hostilities, protesting human rights violations in Latin America and expressing concern about nuclear collaboration with South Africa. Finally, just having Christians from all over the world get together, exchange views, debate issues and understand each other better, makes a major contribution.

11) Do you think the World Council has any right to take a stand on issues which have political or foreign policy implications?

It is hard to separate anything which happens in the world from the concern of the churches. For example, the resolution to end foreign intervention in

LETTER

Help kids!

Open Letter
To All Parents in the City of Long Beach

Dear Parents:

One of the most vital and important areas of your life is to be successful parents — to have your children grow and develop into beautiful and wholesome adults.

As you may know, this does not just happen by accident. It takes a lot of determination — a heap of loving — laughter — work — guidance. It also takes God in His power and love to grow and mature within each child, so that he may become strong mentally, morally, spiritually!

Some parents have a mistaken idea that if you just let the kids grow up without religion, that when they are old enough, they will choose their own church and then somehow "mystically" become mature Christians overnight. This simply does not happen!

It takes a long time for our bodies to become strong and the same is true of our spirits. To be morally and spiritually strong takes time, takes nurture, feeding, strengthening.

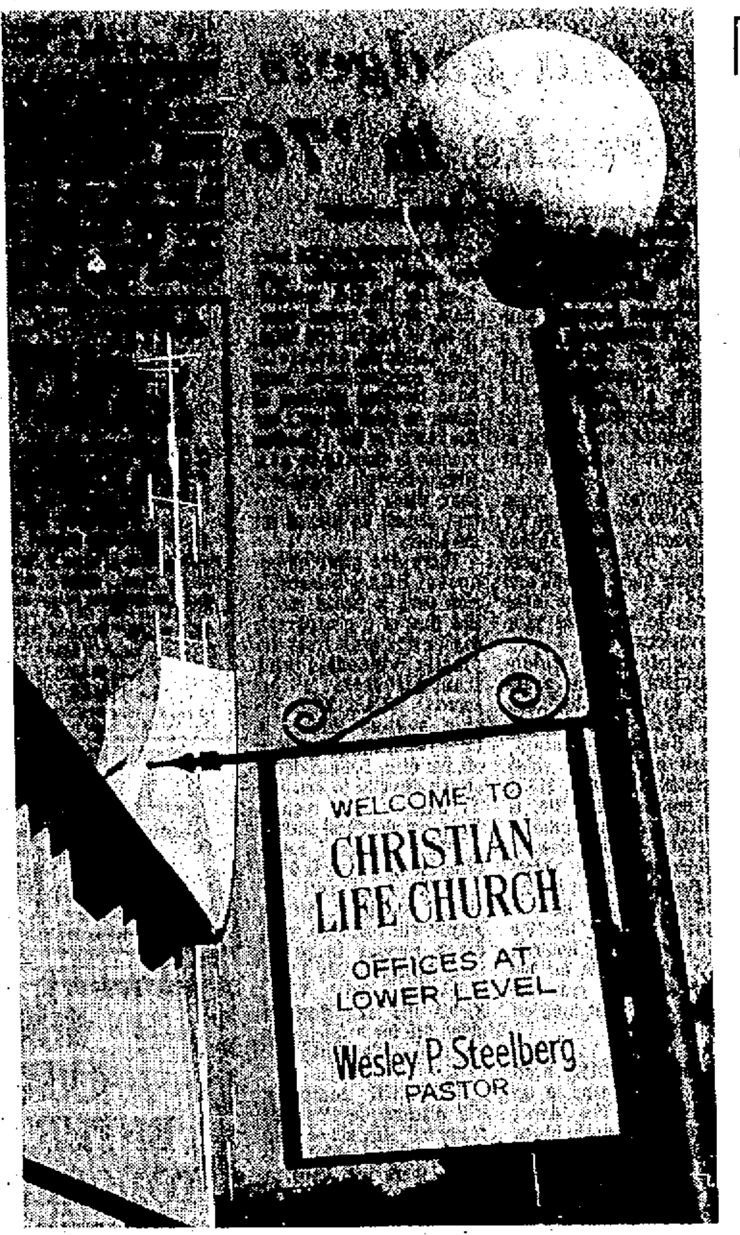
As a parent, I'm sure you don't need a sermon on all the trials and temptations your kids face. You don't need a sermon on all the sin and evil in the world. But what you do need is something on the positive that will protect and produce desired results!

Thus, as we begin this New Year 1976, please parents, feed your kids morally, spiritually that they may become strong inwardly as well as outwardly.

Find a church home — attend as a family — feed your family spiritually — and then watch them grow. Watch them grow in their faith and in their lives. You will be delighted and so will God!

God bless each of you,
Rev. Joe Nunziato
Pastor, Grace United Methodist Church

P.S. We especially invite families with teenagers to attend the viewing of the film "Time to Run" on Sunday, January 11th, at 7:00 p.m. at the Grace United Methodist Church Sanctuary at Third and Junipero. It could be a turning point in your faith and family life!



OUR BEAUTIFUL CHURCHES

The soaring tower of Christian Life Church, 3400 Pacific Ave., fascinates motorists who glimpse it from the San Diego Freeway. The tower is more than an architectural effect. It houses the church's ventilation and airconditioning machinery. The Assembly of God church was built four years ago. — Staff photo by BOB SHUMWAY

'To love —'

"To Love and to Cherish," a marriage enrichment course of 14 sessions will begin Wednesday, 7:30 p.m., at he Lutheran Church of the Holy Trinity, 1900 E. Carson St. It will be taught by Pastor J. B. Bretheim, who received training from the originator of the course, Dr. Harley Swiggum, Madison, Wis.

The purpose of the course is to help the married to enrich their marriages and to prepare the unmarried for marriage, the pastor said.

GOINGS ON

EDITOR'S NOTE: A woman was unhappy because "Goings On" did not carry an announcement of her organization's ceremonial installation of officers. Let's be realistic. There are more than 200 churches in this area plus no one knows how many organizations related to religion. If we started announcing elections, installations, membership dinners, etc., etc., we would have no news of anything else.

"Goings On" and the Religion Section generally is interested in news of community interest. If a church sponsors an event that should attract many from outside the church, "Goings On" wants it. The event should be free except for free-will offerings and nominal charges for food. Ask yourself, "Would people who have never been in this church want to attend?" If the answer is "Yes," "Goings On" wants to know.

Be sure to give full information including time and date, precise name and address of the church, including city, and exact nature of the event. The deadline for the following Saturday is Thursday noon.

The Shoremen, musical group of the First Nazarene Church, 2280 Clark Ave., will give its annual full concert Sunday, 6 p.m.

A public seminar on healing will be presented by the Rev. Richard L. Peterman and his wife Mary at Our Redeemer Lutheran Church, 12301 Magnolia Ave., 3:30 p.m., Sunday. It will be followed by supper. The Petermans will present the evangelical, Lutheran, Biblical view of healing.

Evangelist Ray Wilson, former Marine Corps combat correspondent and television executive, will conduct a series of meetings beginning Sunday, 6 p.m., and continuing Tuesday through Friday, 7:30 p.m., and then on Sunday, Jan. 18, 9:45 a.m., 11 a.m. and 6 p.m. at the Lakewood Foursquare Church, 3445 Studebaker Road.

"Hermano Pablo" — the Rev. Paul Finkenbinder — will speak Sunday, 11 a.m. and 6 p.m., at the First Assembly of God Church, 14626 S. Pioneer Blvd., Norwalk. A resident of Costa Mesa, he conducts a radio and television mission for Latin America.

"Time to Run," a film of World Wide Pictures, will be shown at 7 p.m., Sunday, at Grace United Methodist Church, Third Street and Junipero Avenue.

"Time to Run" will also be shown at First Baptist Church of Signal Hill, 1948 E. 20th St., Sunday at 7:30 p.m.

George West will give a narrated slide presentation of the trip he and his wife Carolyn made to the Holy Land Wednesday and Jan. 21 during evening services at the University Baptist Church, 3434 Chatwin Ave.

Giselle MacKenzie, musician and entertainer, will be the guest speaker at the Long Beach Church of Religious Science, 505 E. 36th St., Thursday, 7:30 p.m.

Bob Eaton, evangelist, will conduct a revival at the Baptist Community Bible Church, 12226 Alondra Blvd., Norwalk Monday through the following Sunday, 7:30 p.m. (7 p.m. on Sunday.)

"In God We Trust," a film on America's Christian heritage, will be shown Sunday, 1 p.m., at Trinity Lutheran Church, Eighth Street and Linden Avenue.

Angola is vital to the churches there. Bishop Carvalho of the Methodist Church in Angola was asked to speak briefly on the Angolan situation at Bishop Imathiu's reception. He was very concerned for the health and survival of the churches. With foreign arms pouring into Angola, the three separate movements could continue fighting over a long time and devastate the nation. He felt a unifying of the nation was made more difficult by the bitterness of fighting, and that congregations were being scattered and churches destroyed. Great damage has already been done, and the support of the World Church for an end to foreign involvement was welcomed. The efforts of the World Council to promote "human rights" around the globe are also greatly appreciated by churches in the developing nations. There were many youth at the World Council, coming from around the world, and they were certainly excited about the relevance of the stands being taken.

12) Do you think the World Council of Churches is really needed?

There is no doubt about it. Many of the churches in the Council are national bodies, and would have no world ties with other Christians without the WCC. They also depend on the WCC for literature, church school materials and other services. Also, the World Council is needed to bring Christians together to study the great issues of the day and to determine strategy for the mission of the Church. We tend to understand our faith in terms of our own cultural situation, and dialogue with other Christians clarifies the central issues of Christian witness in the world. Finally, we need to join together in evangelism, social concern and mission to strengthen the cause of Christ. Less than one-third of the world's population is Christian, and there are staggering problems in the world which individual denominations could not hope to respond to adequately alone. Certainly the World Council is not perfect, nor are member denominations expected to endorse every action. But the Council is definitely the most viable forum for Christian dialogue, between 270 member denominations and church bodies, as well as the Roman Catholic Church and other churches with fraternal delegates. It deserves our efforts to be adequately informed, to study the documents presented to the churches for discussion, and to be supportive through our fellowship and prayers.

Praise God in his sanctuary, praise him on his sovereign throne. Praise him for his noble acts; praise him for his surpassing greatness. Ps. 150:1

Speedily let me win thy mercy, my hope is in thee; to thee I lift up my heart, show me the path I must follow; to thee I fly for refuge. — Ps. 142:8

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE
"Seventeen, and still in Sunday School."
"And I wouldn't miss it for anything. We can talk about things we're thinking about — like the future, of problems with parents, or new lifestyles —and we get ideas that really help. I'm finding out who I am, and who God is, and where I fit in His creation."

Anyone through age 19 is welcome in the Christian Science Sunday School, every week.

Costly new television gadgets to delight video freaks in '76

By STEPHEN FOX
Associated Press

It won't be part of the Bicentennial celebration, but there's a television revolution coming in 1976.

A mind-boggling array of new video equipment that promises to radically change TV viewing habits in millions of American homes will be offered to consumers nationwide during the bicentennial year.

The costly gadgets will allow you to tape a favorite show to watch when you like or order up an electronic smorgasbord of movies, lectures and concerts as easily as you now play a phonograph record.

"FOR THE first time the consumer will be given the choice of what he wants to see when he wants to see it," MCA executive Jack Findlater said in Los Angeles. "He's no longer limited by the whims of TV programming."

Already on the market are monster screens that turn your TV room into a minitheater and attachments that make sets into electronic ping-pong games. Also available in some cities are recorder-playback units that promise to solve the disruptive problem of what to do when a children's show conflicts with Monday night football.

The vast sales potential of the American market (there are 60 million color television sets in the United States) has sparked interest in foreign electronics companies, including Japan's Sony Corp. and Philips, the giant Dutch firm.

SONY'S Betamax video recorder system, now being test-marketed in San Francisco, Los Angeles, Chicago and New York, allows a viewer to tape his favorite show while he's out or watching something else. The system — about the size of two 19-inch sets — carries a $2,995 price tag but Sony spokesman Kozo Shiramatsu says well-heeled Japanese consumers are buying 5,000 a month. On the basis of what Shiramatsu calls "quite all right" sales here, Sony plans to expand its Betamax marketing to 20 major cities next month.

"Betamax is for when you have two must-see TV programs," says Shiramatsu. "You can watch Monday night football and tape the Monday night movie to watch at your convenience."

Reel-to-reel videorecorders have been available in the institutional market for some time but the Betamax system, which uses color video cassettes that cost $15.95 per hour-long cassette, is a first for the consumer market, says Shiramatsu.

Shiramatsu also points out that the system can be used to preserve historic televised events "like the man on the moon. You can keep the cassette for 100 years and your grandson can see the first man on the moon."

VIDEO FREAKS also seem to be snapping up giant screens. The Advent Corp. of Cambridge, Mass., has sold more than 4,000 of its 84-inch VideoBeams sets in the last two years, and company officials claim they have back orders amounting to $8 million. Most of the buyers have been hotels and cocktail lounges, but company officials say affluent individuals account for a good deal of their sales.

Impressive as Betamax and VideoBeam are, the systems get the back of the hand from videodisc developers, who dismiss them as updated versions of old items.

"The videodisc will mark the first new consumer electronics product since the advent of color television in 1954," says RCA executive Robert Shortal. "What you've lived with up to now is really improvements in existing products."

TWO COMPANIES have developed videodisc systems for the U.S. market: RCA and a team composed of Philips and MCA, the California entertainment conglomerate. Both have invested millions of dollar on their systems but the battle for the videodisc market is shaping up as a winner-take-all contest, since discs from one system cannot be played on the other.

There are other differences. RCA's SelectaVision uses a stylus much like that of a phonograph to pick up signals from the plastic videodisc and transmit them to the screen. MCA's Disco-Vision system utilizes a laser beam which bounces off the disc. Both systems attach directly to existing TV antennas and require their own electrical outlet.

RCA's projected retail price for its player is $400, with discs to sell for around $10 each. MCA's player will cost $500, with discs ranging in price from $2.35 for "My Little Chickadee," with W.C. Fields and Mae West, to about $10 for a full-length movie like "The Sting."

NEITHER company will disclose development costs, but officials of both concede that several million players will have to be sold before they turn a profit and both are aiming at the mass market.

"Our marketing studies show there's going to be a wide public acceptance of this product," says Findlater, who points with Shortal to this country's 60 million color television sets.

"The 60 million sets are potential customers," claims Findlater. "If, being conservative, you got 10 per cent, that's 6 million. You can do your own arithmetic ... what's wrong with 40 per cent?"

Videodisc officials agree that the sales of players, or "hardware," will depend on what the consumer can play on them, or "software."

"Color TV sales were directly dependent on the number of hours of network color programming available — and so it will be with videodisc hardware," says Findlater, who heads MCA's Disco-Vision division.

RCA SAYS it hopes to come to market with its player in the fall, and Shortal says its "titles," or subject matter offered on its discs, will be announced then. MCA already has announced an initial library of titles ranging from recent movies such as "Airport" to comedy classics such as the Marx Brothers' "Animal Crackers." Also planned are lecture series on Cubist and Impressionist art and filmed presentations of rock concerts.

"It will be possible to inexpensively build a home library of video programming," says Findlater.

Measuring up

Leslie Bruce, general manager of the Movieland Wax Museum, takes final caliper measurements of Tony Orlando. Figures of Tony, Telma Hopkins and Joyce Vincent-Wilson will be previewed on their upcoming CBS-TV Tony Orlando and Dawn Show. And, in the spring, the trio will attend ceremonies for their new set in the Buena Park Stars' Hall of Fame.

Lawsuits threaten $13 million deal

Giant squabble: S.F. to Toronto?

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The San Francisco Giants have been sold for $13.25 million and will be moved to Toronto for the 1976 season pending approval of nine of the 11 other National League teams, the Giants announced Friday.

"Directors of the National Exhibition Company have agreed in principle to sell the baseball franchise, the Giants, to Labatt's Brewery of Toronto," Charles Rupert, executive vice president and secretary-treasurer of the Giants, announced.

"The price was $13,250,000, of which $5,250,000 will be retained in a fund to meet certain possible obligations with respect to the transaction," Rupert said. Rupert said the Giants would seek approval of the sale at the major league meetings in Phoenix Wednesday.

George Moscone, in his first full day as San Francisco's mayor, had plenty to say about the deal.

"We will not, under any set of circumstances, settle for loss of the San Francisco Giants," he stated, adding that the city intends to file a lawsuit to block the sale of the club.

Moscone also announced plans to meet with separate groups of investors, headed by Robert Lurie and Robert Rossi, who are "anxious to purchase the Giants and keep them in San Francisco."

Most National League owners said Friday they felt it was too early to say whether they would vote to approve the sale, but Chicago Cubs owner Phil Wrigley predicted if the money is in Toronto, the Giants will be, too.

John McHale, president of the Montreal Expos, said the move "would be good, exciting, helpful. I hope they will be able to take the steps to get approval of the purchase. I'm sure they are well prepared to do it."

Their preparation will undoubtedly include clearing some legal hurdles.

While the announcement in San Francisco named Labatt's as the buyer, the announcement made in Toronto by Paul Godfrey, Metropolitan (Toronto) chairman, said the principles in a company to purchase the Giants are Labatt's Breweries of Canada, Ltd., Vulcan Assets Ltd. and the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce.

"I must stress, however, that bringing the team here is still subject to a number of conditions, some of which must obviously remain confidential," Godfrey said. "They are matters for discussion among the companies which are involved in the agreement.

The Giants have been in San Francisco since 1958 when they joined the Brooklyn Dodgers in moving from New York to the West Coast.

The team prospered through 10 seasons, never drawing fewer than 1,240,000 fans.

Then Charles O. Finley moved his American League A's from Kansas City to Oakland, just across the Bay Bridge from San Francisco, in 1968. The Giants have lost money ever since.

The National League lent the Giants $500,000 last summer and they were unable to meet the Dec. 1 deadline for repayment. They have not yet paid the annual $125,000 rental for Candlestick Park, their home field. The lease on Candlestick Park extends through 1984.

Valley 59-53 winner

LBCC runs out of time

By PAUL McLEOD
Staff Writer

"There must be a reason for all of this," said Long Beach City College coach Bill Fraser. "But what it is I don't know."

Valley College, trailing by one point at the half, blitzed to a 39-28 lead in the opening minutes of the second half, then held off LBCC in the final minutes to preserve a 59-53 win before only 100 people in Los Angeles Friday night.

"Just like our last game —we waited until the final minutes to play good basketball," said Fraser in reference to the Vikings' comeback win against El Camino Tuesday night.

The second-half lead changed hands five times before the Monarchs put together an 18-6 spurt that forced Fraser to use the first of several timeouts in an attempt to slow the Monarchs.

Valley increased its lead to 13, 47-34, with eight minutes remaining as the Vikings failed to hit a field goal for six minutes.

Valley's run-and-gun comeback was in direct contrast to its first half performance.

"After the first half when we came back we knew we could go out and beat them," said Monarch boss Jim Stephens, who coached at Marina High last year. "They (LBCC) weren't playing good defense, so I told the guys to go out and take it to them."

Using a zone defense, Valley kept Long Beach away from the basket most of the second half, then dominated in rebounding when Long Beach got off a shot. Valley managed 42 rebounds to 29 for Long Beach, which shot 46 per cent from the floor.

Both Fraser and Stephens agreed the 2-3 zone did its job.

"We just played it poorly," said Fraser. "It's been giving us a lot of problems lately. We couldn't get our rebounds. There's no advantage to shooting if you can't rebound."

"I intended to go man-zone-man-zone," said Stephens, "but the zone worked so well early in the game I decided to stay with it all night."

With the zone in effect Fraser called on outside shooting from sophomore forward Brian Lenzen, but he couldn't respond. The 6-3 St. Anthony grad, whose 20 points Tuesday night against the same alignment saved the Vikings from defeat, scored six points in 13 attempts from the field. Rod Dalton tried to pick up the slack, scoring 18 points. David Olliver, in his first start this season, managed 14 points.

"I think the reason they couldn't hit from the outside too well," said Stephens, "was because each time they took a shot we had a hand in their face or they had to shoot over somebody."

Led by Malvern, Ark. transfer Lonnie Buckner (18 points, 13 rebounds),

LEO TO MANAGE JAPANESE LIONS

Crusty baseball strategist Leo (The Lip) Durocher will manage the Taiheiyo Lions of Japan next season, Lions owner Nagoyoashi Nakamura announced Friday night.

Terms of the contract were not disclosed, but one Lions official said Durocher, 68, received a pact in "six figures" which would make him "the highest paid baseball manager anywhere."

Nakamura said he had flown to the United States to convince Durocher to sign, and the agreement was reached late Friday at Durocher's home in Palm Springs.

Durocher managed the Brooklyn Dodgers, New York Giants, Chicago Cubs and Houston Astros in a stormy career.

Two players who formerly played in the U.S. major leagues, Matty Alou and Don Buford, are members of the Lions, who finished third in the Pacific Division last year.

Kareem ejection leads to another Laker loss

PHILADELPHIA (AP)— A pair of substitutes, rookie Joe Bryant and second-year pro Coniel Norman, scored 37 points between them to help the Philadelphia 76ers to a 109-106 victory over the Lakers Friday night.

The defeat, combined with Seattle's 112-100, overtime win in Phoenix moved the Sonics into second place in the NBA's Pacific Division by one-half game, the first time the Lakers have been lower than second all season.

Losers in seven of their last eight games, the Lakers continue their seven-game road trip in Milwaukee Sunday. They are 0-3 since leaving the Forum and 22-20 for the season.

The Lakers, who lost for the 18th time in their last 21 road games, were hurt in the second period when 7-foot-2 center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar was ejected for throwing the ball into the stands. He had been charged with a personal foul.

The Lakers led at the time, 35-27, and appeared to have control of the game, but the 76ers rallied to lead, 60-58, at halftime.

The Lakers regained the lead early in the third quarter and led until George McGinnis sent the 76ers in front, 97-95, with 4:21 remaining in the game.

The lead changed hands before Bryant sent Philadelphia ahead to stay with a driving layup with 34 seconds to play. The layup gave the Sixers a 105-104 edge.

McGinnis led Philadelphia with 21 points, while

49ers match records with Arizona St.

By JIM McCORMACK
Staff Writer

TEMPE, Ariz. — Four and oh, two and six...the difference is as apparent as night and day.

Or, home and away.

"We're going to have to do something about that road record," points out Dwight Jones, whose Long Beach State basketball team is batting 1.000 (4 for 4) in the win column at home but only .333 (2 for 6) away from Long Beach.

"We're playing better at home because we know each other better," offers 49er forward Anthony McGee, "and we're going to play tougher on the road from now on, too."

Tonight will be a difficult time to start.

The 49ers, who improved their over-all record to 6-6 with wins over Colorado (Saturday) and L.A. State (Monday), open a two-contest sojourn here tonight against the lusty Sun Devils of Arizona State University.

The encounter begins at 6:30 (PST) and can be heard on KFOX-AM (1280). Monday night the 49ers duel Weber State in Ogden, Utah.

Tonight the 49ers take on a team that has been virtually ignored by its fans although it has lost only once, by four points, in eight games.

The Sun Devils have been the victims of a malady known as "basketball season doesn't start until football season is over."

In Tempe, the "sickness" was caused by a football team that was 12-0, beat Nebraska in the Fiesta Bowl and then was voted the No. 2 team in the nation.

"To be honest with you, I don't even know much about the basketball team," publicist Dick Mullins conceded Friday. "I've been involved with football until this week."

- The Sun Devils have lost only to Oregon State (87-83) in the first round of a holiday tournament in Lexington, Ky.
- Ned Wulk lost four starters from last year's NCAA tournament team and then lost a fifth to a knee injury early this season, but has put together a talented lineup of 6-5 Gary Jackson, 6-7 Ken Wright, 6-10 Scott Lloyd, 6-2 Rick Taylor and 6-4 James Holliman.
- Lloyd, the only starter returning for 1974-75, is the team's leading scorer (20.4) and rebounder (8.5).
- The Sun Devils have never lost (19 games) in their shiny, two-year-old University Activity Center.

NHL highlights

Black Hawks 1, Flames 1— Cliff Koroll tallied for Chicago while Dave Krykow beat Tony Esposito from in close as teams battled to standoff. Atlanta took the early lead when Krykow scored on a pass from Tim Ecclestone. But Koroll earned Chicago the tie when he tapped in a loose puck from a scramble in front of Flames goalie Phil Myre after 7:07 of the second period.

Seals 5, Capitals 0— Al MacAdam scored two goals and Gary Simmons turned in his first shutout of the season. Bob Murdoch added three assists as California handed Washington its 20th consecutive loss. California scored two goals in each of the first periods and both times the goals came with 30 seconds of each other. Dennis Maruk closed out the scoring in the final period, connecting on a 40-footer.

College highlights

Pepperdine 75, USF 65— Center Marcos Leite scored 22 points and forward Ollie Matson Jr. had 19 points and 11 rebounds to lead Waves to upset victory over 20th-ranked Dons. The 6-foot-6 Matson scored six of his points in a late Wave rally which saw them outscore the Dons 13-4 and take a 73-61 lead. The Pepperdine triumph in the West Coast Athletic Association opener for both teams came before a capacity — and school record — crowd of 3,500. The victory gives the Waves a 10-2 overall mark, and the loss was San Francisco's fourth in 15 contests. Flintie Williams added 19 points for Pepperdine, and San Francisco was led by Howard Smith, who had 18 points.

San Francisco St. 87, Hayward St. 75— Nehemiah Brown and Greg Bond scord 18 points each as San Francisco rallied from one-point deficit to steadily pull away in second half.

$12 million Coliseum refurbishing?

From Our L.A. Bureau

Newly elected Coliseum Commission president Pete Schabarum has two New Year's wishes — one to refurbish the 53-year-old stadium, the other to effect a long-term contract with the Rams.

Schabarum, a county supervisor who was elected president of the nine-member commission, said the two goals go hand-in-hand.

A former U. California football star who played three seasons with the San Francisco 49ers, Schabarum said remodeling of the stadium would be financed through issuance of revenue bonds.

He said plans have been drawn for lowering the playing field to add 11 more rows of seats and eliminating the running track. Also, the east end of the stadium would be enclosed with the peristyle remaining as a "free-form monument." He said the Coliseum offices would remain in that area.

Schabarum said refurbishing costs would range up to $12 million and would be paid for out of revenues generated by leasing the Coliseum for college and professional sports events.

"The improvements are mandatory to add to the Coliseum's revenue generating capabilities," Schabarum said. "However, it will take tight fiscal management to achieve the goals as we have in mind."

Schabarum said a new contract with the Rams is in the offing following the refurbishment, and said the commission is looking a long-term pact to assure repayment of the bonds.

The Rams presently are on the final year of a three-year contract, with an option for one more three-year pact.

Schabarum said he is hopeful that if agreements are reached on the restructuring of the stadium and the contract negotiations that a 25-year pact with the Rams will result.

'Just this one time, please?'

No amount of pleading by Laker coach Bill Sharman will change referee Bill Saar's decision Friday night. Saar ejected center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar in second quarter for throwing ball at him and socked Sharman with technical foul for delaying game with his arguing.

Leading by a single point at intermission, Washington's Huskies exploded in the second half to stretch their unbeaten record to 12-0 Friday with a 76-56 win over host California (6-4).

At Stanford, Washington State (8-2) survived a late comeback for a 62-60 Pacific-8 Conference decision over the Cardinals (4-7).

James Edward and Lars Hansen, Washington's tree-top tall frontliners, combined for 26 points and 12 rebounds as the eighth-ranked Huskies outscored the Bears, 47-28, the final 20 minutes.

Norton Barnhill's four-foot basket with less than three minutes remaining was WSU's final points, but more than enough as Stanford missed three shots that would have sent the game into overtime.

Ripley rockets 18-1¼

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Dan Ripley pole vaulted 18-1¼, best ever indoors by an amateur and second only to pro Steve Smith's 18-4, and won the event on his third leap Friday night in the National Invitational indoor track meet.

Ripley, a 22-year-old San Jose State graduate and newest member of the Pacific Coast Club of Long Beach, went under the cross bar on his first two attempts in the first U.S. indoor meet of 1976.

Clearing the bar on his final attempt, Ripley set off a thunderous ovation from a meet-record crowd of 11,873 in Maryland's Cole Fieldhouse.

Wojciech Buciarski of Poland, who stayed even with Ripley at 17-6, failed on his third try at the winning height after coming much closer on his first two tries.

Ripley, 5-11 and 180 pounds, last year leaped 18-1 both indoors and outdoors. His outdoor mark equalled the National Collegiate Athletic Association record although he finished second to Earl Bell of Arkansas State.

Earlier on the program, which drew a host of world class performers, Houston McTear, Florida high school sprint sensation, equalled the meet record of 5.9 seconds in the 60-yard dash and Eamonn Coghlan of Ireland ran a 3:59.7 mile.

McTear was first out of the starting blocks to easily win his heat in 5.9 seconds, and then equalled that time in the finals despite a poor start.

Defending champion Steve Riddick was third while matching Crawford's time of six seconds flat. Ivory Crockett, who like McTear has run 100 yards in nine seconds, finished sixth and last in the finals at 6.2 seconds.

Coghlan, a Villanova senior and the NCAA indoor and outdoor mile champion, ran the last quarter in 56.8 seconds. Danie Malan of South Africa was passed on the last lap by Coghlan but rallied to cut away at a 15-yard deficit and trailed by only two yards at the finish in 3:59.8. Len Hilton of the Pacific Coast Club was third at 4:00.7.

Rick Wohlhuter defended his 880 title in a disappointing 1:50.1; Joe Myatt won the 60-yard high hurdles in 7.1 while defeating defending champion Larry Shipp; Geoff Capes of Great Britain took the shot at 65-7, and Debbie LaPlante repeated in the women's 60-yard hurdles at 7.1.

Wilson blitzes Saints, 63-50

By KEN PIVERNETZ
Staff Writer

Wilson High made the most of a built-in revenge factor for its second meeting of the season with St. Anthony High Friday night.

The Bruins, the only Long Beach team to lose to the Saints in five prior games, used a first half blitz to cushion a 63-50 victory before a capacity-plus crowd at St. Anthony.

It was Wilson's third win in a row, and coach Butch Taylor believes his team is rounding into shape for Moore League competition which commences next Friday.

"We've been playing with some of the intensity lately that I had hoped for all along," he said. "But if we've been slow to peak, at least we're coming along at the right time."

The Bruins overpowered St. Anthony during a four minute 19-4 blitz that spanned the first and second quarters. At one stretch the Bruins forced five turnovers in a row with their pressure defense that Steve Hunt, Gary Mulder, Jerry Anderson and Gary Smith converted into easy baskets.

Taylor agreed that Wilson played well in the first half, "but you can see what happens when we slack off," he added.

Trailing 34-20 at halftime, St. Anthony battled back to draw within 39-37 at 1:02 of the third quarter, scoring 10 points in a row as talented Dave Ramsey drove the baseline twice for baskets and dropped in a 14-footer.

After Tony Spanier went around Anderson for a reverse layin to get the Saints within two points, Wilson suddenly turned the momentum its way in the final 60 seconds of the third quarter.

After Hunt sank one of two freee throw at 0:51, Kevin Riley turned poor Saint pass into an easy basket that also saw the Saints called for a technical foul when someone touched the backboard while the ball was in play.

Mulder converted the free throw for a 43-37 advantage, that quickly jumped to eight points as Hunt's drive was good at the buzzer to end the period.

The Saints, now 4-9, never got closer than six points in the final eight minutes.

Wilson is now 10-5.

POLY won its 15th game of an undefeated season Friday night, but the Jackrabbits' big news came with the announcement that 6-8 junior Manuel Johnson will be lost to the team for at least three weeks. He suffered a shattered left kneecap in a non-basketball accident.

But on a team as talented as Poly's, all it probably means is that blue chippers Johnny Nash and Mike Wiley are going to play even more.

Wiley, also 6-8, had a super game in a 81-63 victory over Duarte at Long Beach City College, pulling down 14 rebounds, and hitting 12 of 17 field goals to finish with a season-high 25 points.

MILLIKAN, which had struggled in splitting two games earlier in the week, found its shooting eye again at El Rancho, running off with an 85-64 victory.

John White scored 19 points and pulled down 14 rebounds as the Rams hit on 33 of 57 shots. The Rams had Rich Manoogian, Greg Wysocki and Greg Perkins come off the bench to contribute 21 points and back up starters White, Steve Trefzger (15), Jim Whalen (12) and Doug Marty (12).

Shaw lowers record in Long Beach St. win

Tim Shaw lowered the 1,000-meter school record Friday night as Long Beach State tuned up for Arizona with a double-dual swimming victory over San Diego State and Occidental.

The 49ers, who host the Wildcats tonight at 8 in Belmont Plaza Olympic Pool, trounced San Diego State by 74 points and Occidental by 73.

"We'll need the same type of effort to have a chance of beating Arizona," said LBSU coach Dick Jochums. The Wildcats have already beaten BYU, a team which hammered the 49ers earlier in the season.

Shaw shaved six seconds off his own school record, lowering the mark to 9:24.83. The freshman sensation also won the 200 freestyle and swam the leadoff leg on the 49ers' victorious 400 medley relay.

Marina, Los Alamitos 2-0 after Sunset wins

Marina High overcame guard Rich Branning's poorest shooting night of the season to improve its Sunset League record to 2-0 Friday night with a 56-46 win over host Newport.

Branning's, Marina's leading scorer, was held to eight points (his previous season-low was 20) but the Vikings got double-figure scoring from three other players.

Dan Boldt (14), Tom Ugland and Mike Buhler (12 apiece) combined for 38 points to bring Marina's overall record to 12-3.

Kim Cooke led the losers with 14.

Los Alamitos also upped its mark to 2-0 with a 74-64 win over host Edison.

Gary Strawridge tallied 21 points to lead the way for the Griffins. Center Tim Beckerle added 18 while Bob Vogelsang scored 29 for the shorter Chargers (1-1).

Marina and Los Alamitos Wednesday at Marina, 7 p.m.

Westminster outscored Fountain Valley 12-4 in the final quarter to edge the visitors, 37-31.

The 31 yielded by the Lions was a school record for fewest points allowed. Tim Page (11) and Ed Romine (10) provided the offense for Westminster (1-1).

Huntington Beach remained undefeated in Empire League play (2-0), surviving Saddleback's slow-down efforts, 33-27.

The Oilers led after three quarters, 19-14, before opening up the game in the fourth quarter with good outside shooting.

Junior center Clark Sims led the winners with 11 points.

Rancho Alamitos and Los Amigos improved their Garden Grove League records to 2-0 with wins.

Los Amigos had an easy time with Pacifica, 59-42, as Leo Gonzales led the way with 20 points. Randy James and Tim Davidson helped out with 12 points apiece.

Rancho Alamitos had a tougher time with Bolsa Grande, 50-49. Center Dave Wear, who led all scorers with 22 points, sank a basket with 20 seconds remaining that proved to be the winner for Rancho.

Gahr romps, St. John wins

Rodney Brandon scored 23 points to lead Gahr to a 79-57 win over Canyon in non-league action Friday night. The Gladiators blew the game open with a 29-point barrage in the final period.

Gahr, 10-4, got double-figure efforts from Harold Homsher (10 points), Rick Knopf (12), Greg Riphagen (11) and Frank Silva (14) in the victory over Canyon, 10-5.

Servite turned the ball over 21 times and fumbled away a 71-57 loss to St. John Bosco. Willie Sonsma and Don Carfino had 23 and 20 points to lead the Braves attack.

Roger Swaving scored 16 points and hauled down 12 rebounds as Valley Christian collected a 53-41 win over Ontario Christian in Olympic League play.

Andy Rincon of St. Paul missed the first shot of a one-and-one situation with six seconds remaining, and Excelsior's Burt Hogue scored the clincher as the Swordsmen fell, 56-53.

Lynwood scores quickly, beats Bellflower, 80-55

By DAVE FERRELL

Lynwood High jumped to a 16-2 lead after one quarter and cruised to an 80-55 victory over Bellflower in San Gabriel Valley League play Friday night.

Bellflower went over five minutes without scoring before a basket by junior Kurt Herbst put the Buccaneers behind, 8-2. Herbst led both teams with 26 points, 14 in the third quarter.

Coach Bill Notley said the fast start was the key to the Lynwood's second league win.

"We shot fairly well and by getting the early lead we made them play our type of game," Notley said. "If they (the Buccaneers) had made their first few shots they could have kept the pace slow. We like to run up and down the court.

"We knew Herbst would be taking most of their shots, since he's their best ballplayer and we tried to slough off the other players and concentrate on him."

Howard Henderson hit 4-of-5 shots to lead the Knights in the first quarter, and Darrell Allums and Tom Freeman took over the scoring in the second half. Henderson finished with 17, just behind Allums' 21 and Freeman's 18.

Freeman scored 14 of his total after intermission.

Bellflower cut a 24-point halftime lead to 12 after three quarters behind the scoring of Herbst, but Lynwood regained momentum in the final period.

Warren and La Mirada kept pace with Lynwood to remain undefeated in league.

Brian Lumsden tallied 25 points and grabbed a season-high 14 rebounds to help Warren past Cerritos, 81-58.

Warren, which hit 56 per cent of its floor shots, enjoyed a 22-point effort from Chris Marsh and 12 assists from Jim Klunder.

Cerritos, playing without Rodney Miller and Mark Smith, was led by Dave Navaratte's 16 points. Eric Arnold added 11.

La Mirada ran its season record to 13-0 with a 75-51 triumph over Norwalk.

La Mirada, which led only 27-26 at halftime, exploded for 24 points in the third period en route to its victory.

Jeff Brewer, who led the victors with 22 points, connected on all six of his floor shots in the second half (10-for-11 in the game) and Doug Widtfeldt scored 13 of his 20 points in the third quarter.

La Mirada connected on 57 per cent of its field shots in the second when it outscored Norwalk, 48-25.

Downey scored its first league win of the young season with a 73-56 decision over Paramount.

Steve Driessen poured in 23 points and Mark Elman chipped in 18 to pace Downey. Tom Day was held to nine points.

Downey broke the contest open in the second quarter when it outscored the hosts, 25-15. The Vikings enjoyed a tremendous rebounding edge over Paramount, grabbing 35 to the Pirates' seven.

Tom Riskey paced Paramount with 15 points and Ken Korver added 11. High-scoring Al Alcaraz totalled only two.

Gym powers vie at LBCC tonight

UCLA hosts the University of Oklahoma in a gymnastics dual match in the Long Beach City College men's gym tonight at 7:30 p.m.

Also participating, but not involved in the scoring, will be the University of Arizona and seven-time California junior college champions Long Beach City College.

Arizona, ranked in the top ten last season, will meet the Vikings in a separate dual match, but because the California junior college season does not officially begin until February, the action will be classed as a scrimmage.

Each performer will be scored by judges, but only the UCLA-Oklahoma running score will be kept.

Oklahoma, which finished fifth nationally last season, was originally scheduled to meet the Bruins at UCLA, but scheduling problems forced Westwood officials to search for another site. They settled for Long Beach because, according to LBCC gymnastic coach John Draghi, "they liked our community spirit."

LBCC graduates Steve Sargeant (second in NCAA high bar last season), junior college all-America Elliot Schnee (1975 state junior college record holder on rings) and John Hart (1975 state junior college high bar champ) will compete for UCLA.

Draghi expects top performances from sophomore Frank Martin (1975 state all-around champ), Danny James (third last year in the state on the pommel horse), and 1975 all-Los Angeles high bar champ Chad Nounnan.

Admission is free.

Race for $127,000 at Alamitos

Mito Wise Dancer and Mr. Breakthru, a pair of outstanding colts, will face the challenge of a fleet field of sprinters in the $127,000 El Primero del Ano Derby at Los Alamitos Race Course tonight.

Mito Wise Dancer, the fastest qualifier, and Mr. Breakthru, the richest entry, bring a combined record of 17 wins in 35 career starts into the fourth running of the nation's first major quarter horse event of the new year.

He Flys, Miss Reber, Bonnie Boone, Mr. Roan Deck, Poppa John, Nice N Ezy, Jonathon and The Kid Sister round out the field for the El Primero del Ano.

Mito Wise Dancer, a late bloomer as a two-year-old, comes into the Derby off a swift and impressive 19.94-second qualifying race a week ago. The three-year-old Mito Paint colt had starting problems through the early part of his freshman campaign, but trainer H.C. Werner reports they were solved, and the colt's recent performances seem to prove it.

He has won four in a row including two impressive victories at Los Alamitos this winter and five of his last six starts. Mito Wise Dancer has won eight of 16 lifetime starts and brings earnings of nearly $50,000 into tonight's race. Danny Cardoza, leading jockey of the winter meet, will be in the saddle.

Mr. Breakthru, the horse that ran the sizzling 17.76-second qualifying workout at 350 yards under the lights a couple of weeks ago, is the richest entry in the standout field with lifetime earnings of $150,000. The swift Easy Jet colt has won three in a row and seven of his last eight races with the lone blemish being a fifth in the All-American Futurity. But for a poor start at Ruidoso, Mr. Breakthru might have finished no worse than second.

He Flys, a Cinderella entry tonight, comes in as the 10th fastest qualifier and had to earn his berth by the luck of a draw after being tied for that position after last week's trials.

Alachic, winner of more than $48,000 last year, dashed to his second successive victory when he and stablemate The Good Thief ran 1-2 Friday in the Quarter Racing World Purse.

Ivan's Easy Jet grabbed the early lead, but the even-money favorite was no match for Alachic and The Good Thief, who passed him near the wire.

Ridden by Ron Banks, Alachic covered the 350 yards in 17.88 with the entry paying $8.80, $8.20 and $3.

Aqua Sprite 7.00 4.60
Baubien 7.40

Start good from gate, won easily.

Mutuel pool—$115,102.

MUTATION MISS moved inside horses and checked on the far turn, rallied in the middle of the track through the stretch to wear down AQUA SPRITE with ease and won going away. The latter broke in stride to share the early lead, drew clear on the stretch turn then could do little when caught by the winner. BAUBIEN drifted out midway on the turn and went evenly in the stretch.

Scratched—Testifying, Drive Of Roses, Imbros Doll.

5501—SECOND RACE. 6 furlongs. 3 year old colts & geldings. Claiming. Purse $9,000. Top claiming price $20,000.

Start good for all but Fame's Way Jay, won driving.

Mutuel pool—$231,232. Daily Double Pool—$174,378.

NOEL'S BAGEL broke in stride then was taken in hand to prompt the pace, responded nearing the three sixteenth pole to share the lead with Truxfire, discouraged that one to draw clear between calls then barely lasted over HOTCHI'S BOY. The latter checked when blocked on the turn, found room outside in the stretch and closed strongly to finish fastest. TRUXFIRE broke on top to set the pace to the final turn and faded.

Scratched—Mr. McNasty.

Mutuel pool—$235,169.

BLACK WATER, sent at the start, outraced OIL RIG to assume command midway, saved something for the drive, responded inside the furlong pole and lasted over NOBLE LARK. The latter was taken in hand and reserved early on the rail, slipped through leaving the three-furlong pole to rally, came to the outside for the final furlong and closed steadily in a good try. FORE DAD showed no speed from the gate, lost ground on the first turn, went inside to follow NOBLE LARK on the final turn and lacked a closing kick still on the rail through the last furlong.

Malibu kicks off Strub set

Red-hot Hawley has 4 more wins

Forceten, absent since the $350,000 National Thoroughbred Championship at Oak Tree, and California Derby winner Diabolo begin their 1976 stakes campaigns as co-highweights under 123 pounds each in the $59,450 Malibu Stakes at Santa Anita today.

Two of the top three-year-olds racing in California last season, the just-turned-four Forceten and Diabolo will face nine competitors in the seven-furlong Malibu, which is the first in the three-race Strub series which climaxes with the $100,000 Charles H. Strub Stakes Feb. 8.

Exclusively for four-year-olds, the Strub series has been completed successfully only three times—by Ancient Title in 1974, Hillsdale in 1959 and Round Table in 1958.

Although Forceten, who won the Alibhai Handicap prior to running out of the money in the NTC, and Diabolo carry the most weight under allowance conditions, Messenger of Song was just a fifth of a second off the stakes record when he won the opening day Palos Verdes Handicap Dec. 26 in 1:08 3/5 for six furlongs.

Messenger of Song will be ridden by Jerry Lambert, while Forceten will have Don Pierce up. Diabolo, who finished third in a one-mile allowance Dec. 28, will have Sandy Hawley in the saddle.

Hawley continued his red-hot riding Friday, fashioning four winners after scoring five victories in six races Thursday. A crowd of 21,719 saw him score aboard Big Band in the featured $25,000 Kern County Purse.

With nine wins through 14 races in two days, Hawley shows 22 victories through the first dozen days of the meeting. He scored aboard Noel's Bagel ($6) in the second race and El Penon ($4) in the fifth.

Outsider Big Band ($11.60) posted a narrow head verdict over favored No Bias and Against The Snow in the feature.

UCLA eyes 2-0 mark in Pac-8

Combined News Services

UCLA, still shaking from its 62-61 victory over Oregon Thursday evening, looks for an easier time with Oregon State this afternoon and a solid 2-0 record after one week of Pacific-8 Conference play.

The Bruins and Beavers are featured at 3:30 in the Pac-8 game of the week (Channel 5). Tonight USC attempts to rebound from Thursday's 80-70 loss to Oregon State by keeping alive coach Bob Boyd's streak of never having lost to Oregon in Eugene. KTLA will televise that contest at 8.

UCLA might be in the basement looking up today had it not been for forward Richard Washington's 23-point, 10-rebound effort Thursday. Guards Andre McCarter (3-9), Raymond Townsend (2-5) and Jimmy Spillane (1-5) were a collective 6-19 from the field, producing only 18 points.

Golden Triple slated

California races worth $500,000

California will assume national leadership in the presentation of pre-Triple Crown competition for three-year-old thoroughbreds with a new series, California Golden Triple, worth an estimated $500,000 and involving the 1976 California, Santa Anita and Hollywood Derbies.

To make the California Golden Triple a reality, it was necessary to make a revision in the previously announced date for the Hollywood Derby and to shift the California Derby from what in recent years has become a traditional placement.

The California Derby at Golden Gate Fields will lead off the parade of sophomore classics. It will be run March 6 at 1 1/16 miles. At a guaranteed $150,000, it will be the richest thoroughbred race in Northern California history.

The Santa Anita Derby, March 28, one of six Santa Anita hundred-granders, is expected to reach a value of $135,000 for its 39th running.

Reset from April 10 to April 17 (two weeks before the Kentucky Derby), the Hollywood Derby will be worth $200,000—the richest announced event for three-year-olds in the nation.

'Leading' swing

Golf's 'big guns' close on Tucson Open tri-leaders

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Veteran Dave Hill, insisting he isn't playing well, fashioned a three-under-par 69 that gave him a share of the second-round lead Friday in the $200,000 Tucson Open Golf Tournament.

While Hill, first-round leader Gibby Gilbert and young Pat Fitzsimons shared the lead at 137, a battery of golf's big guns wheeled into position for a shot at the $40,000 first prize.

Johnny Miller, Tom Weiskopf, Lee Trevino and British Open champion Tom Watson were within easy striking distance for the title the first tournament of 1976.

Weiskopf, who could have been in a tie for the lead except for a bogey on the final hole, and Watson were the closest at 138, six-under-par after two trips over Tucson National Golf Club course.

Weiskopf shot 71 and Watson, a three-time winner last year, a 68 in the mild, breezy weather.

Trevino had a 67 despite what he called some shoddy putting and was tied with Miller—the record-setting winner of this event for the last two years—at 139, two strokes behind.

Miller managed a 69 and said he may be ready to make his move.

"I'm not disappointed with my game," he said. "I'm just not doing what I did last year. But I might shoot a really low round anytime now. A 62 would be easy the way I'm hitting the ball."

There were 16 golfers locked within three strokes of the top midway through the tournament.

Arnold Palmer wasn't among them. The 46-year-old master shot a 73 and was a victim of the cut at 150.

Fitzsimons, the 25-year-old winner of the Los Angeles Open last year, had the day's best round, a 65, to claim a piece of the lead. Gilbert had the top spot alone until bogeying the final hole, missing the green. He finished with a 71.

"I've got a new set of irons—just started using them Wednesday—and a new putter and I'm just trying to find a way to hit the ball," said Hill, who has gained a reputation as the game's outspoken maverick. "I haven't got the feel of the clubs yet. I can't get the ball close to the hole."

NO 'SUPER DIVISION,' HORN URGES NCAA

Calling next week's NCAA convention in St. Louis "the most crucial in history," Long Beach State president Stephen Horn has asked fellow university presidents to resist attempts by the football super powers to establish "a cartel within a cartel."

President Horn's appeal, via letter, was sent to 630 presidents of NCAA member institutions in the proposed Divisions I-A, II and III.

It made special note of the proposed reorganization which would create a "super division" of 78 institutions, hand picked from the present Division I.

"If this resolution is adopted," Horn said, "it will be the old story of the 10 per cent in the NCAA getting richer and the 90 per cent getting poorer. Should this super division succeed, Divisions I-A, II and III can forget any television of their games in the years ahead. The cartel within the cartel will determine that.

"What crumbs have finally been given to Division III in the 1976-77 NCAA Football Television Plan came about after the revenue sharing scare. The thirst for a share of the television money will probably drive some institutions away from Division I-A and II conferences to pursue an independent route or to be accepted by the 'big boys'."

Four other issues are pinpointed in Horn's letter—television revenue, presidential involvement in the policy and regulatory bodies of the NCAA, a "needs" test to determine the availability of aid grants, and the obligations of the organization to women athletes.

"Many of us feel that there should be basic changes in the governance structure of national intercollegiate athletics if we are to provide adequate opportunities for women athletes and to develop policies in an economic and sensible manner," Horn said.

Among five other resolutions, proposed or co-proposed by president Horn, is one that would give the NCAA 75 per cent of the gross receipts from extra events, such as post-season football contests. The NCAA would divide its funds accordingly: 50 per cent to the participating schools, 25 per cent to all football-playing Division I members, 12.5 per cent to Division II playing members and 12.5 per cent to Division III playing members.

Another proposal concerns the television plan. After expenses, the remaining net proceeds would be pro-rated equally to member institutions as follows: 50 per cent to Division I, 25 per cent to Division II and 25 per cent to Division III football-playing members.

International gym meet at Fullerton

The nation's first international woman's gymnastic meet of the new year, an Olympic year, will be held today when the Kips host their fourth Gymnastics Invitational at Fullerton State.

Five California clubs, two from Canada (Quebec and Toronto) and one from Oregon, Pennsylvania, Colorado, Arizona and Nevada will participate in a six-member team session based on cumulative scores beginning at 10 a.m. and concluding at 4 p.m. Individual competition begins at 7 p.m.

Among the competitors will be Kelly Muncey of the Kips. Miss Muncey, a Canadian citizen attending Lakewood High, startled Russia's Maria Filatova in the '75 MilkMeet in Montreal with a 37.30-37.20 upset victory.

Other highly regarded competitors include Arizona's Tammy Manville, 1975 elite all-around champion and a member of the USA pre-Olympics team; Diane Dunbar, U.S. Pan American team member, and Donna Turnbow, the junior national all-around bar champion and U.S. team member in the world junior meet in Tokyo.

Admission is $2 for team competition, $4 for individual competition or $5 for both sessions.

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON

Forecast for Sunday

Your birthday today: Self-fulfillment is the theme throughout your entire year as you begin to put to use formerly latent talents. Your earning capacity rises, and it's possible you may switch to another specialty. Relationships take more time and energy now. Today's natives have mercurial dispositions and great personal charm, are intrigued by psychology and curious about what makes people tick.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Take comments at face value and go on. Try to coax people out of yesterday's moods. Spend some time planning the week ahead.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): There isn't much to do, so you're free to do it gracefully. Keep your sense of humor. Catch up on visiting, letter writing and things that broaden your social horizons.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): The urge to move involves you in a crowded situation. People aren't likely to behave in any consistent pattern; try to sidestep problems. Secrets pop from unexpected sources.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Work on resolving differences among friends, but don't take sides for any reason. Socializing is feasible. Bring your mate along to enjoy introductions and important contacts.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Leave business out of today's activities unless you are cultivating relationships that can be useful in the future. Take time to meditate. Organize a master plan for your coming week.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You've got everything going in your favor, but you must break away from old attitudes to get the full benefits of present conditions. Let people be themselves.

Libra (Sept. 23-Sept. 22): Prepare for sudden incidents as you wound up the details of your home situation. No one is spared from endless discussions. Take time out for yourself.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Make your regular Sunday appearance in good style. See what you can do to help others taper off from yesterday's stress. You make important social contacts today.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You can make a worthwhile contribution by allowing others to learn from their mistakes. Take in some art, music, and cultural entertainment.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Promote your favorite pastimes and encourage everyone else to line up theirs. It's all right to compete. Try to improve your personal drafts.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Seek the easiest, most practical course. Allow people to form their own conclusions. Visit those who are unable to come see you. Share intellectual hobbies.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Health care continues to be important; try to get some outdoor exercise. Move around among your neighbors and get acquainted with newcomers in the community.

GAO hits personnel infractions

WASHINGTON (AP) — An investigation of personnel practices at the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration reveals 31 instances of hiring and promotion that might not have been entirely proper, the General Accounting Office reported Friday.

The GAO, Congress' watchdog agency, made the investigation at the request of Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., chairman of the Interstate and Foreign Committee Committee's investigatory panel.

Moss had asked for information on the hiring and promotion practices involving 20 individuals at the DEA.

In its report, the GAO said 10 of the 20 did not compete as required by the DEA's merit-promotion plan and the Federal Personnel Manual.

TWO MORE were promoted or hired without the internal agency competition required by the merit plan, the GAO said. And it said six were hired or promoted without apparent competition, although there was compliance with the merit-promotion plan and the manual.

The GAO also said it reviewed 55 hirings and promotions between July 1, 1974, and March 18, 1975 and found that 24 per cent —involving 13 persons— were without the competition required by the merit plan and the manual.

The jobs included a wide variety of positions from clerical through the professional levels in both Washington and elsewhere, GAO said.

Names of the individuals hired or promoted were not mentioned.

Proposal amended to preserve farm land

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A bill to preserve prime farmland from urban development has been amended to try to soften the opposition of cities and counties.

Assemblyman Charles Warren, D-Los Angeles, says the amendments will make his bill more flexible and "lessen the intensity of the opposition."

WARREN'S measure, expected to be one of the year's major issues, would virtually forbid any activity but farming on about 12 million acres of land.

One of his amendments would allow a city or county to develop a parcel of prime farmland if it could prove to a state agency that the land was needed more for a purpose other than food production.

Other amendments would exempt cities and counties with less than 1,600 acres of prime farmland—which Warren says is 90 per cent of them — from the time-consuming process of mapping their farmlands, and would rule out a building moratorium while the others were preparing their maps.

WARREN said Thursday he thought no more than 100,000 acres would be removed from the bill's protection by the amendments.

Warren, chairman of the Assembly's Resources, Land Use and Energy Committee, has warned of aggravated food shortages unless California moves quickly to save its farmland.

Dial for Dollars

Everybody's got things around they no longer need ... and they'd like to sell. And the place to advertise those things is the I.P-T Classified Section. To prove the point, we've listed some recent Classified ads below. Next to them are listed the number of calls the people received — and the number of people who are still looking for similar items.

RECENT ADS	NUMBER OF CALLS	PEOPLE STILL LOOKING
John Novak of Cerritos sold his Chevy camper with a weekend ad.	14	13
Peter D. Smith, Long Beach, was overwhelmed with the response he got with his ad for a color TV.	80	79
Mrs. Lee Smith, Long Beach, "didn't realize that everyone reads the classified" when she advertized her lawnmower for sale.	20	19
Mrs. Joe Schultz was very pleased with the results of her ad for a housekeeper. She found one the first day.	29	28

Give you some ideas? We hope so. Because there just isn't a better place than the I.P-T Classified Section, with it's over 400 classifications, for reaching just the people that are looking for the goods or services you've got to offer. Give us a try
